THE ANCHOR SITUATION

The Anchor's Position

by Gary McShane

During the last two years, the Anchor has constantly pleaded for responsible students to lighten the load of publishing a weekly newspaper.

Each year the number of students expressing an interest in joining the staff has decreased. This year is no exception. In fact it is the worst yet.

As of last week, three editorial board positions were unfilled and there were only nine staff members for the six permanent staffs of the newspaper.

The result was obvious. A small group of dedicated people were putting out the paper each week — the editors. Since all efforts to gain a larger staff had failed and further since what was supposed to be extra-curricular activity had become a full time job, the editors felt that they could no longer put in the long hours required to publish the paper without compensation.

Messiah In Providence

George Frededick Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by the Rhode Island Civic Chorale and Orchestra, Dr. Louis Pichierrri, Music Director, Saturday, December 6, 8:00 p. m., Veterans Memorial Auditorium. A quartet of nationally prominent soloists, Virginia Babikian, soprano; Anastasio Vrenios, soprano; Elaine Bonazzi, mezzo-tenor; Vern Shinall, bass will perform with the one hundred voice chorus and 35 piece professional orchestra. Reasonably priced tickets at $4.50, $3.50 and $2.50 are available at Avery Piano, Axelrod Music and Ladd's Music. Mail and telephone orders to the Rhode Island Civic Chorale and Orchestra, 93 Eddy Street, Providence, R. I. 521-5670.

Students, Youth Groups, Senior Citizens, Charitable Organizations, and handicapped persons may obtain tickets at reduced prices for the Ticket Endowment Program of the State Council on the Arts. Under the Rhode Island State Council's Ticket Endowment Program; tickets priced at $2.50 are available with adults or students from a special arrangements for free or able for $1.25. Anyone working lower priced tickets. For further information call the state council 781-4650.

Deadline for ticket endowment reservations, December 1st.

The argument, it was felt, for compensation was a strong one. First, the monetary compensation would replace salaries gained in part-time outside work, thus permitting the editors to spend more time on the paper.

Salaries would also help to add a certain prestige to an editorial position and encourage more students to join the staff in the hopes that some day they might hold such a position. In other words, it would serve as an incentive for joining the staff.

For these reasons, the Business Manager of the Anchor, William Bunch, went before the Student Senate Finance Committee to ask for permission to take salaries from the advertising revenue, money which is gained by printing advertisements and not part of the Senate allocated funds.

This advertising revenue did, however, supplement the Senate allocation and faced with the possible request for more money by the end of next semester they froze all Anchor funds as of November 19 citing that no funds were available for further allocation, as the reason.

As of this date, the Anchor funds have been unfrozen because of an agreement between Senate and the Anchor editorial board. This pact emphasizes an effort on the part of both organizations to gain a larger staff for the paper and thereby eliminate the need for paid editors.

This co-operative effort is satisfactory to the Anchor as it achieved the same purpose as a monetary compensation would have. Someone finally has expressed an interest in the Anchor and that's all that was ever asked. The editors have expressed hope that the efforts of both organizations will be successful.

Dress Code Abolished

by Kris Hevenor

In accordance with the motion passed last year by the Student Senate the Library dress code has been abolished.

It was formerly the policy of the Library that girls not be allowed to wear slacks while working at the desk.

The Library is the last work area on the campus to abolish the dress requirements.

ANCHOR EDITOR RESIGNS

Last week Tony Milano resigned his position as editor-in-chief of the Anchor. Personal obligations and a general frustration over the plight of the Anchor were given as reasons.

The following letter was received by the editorial board on November 18:

Editors:

Because working for the Anchor has left me no time to do things I must do;

because working for the Anchor has left me no time to do things I want to do;

because I have received from the Anchor staff no significant amount of cooperation; because editors of the Anchor are editors in name only, and in no manner worthy of the title;

because there is an aura of petty vested interests which governs the actions of editors and staffers alike;

because I do not believe that students care whether or not the Anchor fulfills its responsibility;

because I do not believe that paying the editors is a panacea; it would simply make editors feel more obligated to do more work;

because I do not believe that a moratorium on publication will cause any improvement in the Anchor.

because I believe that publishing a newspaper under the present circumstances is the business of fools;

because martyrs are fools;

I, Anthony Milano, resign my position as Editor-in-Chief of the Anchor. The resignation is effective today, November 18, 1969.

I wish all of you the best of luck, and will attempt to make myself available from time to time to lend assistance to your reporters and writers. I will also attempt to continue to write for the Anchor, though not on a regular assignment basis.

Sincerely,

ANTHONY A. MILANO
(Editor's Note) Mr. Milano has accepted the position of associate editor.

The Editorial Board, at a subsequent meeting, has elected Gary McShane editor and filled the previously vacant positions of Managing Editor and Circulation Manager with Ray Boyer and Dana Rockwell respectively. The position of Editorial Board Secretary, vacant since last year, has also been filled by Jeanne Eggleston.

The Other Side

The Anchor has come before the Student Senate to request that they be allowed to use revenue to be used in the form of salaries for its editors. In effect, this would mean that the Anchor would run $3,400 under its expected budget for printing costs and would have to come to Senate for more money in the near future. The Anchor also has said that without this grant, the Anchor staff would walk out.

The cold fact is that the Student Senate simply does not have enough money in its budget to grant such a request. The Senate feels that if this were granted, other organizations would come before it and require payment for their staffs. We decided against granting the money until such time as the COMMITTEE ON CLASS AND ORGANIZATIONAL AFFAIRS has come up with a more equitable plan.

The college community would, because of this action, risk a walk out of Anchor members. Because of the possibility that other students, with no idea of how a newspaper works, could walk in and continue the Anchor in a very substandard and inadequate way and waste much of the student body's money, the Student Senate was forced into passing the following:

All of the funds of the Rhode Island College Anchor have been frozen so that no bills incurred after November 19, 1969, will be paid until such time as the COMMITTEE ON CLASS AND ORGANIZATIONAL AFFAIRS can study the problem and recommend solutions.

On Thursday and Friday, November 20 and 21, President Eli Perlman met with individuals on

English Comm. Solicits Aid

The following people have been appointed to the Committee of English Majors: Nancy Cerep; Diane De Santis, Edwin Elderkin, Susan Fowler, Mrs. Mary E. Belk Gray, Mrs. Leslie Cameron Keley, Robin Leveillee, William Swigart, and Russell Watts. The Committee will be functioning as a student advisory group to the English Department.

The first and present business of the Committee is making recommendations for curriculum revision. To this end, the present listing of English courses is being reviewed to determine which courses might be dropped, revised, or added. The Committee (Continued on Page 3) the Editorial Board of the Anchor and other concerned students. Anthony Milano, past Editor-in-Chief of the Anchor pointed out that it would be easier to find out what the problems of the Anchor are while it is in operation. This became the major argument against the freezing of funds.

Another problem still existed, however. The problem is the original one. The editors agreed with President Perlman that they would not resign for monetary reasons if they could have a large enough staff that they would not have to do all the work.

At this time, an Executive Board meeting of Senate was called and the following was decided: The Anchor funds would temporarily be unfrozen until such time as the COMMITTEE ON CLASS AND ORGANIZATIONAL AFFAIRS can give a report. If, at that time, the committee can give a favorable report to Senate, the Anchor problem will be solved. If this is not the case, however, the funds will have to be refrozen until the committee can reorganize the Anchor. A deadline of Winter Vacation has been placed on the committee so that the student body can be assured of an improvement in the Anchor by second semester.

Couch Charred In Early Morning Weber Fire

At 3:40 a. m. this past Monday morning, the semi-working alarm system went to work in Weber Hall. Some two-thirds of the large sofa was charred when it was carried from the main lounge of the hall. A dropped cigarette is the suspected cause of the fire, which filled the lounge and many of the suites with foul smelling smoke.

The fire alarm system did not function in all suites, and only quick action and quick thinking by the Resident assistants and some of the residents assured that everyone was cleared of the building. This time there was enough time, and the nature of the fire was not overly serious; but what if the fire had been a quick-moving high-intensity fire? Where would we find the people in those suites with non-functioning alarms.

Sophomore Tom O'Donald put an extinguisher to the fire prior to the arrival of the Fire Department forces.

PAY IS NOT THE ISSUE!

The impression given by rumors which have been making the rounds concerning the status of the Anchor may be misleading.

A campus newspaper has a responsibility to students. This newspaper boasts "free access to ideas and full freedom of expression," and also that it is the "student voice."

Many students have noted that the Anchor doesn't get at the issues of the day, that it has become merely a reporter of social trivia. Agreed, to a certain extent. The reasons have been explained in the past. It takes time to delve into areas of controversy. With no significant staff, the editors, because of outside commitments (such as jobs), don't have the time themselves.

Since all efforts to gain a larger staff had failed up to last week, only one alternative seemed open. Eliminate any outside commitments of the editors by paying them, thus permitting them to spend more time working on the paper, and therefore, more time to allow the paper to take a stand on the national, local, and campus issues.

Senate has suggested a co-operative effort to obtain a larger staff since it doesn't have the money to pay the editors. This, if successful, is entirely satisfactory. For the issue is not pay, but improving the quality of the Anchor.

The editors are not greedy. They are trying to be practical. No hope was felt that any effort to gain more staff members would be successful. To eliminate outside jobs and do the work themselves for the betterment of the paper seemed to be the only answer.

Senate feels that it can get people interested. The editorial board is willing to let them try and will do its part. We are asking for help to make the Anchor the best. It is now up to you, the concerned students, to answer this plea.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The Senate Elections Committee would like to apologize for the fact that the election results of the Senate-vice-presidential elections held on Wednesday, November 12, had to be declared invalid. Senate pointed out many unfair practices which must be corrected before another election can be held.

Problems in Wednesday's election included:

1. The use of paper ballots instead of IBM ballots. The committee was unaware that last year Senate passed a ruling that all balloting must be done with IBM machines.
2. The election table was left uncovered for an undetermined amount of time.
3. Not all I.D.'s were checked.
4. Neither the candidates nor the Elections Committee did much publicizing before the election.
5. The election should have been held on Thursday, the day after it actually was held.
6. Not all names of voters were checked off the college list. Some students could have voted more than once.

Obviously, the election was sloppy and the results may have been unfair to the candidates and to the student body. These problems will be dealt with and solved soon, so that another election can be held. Hopefully, the Wednesday election will be the only election invalidated this year.

Sincerely,
Senate Elections
Committee

Dear Editor:

The Student Senate, at its last meeting, passed a motion telling the Board of Governors' Calendar Committee to give first choice for dance dates to classes and second choice to I. F. C. With this plan, the Calendar Committee would be hindered in that group not classified as a class or an I. F. C. member would have no opportunity to choose a dance date. Also, since the Board of Governors is presently in the process of reorganization and is assessing a more equitable system for dance dates I do not feel it is the correct time for Senate to pass such a motion.

Therefore, I, as President of Student Senate, hereby veto the motion in question.

Sincerely yours,
Eli Perlman
President, Student Senate

Dear Editor:

Does anyone know if the class of 1970 exists? I honestly doubt its existence. I realize that about half of the members of the class are off-campus now, but I see no reason why the on-campus half of the class should cease to function.

Since the beginning of the year, I have seen three news letters from the class. The first announced the appointment of our class advisor and briefly outlined plans for Senior Week. The second was a ballot for candidates to Who's Who. The third was a ballot listing possible speakers for graduation.

The Senior Class did have a candidate for Homecoming. It did not have a float. I personally wrote our class president a note via Student Mail telling him I had an idea for the float. I did this at the beginning of the semester, so that I could be contacted when the Float Committee was formed. (Or was there no float because there was no committee?)

The Senior Class has been without one Senate representative since October 1. I know our class advisor is aware of this and I imagine he has told our class president. But I have no way of knowing that the class president is doing anything about this.

If the Class of 1967 is a functioning body, I and other seniors would like to know just how it is functioning.

Sincerely,
Janet K. Schora

Dear Editor:

In reply to Senator-at-Large Bob Colassanto's recent letter, we would like to clarify our plans and reasons for compiling a student directory.

1. We took over the task of compiling the Directory when another student organization dropped plans for making one. We received permission from Dean Mulqueen.

2. Our intent is not to subject RIC students to an onslaught of junk mail, but to provide what we feel is a much-needed source of student information. Anyone who wishes not

THE ANCHOR
EXTENDS ITS WISHES
FOR A HAPPY
THANKSGIVING

SERENDIPITY

BY SUSAN J. FOWLER

The Warwick Gallery on 422 Warwick Avenue is mainly a commercial gallery specializing in European painters. Much of the work is what I call "saleable" work, meaning one flower on a white background or a bull-fighter pasted on an orange void. Some of the work is original and exciting though, and because of the variety of techniques and the diversity of period of art works, I feel that it would be valuable to visit the gallery.

The director, Dr. Saharuni, is a linguist and historian who studied at the University of Moscow and received his Ph.D. from Erevan. Between the years of 1936 and 1939, Dr. Saharuni was in a Stalinist concentration camp. For eleven years he ran an art gallery in Heidleberg, Germany, and has spent some time in Paris and Canada. Once you get used to his heavily accented English, you will find Dr. Saharuni a very interesting man. He himself does not paint, but knows a lot about art and its history and is more than willing to discuss it. He feels that his gallery would offer excellent opportunities to art classes from schools because of the variety; but is under the impression that American art instructors are afraid to go with their students to a gallery because they themselves would not recognize a truly great piece of art. I disagree; does anyone want to take up the challenge?

Among the work which impressed me greatly is that of Leslie Smith of Quebec. His pieces range from watercolors to oils and from realism to abstract and show great originality. According to the director, Mr. Smith does not really desire to sell his work; he is an artist who paints for himself. The emotion he puts into his work tends to bear out this theory.

If you are interested in impressionism, there is a display of neo-impressionist work by Valls Army. His work must be viewed from a distance in order for it to make sense. Close to it seems to be merely stripes of intense color laid side by side with no apparent order in mind. Each of the pieces has its history or the history of the artist printed on a placard next to the painting so that the viewer can see the relationship between the life and the work if he so desires.

The gallery is definitely geared to a customer type situation rather than a viewer; but Dr. Saharuni welcomes browsers and it would be worth the trip.

P.S. If anyone finds a man's class ring, 1966, Cranston High School East, gold with a green stone, and with "joe C" engraved inside, please return it to me through the Admissions Office or The Anchor, or call 942-1496 after 6 p.m. It has sentimental value.

REACTION

The All-Nighter

The B.O.G. all-nighter was an entirely unique experience for this year's frosh. Of course, for the upperclassmen it was old hat. From the looks of contentment and the talk it seems that most people had a good time.

Fun and games prevailed from 10:00 Friday night until Saturday morning. Entertainment was never at a standstill. The R.A.W., an extremely powerful group, blasted rock in Donovan from 12 midnight 'til 2:30 a.m. Before that there was a light show, coffee and donuts in the dining center — oh, yes and feats of prestidigitator Ken Diman. Later, at the Student Union, cartoons and the Little Rascals made their appearance for nine millionth time, while many sat around, played cards, talked, played ping pong, pool, or viewed a particularly pointed comedy, "The Wrong Box" starring Peter Sellers, Peter Cook, and Dudley Moore, in the SU Ballroom.

At 2:30 the all-nighter featured a trivia contest, in which prizes were awarded. A complaint was circulated through the onlookers that two persons won about 4 or 5 prizes each. It was felt that these trivia whizzes should have been allowed one prize apiece, so that other people could have an opportunity to participate.

Also during the night were such other forms of entertainment as folk singing and a folk sing-along, a jug band, and a penny social.

From 3:30 to 4:30 a buffet consisting of sandwiches, coffee and soda was served, and at 4:30 a Roman Polanski movie, "The Fearless Vampire Killers" was shown in the ballroom. From 6:00 to 8:30 was the Dawn Dance, featuring the Northeast Expressway, and although everyone was just about falling asleep, it was a great way to end the night. For those who made it through the eleven hours, a Survivors' Breakfast was served in Donovan until 9:00, at which time everyone went home with memories of a night well spent.

RIC Ranks Second at Major Tournament

On November 14 and 15, the members of the Rhode Island College Novice Debate Team participated in the 1969 Southern Hospitality Forensic Tournament. Other colleges which attended the tournament, which was held at the Southern Connecticut State College in New Haven, Conn., included Boston University, Brown University, the University of Massachusetts, Middlebury College, and the University of Rhode Island.

The topic debated was the annual college topic: RESOLVED: THAT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SHOULD GRANT ANNUALLY A SPECIFIC PERCENTAGE OF ITS INCOME TAX REVENUES TO THE STATE GOVERNMENTS.

The affirmative team, composed of Nicholas Hunt, first affirmative, and Manuel Anas, second affirmative were victorious in three of their six debates. They defeated Fordham University, East Stroudsburg State College of Pennsylvania, and Ohio Northern University. Among the twenty-one affirmative teams which participated, the Rhode Island College team tied for second place, with a 3-3 record.

The members of the negative team, Kenneth Hokenson, first negative, and Linda Lafrenaye, second negative, were successful in five of their six debates. They defeated teams representing the University of Massachusetts, the University of Delaware, and East Stroudsburg State College. Among the twenty-one negative teams which participated, they also tied for second place, with a 5-1 win-loss record, with Brown University, the University of Delaware, the University of Massachusetts, and the Merchant Marine Academy.

In the entire tournament, in which 21 colleges were represented, the Rhode Island College team as a whole tied with Brown University and St. John's University, Jamaica, New York, for second place, with 8 wins out of 12 debates.

This season the Rhode Island College Debate team has maintained an excellent record in

Senate Report

BY CAROL LYDICK

Dean McCool announced that the College Council made a proposal to look into the feasibility of charging fees for parking on campus. This action would be taken in order to raise money for parking facilities because the state will no longer allot money to RIC for this purpose. If fees were to be initiated they would be on an annual basis — one fee for the school year.

An appeal for a bus to go to Washington was made by some RIC students to the Senate. A motion was passed that Senate grant $250 to Senator Pete Sclofani, chairman of the Senate Bus Committee, which would lower the price for each individual student who wanted to go.

The election for Vice President of the Senate was held on November 12 with Louise Fillion and David Blodgett as candidates. But due to the fact that the senator who was in charge of the elections did not cross off the names of the people as they voted, the number of votes cast did not correspond to the number of names of people who voted, so the election will be rescheduled.

A special report was submitted by Senators Colasanto, Mulcahy, and Orlando concerning the condition of the various committees. These Senators proposed that the committees be consolidated into the following four committees in order to eliminate the ad hoc committees:

1.) Senate Committee on Class and Organizational Affairs, which would have four Senators appointed by the President, would concern itself with the four classes and the problems of the fraternities and sororities which cannot be resolved by the IFC.

2.) The Committee on Conditions and Services, which would deal with janitorial and food services, etc., would also consist of four Senators appointed by the President.

3.) The Committee on the Physical Plant, which would be concerned with parking, hazards in the buildings on campus and similar problems, would have three Senators appointed by the President.

4.) The Committee on Special Considerations would deal with the problems of Senate and have four Senators appointed by the President. It was suggested that this committee have two subcommittees: Subcommittee on Faculty Evaluation and Subcommittee on the Bookstore.

A set of rules and regulations was also proposed.

The Biology Club presented its budget requesting $120 for three speakers, $30 each plus $30 for their meals. A motion to this effect was passed.

Joe Scelama spoke about the budget of the Class of '71 and made an appeal to the Senate for funds. A motion was made that the class be allocated $1000, half of which would be paid back by May 31, 1970. This motion was amended to read that the class be allocated $2000, $500 of which would be paid back by May 31, 1970. This amendment was defeated 7 to 4. The motion was amended again to read that the class be allocated $1000, none of which would be paid back. This amendment was passed.

The financial report of The Anchor was submitted and its present situation described by Bill Bunch. He said that the editors would like to be paid, as the brunt of the responsibility of putting out the paper is left to them and they put more time into it than they can afford and still fulfill their responsibilities as students. A motion was passed that the Anchor funds be frozen until such time as the Committee on Class and Organizational Affairs can investigate the situation and make recommendations to Senate. The reason for this measure is to insure that irresponsible people won't take over the paper or until a group of students can be found who are really concerned about The Anchor and willing to be active members of the staff to relieve the editors of some of the load.

Senate Names Committees

The Student Senate has set up a new and better organized system of reviewing the problems at Rhode Island College. The way we are doing this is by doing away with the infinite number of Senate committees and reducing them to four. These four are Student Senate Committee on the Physical Plant, Committee on Class and Organizational Affairs, Committee on Conditions and Services, and the Committee on Special Considerations. Every committee has different Student Senators from different constituencies on them.

The following people are on the committees:

Class and Organizational Affairs: Senator Brian Cartier — Sophomore

Senator (to be elected) — Senior Senator Gail Peltier — Browne Hall

Senator Charles Haskell — At Large

Conditions and Services: Senator (to be elected) — Frosh Senator Kathy Mulcahy — Junior

Senator Janice Schona — Thorp Hall

Senator Peter Schafani — At Large

Physical Plant: Senator (to be elected from the freshman class)

Senator Manny Anus — Weber Hall

Senator Robert Colasanto — At Large

Special Considerations: Senator Ernie Balsco — Sophomore

Senator Paul Orlando — Junior Senator Lou Fontana — Senior Senator Ken Barton — At Large

Hoopsters Take Two Scrimmages; Prepared For Lowell

Over the past week the Rhody hoopsters have taken to task two larger schools in basketball scrimmages. Against Brandeis, Coach Bill Baird's charges went all out and out distanced Brandeis by some twenty points. The interesting point, and a most encouraging one at that was the fact that Baird gave his reserves ample playing time, and was still able to direct a potent attack. All the starters again went out and did their thing much to the dismay of the Brandeis players. Wilson and Huelbig worked well in the back court, and again the front line of Creedon, Suggs, and Jordan, were tough off the boards.

Of the reserves the most impressive against Brandeis was Junior Jim Sala, who showed a great deal of desire and hustle under the boards. Jim also put in a couple of pretty shots.

Jacobson, Porter, and Meeks were quite impressive among the freshman. Jake was able to use his height and strength to let the other people on the court know he was around. Bill Porter played a heads-up, solid game and showed a good deal of aggressiveness. Ron Meeks who had appeared a bit tight the first time out showed that he had adopted to the style of play and displayed a quiet confidence as he worked well at both ends of the court.

Against Northeastern this past Friday night, the Anchormen were faced with a tough, aggressive, physical ball club which they tripped up at the end of regulation time by a 98-95 margin. The starters in this case totaled about three quarters of the playing time in the first two periods. Coach Baird was most-impressed with Jerry Suggs play. Up to this point in the season Jerry has been working as a hub for the offence and has hardly been shooting at all. Coach Baird spoke with Jerry and told him he wanted the big man to go to the basket more. Jerry responded with a twenty point performance, which put more pressure on the defence, for the defender covering Jerry was not able to drop off and help out with Wilson or Huelbig.

Coach Baird was happy with the overall performance and mentioned Jacobson as the most impressive of the reserves Friday night.

In looking forward to the season opener against Lowell State, Baird foresees a height advantage against Lowell but, feels the teams will be equally matched height wise on Friday night in the game with Quinnipiac.

and Sidelights

With the onset of each new season, there is among the athletes a great deal of enthusiasm, the which, in some cases is more idealism than anything else. Well, Here We Go Again. Two teams representing RIC in winter sports both have the most excellent chances of grabbing off championships come march.

There exists only one factor which must be remedied to make complete the seasons of both these teams. People!!! That's right, with over three thousand people on an undergraduate level alone, in attendance at this institution, there is no need for either the wrestling or the basketball teams to play before scanty houses.

The crowd factor can be of vital importance to a team to get them charged up when they begin to falter. HIS would like to see full houses for both home openers next week, for the Hoopsters on Tuesday and the Grapplers on Wednesday.

There is not an excuse for not attending these events, because one doesn't have to stand around waiting to see five minutes of a cross country race after having shivered for twenty. And you don't have to sit, stand and/or jump around in the chill fall winds that sweep up the campus to the soccer field. No, — all you have to do is walk yourself into a nice heated gymnasium, with nice warm lights, and if you look real close you might even find some nice warm smiles. And if that's not asking to much, if you should happen to decide to join a cheer or just yell a little bit all by yourself, HIS will give you a money back guarantee that you will feel a lot warmer inside.

If you think of all the time and effort these men will, and have put in for you, then you should hang your head in shame as you walk past the gym on game night if you don't go in. To look up to the stands and see a sea of faces rather than a half empty bleacher is more encouraging to a player than one who hasn't been there can really know.

Not Everyone can be a varsity athlete, but everyone can be a varsity fan.

both its on-campus and tournament debates. Their victories over West Point Military Academy and Boston University at the Invitational Dartmouth Tournament, their double defeat of Providence College, and their excellent showing at the 1969 Southern Hospitality Forsenic Tournament have given them an outstanding record so far this season. Their next opportunity to debate will come on December 5 and 6, when they will represent the college at a tournament being held in New York City.

Willard Speaks At Fall Sports Dinner

Dr. Willard, vice president for academic affairs represented the faculty and administration at the fall sports dinner, held this past Thursday evening, at Ye Olde Oyster Cabin, in Uxbridge, Mass.

Dr. Willard spoke as the opening speaker and wished his congratulations to the soccer and cross country teams, and then he lowered the tone of his speech, and also expressed, on behalf of the administration and especially Dr. Kauffman, thanks for the time and effort devoted by these athletes. He did so saying, "I only wish there was more that we, the members of the administration and the college community in general, could do for you. You devote so much of your time and energy to bring honor to the school, and our athletic teams do so much to bring honor to Rhode Island College, I wish there was some better way to thank you."

Perhaps the sincerity with which those very words were spoken was the beginning of that extra thanks.

The highlights of the evening were the awarding of the letter sweaters to those men who had qualified for one.

Lionel Jean was awarded the captain's trophy for soccer and Freshman Tommy Kenwood was awarded the same trophy in cross country.

Junior Brain Samson and Lionell Jean were named as co-captains for next years soccer squad.
