

Small State, Big Challenge

Creating a Community of Practice for Rhode Island
Librarians

A unique partnership

Daniela Fairchild
RI Governor's
Office of Innovation

Dragan Gill
Adams Library
Rhode Island
College

Lindsey Gumb
Roger Williams
University

A bit of history...

PROVIDENCE
Journal

Governor says open-text initiative will save RI college students $5 million

First steps...

- Make it Press Conference Official
- Get institutional buy-in
- Join the Open Textbook Network
- Data Data Data
- Create lasting systems and community of practice

Institutions come online...

- Identified library liaison
- Letter from the provost to faculty

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF RHODE ISLAND

Steering committee

The Open Textbook Steering Committee plays a critical role in guiding the ongoing work to make Rhode Island an Open Textbook state.

- Dragan Gill (Co-Chair), Rhode Island College
- Lindsey Gumb (Co-Chair), Roger Williams University
- Sarah Evelyn, Brown University
- James Salisbury, Community College of Rhode Island
- Kelly Faulkner, Johnson & Wales University
- Tom Thibodeault, New England Institute of Technology
- Peter Rogers, Providence College
- Emily Coxe, Rhode Island School of Design
- Lisa Richter, Salve Regina University
- Peter Larsen, University of Rhode Island

A shared message

- Website: <http://innovate.ri.gov/opentextbook>
- Official hashtag: #RIOpenTextBooks
- Shared email tips and tricks language
- Logo

Data collection

Data collection forms and responses

The Big Kahuna

Challenges: Individual and collective

- Administrative support
- Joining at different times
- Figuring out how to share the load
- Trust and communication
- Communication and reporting
- Integrating initiative with campus missions, goals, values

Community of practice

- Meeting cadence
- Retreats
- Trainings and supports
- Steering Committee Google Folder

But let's end on a high note!

RI Open Textbook Initiative

Progress to Date

$1,342,400: Savings for Rhode Island College Students

12,300: Students Served

Questions?

