

What's NEWS

@ Rhode Island
College

Vol. 3 No. 10 November 1, 1982

When Irish teams meet Anchormen/women—

There'll be a Lynch mob on the court

by Arline Aissis Fleming

When the Irish Men's and Women's National Basketball Teams come to Rhode Island College on Nov. 9, there will be a Lynch mob on the basketball court—and maybe one in the stands.

John Lynch of Rhode Island College's men's basketball team will meet his older brother, Billy, of the Irish team at the 9 p.m. tap-off. Their younger sister, Peggy, is a member of RIC's women's basketball team which will play the Irish women's team that same night at 7.

Meanwhile, in the stands, Mother and Dad Lynch and the four other Lynch kids will be trying to figure out what side they want to root for.

Dad's Already Decided

Dad—better known as Dennis Lynch, former mayor of Pawtucket—says he's already decided that he'd better root for the kids closest to this side of the Atlantic. Especially since they are still living at home. But it's not yet clear how the rest of the family will divide up their loyalties.

The Lynch family may be the most vocal audience members there, but they are for sure not the only Rhode Islanders involved in this contest between the American and Irish teams.

Of the six Americans on the Irish team, four have Rhode Island roots.

Steven O'Neill of South Kingstown, (son of John C. O'Neill, director of RIC's Bureau of Grants and Sponsored Projects), will be part of the all-star team coming to the States, in addition to the aforementioned Billy Lynch. Two former members of Brown University's basketball squad, Rob Crichton and Scott McCarthy, will also be playing.

It's a Natural For Us

Additionally, more than 50 Rhode Islanders have been part of the committee which has been planning this event for the past six months, including the elder Lynch. At RIC, the groundwork has been put in place by William M. Baird, athletic director, who says "with all the tie-ins, it's a natural for us." This is the first time that RIC has hosted a match of this type, Baird said.

The Irish National Teams will visit the U.S. on a 10-game schedule, all of which has been arranged by the Irish American Basketball Foundation in Hartford, Conn. to raise money "to support the continued growth and development of the sport of basketball in Ireland."

According to Daniel E. Doyle, Jr., formerly an assistant basketball coach at Brown University and now the executive director of this foundation, basketball in Ireland "has mushroomed over the past five to eight years. The level of basketball has improved dramatically to the point of being comparable with American small colleges," he said.

Mecca of Basketball

Doyle, who was also head basketball coach at Trinity from 1978 to 1981, notes that in Ireland, "Rhode Island is looked upon by many people as being a mecca of basketball in the United States."

"The first team to tour Ireland was from Rhode Island," he said, adding that the 16-member team coming here on Nov. 9 boasts four players with Rhode Island roots out of the six Americans.

Rhode Island native Steve O'Neill has played in Ireland for the past two seasons and is ranked among the country's best players. Billy Lynch is experiencing his first season in Ireland, having just graduated from Suffolk Law School. Both athletes played basketball in Rhode Island high schools, O'Neill at South Kingstown and Lynch at St. Raphael's.

Matched Against Brother

When Lynch suits up on Nov. 9, he'll be matched up against his younger brother, John, a sophomore transfer from Clarke who is playing ball at RIC for the first time. Sister Peggy, the youngest of the Lynch daughters, is a sophomore who was also a RIC team member as a freshman. According to her proud father, she was the first girl at St. Raphael's Academy in Pawtucket to score more than 1,000 points.

Despite the fact that basketball has experienced tremendous growth in Ireland during the past several years, the sport is still in the formative stages, as other sports, such as soccer and rugby, have been more prevalent. Also, basketball facilities there are sparse. Thus, one of the main objectives of the game at RIC and at the other nine locations is to raise money for a multi-purpose arena in Ireland.

Tickets to the Nov. 9 fundraiser are $4 for adults and $2 for students and will be available at the door.

Loyalty in Rhode Island
In Question—Again!

Sketch by William Baird

Notes from Bernadette

by Bernadette V. Small

Mrs. Marion Bouley of the accounting office was a surgical patient recently at Fogarty Memorial Hospital in North Smithfield. She is now at home and we are happy to say that she is recuperating nicely. She is expected to be away from her job for a few weeks. Our best wishes for a complete recovery. Marion! Send notes to her at home: P.O. Box 13, Black Hut Road, Glendale, RI 02826.

We received word recently that Prof. Richard Castellucci of the department of modern languages will be on sick leave for the remainder of the semester. He is undergoing a series of tests. We join in sending our best wishes to him. He would like to hear from you at home: 24 Captain Freebody Road, Narragansett, RI 02882.

We were sorry to hear that Dr. Audrey Crandall, professor of elementary education, is undergoing tests at the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center in Hanover, N.H. We wish her well and we know she would enjoy hearing from you at the medical center.

Sharon Taraksian of the purchasing office is back on the job part-time after having been a surgical patient this summer. She is feeling well and is happy to be back. Welcome back, Sharon!

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Connor! They are proud parents of a baby boy, Gregory Thomas, born at Women's and Infant's Hospital on Oct. 21, and weighing nine pounds, 12 ounces. Janet (Mrs. O'Connor) is RIC's assistant director of financial aid. Their address is: 1 Raymond Drive, Cumberland, RI 02864.

I just had a telephone conversation with Joanne Warren, secretary in the department of industrial education. You will be happy to know that her husband, Richard, has been transferred to Miriam Hospital from Newport Hospital, where he was taken when stricken ill on his boat in Portsmouth, recently. Joanne said he is doing very well.

We were saddened to learn of the unexpected recent death of John Paul Inglesi, a graduate of the RIC Class of '76 and the son of Mrs. Marie Inglesi of the bursar's office. We extend our sincerest condolences to Marie and her husband and family. Address notes to them at: 162 Eliza St., Providence, RI 02909.

We were saddened also, to hear of the passing of Mrs. Idalia Robinson of Providence on Oct. 21. Mrs. Robinson was the mother of Ava Gist of RIC's Student Development Office. Our deepest sympathy is extended to Ava and her husband and family. Please address notes to: Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Gist, 55 Warrington St., Providence, RI 02907.

Focus on the Faculty and Staff

Dr. Victor L. Profughi, professor of political science, lectured on "Lobbying within the American Political System" at the national seminar of the HAI TAHD, the national Armenian Youth Movement, on Oct. 11. Approximately 100 persons attended the seminar in Franklin, Mass. Rhode Island College Geographers will be actively involved in the Nov. 5-6 meeting of the New England St. Lawrence Valley Geographical Society in Portland, Maine. The following faculty members will give papers on:

Stanford Demars - "Nineteenth Century Seaside Resort Patronage;" Chester Smolski - "Redistricting: A Case Study of the Successful Challenge to Legislative Construction of State Senate Districts in Rhode Island;"

Robert Sullivan - "The Historic and Continuing Impact of Industrialization and Water Supply Functions within the Pawtuxet River Basin;" Marion Wright - "The Christian Presence in China: An Endeavor to Place Current Activity in Perspective."

Econ Ed prize winners announced

Three Rhode Island teachers are among 72 teachers nationally who will share in some $11,000 in cash prizes for their junior-high-school-level economic education projects recently entered in the 20th annual national awards program for the teaching of economics, according to the Rhode Island Center for Economic Education.

Eloise Boyer and Deborah Anderson, both of Warwick, and Dennis Robidoux of Chepachet, took third place prizes in the awards program which was administered by the Joint Council on Economic Education through a grant from the International Paper Foundation.

All teachers at Cranston High East, their project was entitled "Cobra E.Q." It was one of 295 economic education program projects submitted. A description of Cobra E.Q. will be included in the 20th annual volume of "Economic Education Experiences of Enterprising Teachers" published by the joint council.

The winners will be honored at the annual conference of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development in Houston, Texas, in March.

Grant deadlines announced

The Office of Human Development Services plans to announce the fiscal 1983 closing dates of a majority of its grant programs in early November.

This will be a single competition for grants in 41 priority areas supporting research, demonstration, and training grants for social service programs.

Keep in touch with the Bureau for developments in this area.

The National Endowment for the Humanities has established a Nov. 15 deadline for the receipt of full proposals under the Humanities: Youth Grants Program. Youth-grants proposals must be initiated, planned and conducted by young people (students); offer the opportunity to stretch intellectual and analytical abilities outside the classroom; result in a concrete end-product that can be shared by a larger audience (film, research paper, slide/tape presentation, curricular materials or manuscripts) and involve a trained professional as advisor. A second deadline is May 2, 1983.

NEH has also established Dec. 1 as the deadline for its Consultants Grant Program. This provides the services of a consultant to an academic department considering innovations in curriculum. The college has received at least three of these grants in the past.

The National Science Foundation has announced a program for the acquisition of computing research equipment. The Computer Science and Computer Engineering Research Equipment Programs provides support for the purchase of equipment for computer-related research. The deadline date is Dec. 1.

Special Project grant applications will be received by the National Endowment for the Arts up to Dec. 15.

Projects should demonstrate the value of art and the artist in the educational process. They should have a local, state, regional, or national focus, be documentable and replicable. Grants will generally not exceed $15,000.

For information on these and other projects please call John O'Neill at the Bureau of Grants and Sponsored Projects-ext. 8228.

N.B.—The deadlines for the previously announced Mina Shaughnessy Scholars Program is Nov. 9. The deadline for the Comprehensive Program is Nov. 30.

Workshop on sexual assault set for Dec. 16 & 17

Two one-day workshops on sexual assault, instructed by Dr. A. Nicholas Groth, will be held at Rhode Island College from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 16 and 17.

Groth is nationally known for his work with incest and rape offenders. The entire program in entitled "Sexual Assault: Rape, Incest, and Child Molestation—The Psychology of the Offender."

Thursday's session, "Incest and Child Molestation: The Offender and His Offense," will be held in Gaige Auditorium. Topics to be covered include: the spectrum of child sexual victimization, characteristic personality traits of child molesters, the dynamics of parent-child sexual involvements, and treatment of the offender.

On Friday, the Student Union Ballroom will be the site of "Rape: The Offender and His Offense." Topics to be discussed include: psychological characteristics and motivations of the offender, the interrelationship of sexuality and aggression in sexual assault, the juvenile offender, and impact of the offense on the victim.

A clinical psychologist, Groth has specialized in the area of sexual assault and has worked with both victims and offenders in institutional and community-based settings for over 16 years.

A. Nicholas Groth

He is the author of Men Who Rape: The Psychology of the Offender and the co-author of Sexual Assault of Children and Adolescents.

A $35 fee for either workshop or $60 for both will be accepted prior to Nov. 28. After Nov. 28, the cost is $45 for either workshop or $80 for both.

This program is co-sponsored by the department of continuing education in social and human services at RIC, the Forensic Mental Health Associates, and Woonsocket Family and Child Services.

To receive registration materials, contact Cheryl Livneh at 456-8629.

Keeping Score

with Kathy Feldmann

The Anchormen's seven-game winning streak was broken when Southeastern Mass. University's George Marmello scored at the 4:58 mark of the second half from a penalty kick. The game ended 1-0 in SMU's favor.

RIC played well in the first half which ended in a 0-0 tie, but the defense and the offense had their problems in the second half. RIC had only seven shots on goal the entire game compared to SMU's 18.

The soccer team however, boasts an impressive record of 7-1-4.

It is important that they hang in there, this being the last week of regular season play. Berths for the post season championships will be announced soon, since the first round for the NCAA Division III Championship is slated for Nov. 5 and 6.

The women's tennis team ended a fine season with a 7-4 record. This young team comprised of seven freshmen, three sophomores and two juniors held their own in two out of four losses, they were just edged out 4-3.

Freshman Susan Landry from Woonsocket played first singles for the Anchorwomen and finished the season with an 8-3 record. First double partners, freshmen

Kara Fay and Lisa Capuano, both graduates of Cranston West, played for a 7-2 season record.

The men's cross country team placed 12th out of an 18-team field at the Easterns which were held at the University of Vermont. They have had a very respectable season led by their only senior and captain, Filinto Martins. On Nov. 6, they will be competing in the New England Championships.

The volleyball team came in fourth at the Eastern Connecticut State College Tournament. They defeated Connecticut College, UMaine-Presque Isle, Bridgewater State and Salem State. The Anchorwomen lost to Bryant, East Connecticut State, and Queens College. Their record now stands at 23-10. They will be playing in the RIAIAW championships on Nov. 5 and 6 at Providence College.

On Nov. 9, RIC will be the host to the men's and women's Irish American basketball teams. RIC's men's and women's varsity basketball teams will be playing against the Irish. The women's game will begin at 7 p.m. followed by the men's game at 9 p.m. Keep the date open—Tuesday, Nov. 9.

What's
NEWS
@ Rhode Island
College

Editor

Laurence J. Sasso, Jr.
(on leave)

Acting Editor

George LaTour

Staff

Peter P. Tobia, Photographer
Arline Aissis Fleming, Writer
Audrey Drummond, Secretary
Rosemarie Abbruzzese, Typist

Student Staff

Marisa E. Petrarca, Calendar
Lynn Chudy, Artist

What's News at Rhode Island College is published weekly throughout the academic year except during semester breaks by Rhode Island College News and Information Services, 600 Mt. Pleasant Ave., Providence, RI 02908. Second Class application pending Providence, RI.

Postmaster: Send address changes to What's News at Rhode Island College, News and Information Services, c/o The Bureau, 600 Mt. Pleasant Ave., Providence, RI 02908.

DEADLINE

Deadline for submission of copy and photos is TUESDAY at 4:30 p.m.
Tel. 456-8132

Printer: The Beacon Press

Maria Flook makes—

A welcome debut

by George LaTour

She lives. She observes. She writes. With the eye, mind and heart of a poet, Maria Flook convincingly renders a world of loss, dangers, deceptive surfaces and love.

Her poetry has been described as strenuous and demanding of attention "because she does not pull any punches."

She talks about things as they are at full emotional depth. There is nothing pretty-pretty about this 30-year-old part-time instructor of creative writing at Rhode Island College.

Rather, there is a combination of intellectual vigor and gypsy wildness which critic Alan Dugan terms "really invigorating to experience."

Writing poetry since the age of 20, Flook has published works in prestigious

Nov. 8 when Ms. Flook gives a reading of her poetry at Harvard's Blacksmith House in Harvard Square, Cambridge.

The reading will be at 8:30 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

Maria came to Rhode Island in 1969 by way of Wilmington, Del., where she was raised. Married for a time, she is now a single parent residing in Providence.

She earned her bachelor's degree in creative writing at Roger Williams College where she later taught creative writing. She moved with her young daughter to Iowa where she attended the University of Iowa and earned a master of fine arts degree.

Returning back east, she received a fellowship from the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown, Mass., where she completed the bulk of her present work, national journals such as Poetry, American Poetry Review, and The Antioch Review.

Maria Flook

Critic Stanley Kunitz called her poems "electric, absurd, wildly alive and quite wonderful."

This week, a book of her poems entitled Reckless Wedding will be published by the noted Boston-based publishing firm of Houghton Mifflin.

The collection of poems was chosen from among 300 entries for publication in Houghton Mifflin's 10th annual New Poetry Series.

The purpose of the series, according to the publisher, is to bring the attention of the reading public—through publication of the winning manuscript—to a "significant and original work that merits major attention."

Some of that attention will come on

Restless Wedding.

According to her publisher, Maria is not simply another voice decrying the contemporary condition.

"Her poems combine striking imagery with a penetrating, ultimately sympathetic understanding. The reader is impressed by the scrupulousness of her vision, and at the same time left with the unmistakable sense of having made contact with a real person.

"Never superficial, her poems earn this response."

Reckless Wedding has at its core that authenticity of emotion which demands recognition.

Always rare, this quality is especially so in a first book. To read the poetry of Maria Flook carefully is to come to know our world better.

Hers is a welcome debut.

To discuss European politics

Dr. Herbert R. Winter, professor of political science at Rhode Island College, will discuss "New Forces in European Politics" at the History Department Luncheon Colloquium on Wednesday, Nov. 3, in Gaige 207.

The topic is considered to be one of considerable concern in international affairs.

Those attending may bring their lunch and join in on the conversation.

The next discussion in the weekly series is set for Nov. 10 when students are especially encouraged to attend to participate in a discussion by RIC faculty on the theme of "History as a Key to the Professions."

AKD reception

Alpha Kappa Delta members are inviting the campus community to attend their first organizational meeting and wine and cheese reception on Wednesday, Nov. 10, from 4-6 p.m. on the fourth floor in Craig Lee.

India is topic

"Industrialization in India Before Independence: Implications for Today" will be the subject of a talk by Prof. Morris D. Morris of Brown University's Sociology and Economics Departments on Nov. 10 from 1-2:15 p.m. in Alumni Lounge, Roberts Hall.

The talk is being sponsored by the RIC Departments of Sociology and Economics. It is free and the campus community is invited.

Gifts Galore

More than a score of distinctive prizes will be awarded to United Way donors on Friday, Nov. 5, when a drawing takes place at the RIC Faculty Center.

Faculty and staff making donations to the annual RIC United Way Campaign, which has a goal of $25,000, have a chance to win a number of tickets to performances of the Trinity Rep, Musical Festival or R.I. Philharmonic, free lunches, bottles of wine, paintings or even an escape weekend for two at the Biltmore.

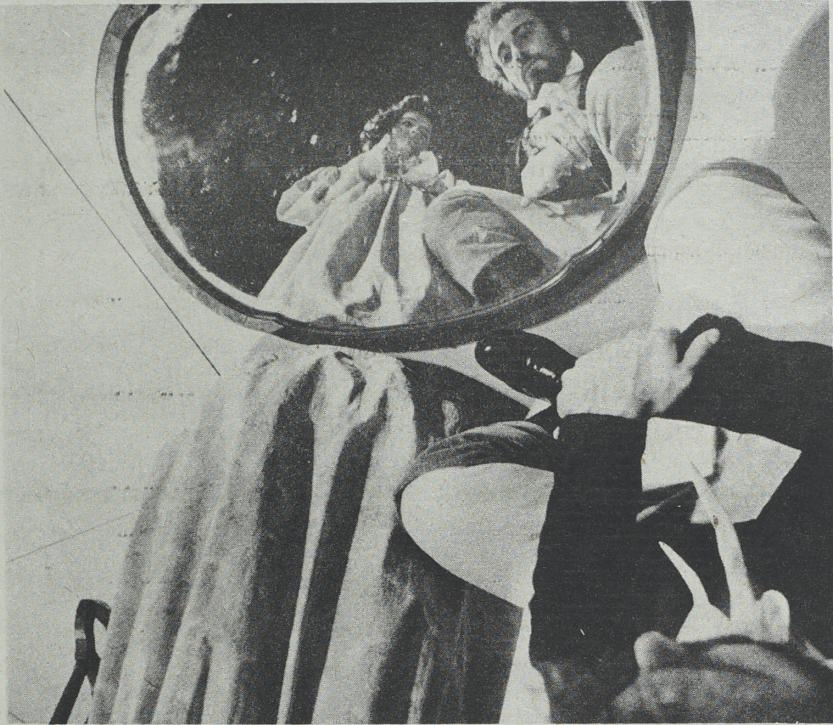

Donors will receive one ticket for the drawing plus three additional tickets if donation is made through payroll deductions.

Leaving behind us----

(BIG) FOOT PRINTS at RIC are not really being left by Tom Picone, a standard-size sophomore. These in front of the Student Union and others on campus are the result of ABLE, RIC handicapped student organization, which is sponsoring a "find the footprints" contest today. Anyone may enter. The winner gets $25, but to participate you must search for the prints from a wheelchair. You may register at Craig Lee 127. (What's News Photo by Peter P. Tobia).

RIC Theatre to stage O'Neill play

REHEARSING A SCENE from the up-coming RIC Theatre production of 'A Touch of the Poet' are Nancy Quartoro and Stephen Lynch. (What's News Photo by Peter P. Tobia).

Membership open to students

Students interested in occupational safety and health or driver and traffic safety are eligible for a special membership in the National Safety Council.

The council is offering student membership rates for persons enrolled for academic credit in a post-secondary educational institution. Cost is $20.

Student members will receive information from one of two areas of their choice: occupational safety and health or driver and traffic safety. Members will receive three publications during the year dealing with subject matters from either of these two areas.

In addition, special benefits and privileges are available for students who become members. Safety specialists are available to answer questions and assist with safety-related problems. Student members also can place a free job placement advertisement in "National Safety News," the council's monthly publication.

Another benefit is access to the world's largest safety library located at the council. A computer is used to retrieve data for members' requests for both general and technical information.

The National Safety Council is a non-governmental, non-profit, public service organization dedicated to preventing accidents and occupational illnesses. It was founded in 1913 and chartered by Congress in 1953.

For an application and more information, write to the School and College Department, National Safety Council, 444 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL. 60611

Sociology Club to attend conference

The Sociology Club will attend the Massachusetts Sociological Association's Fall Conference, "Religion and Sociology in the Modern World," on Saturday, Nov. 6, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

The event is open to all interested participants. Registration is $1, plus $2 for gasoline. For more information call Ext. 8026.

Eugene O'Neill's "A Touch of the Poet" will be staged at Rhode Island College, Nov. 11 to 14, in Roberts Auditorium. The 8 p.m. performance is being directed by assistant professor Elaine Foster Perry.

Tickets are $4 for the general public and $2 for students and may be purchased at the door or by reservation. Call the box office at 456-8144.

The 10-member cast will be led by Stephen Lynch as Major Cornelius Melody; Donna Palumbo as his wife, Nora, and Nancy Quartaro as Sara.

"A Touch of the Poet" is O'Neill's last complete play. The third play in a projected cycle of plays that was to deal with several New England families, it was published in 1956 and first produced in Sweden. The following year, it was produced in New York, though it was not well received. Several years later, a more successful production was staged starring Helen Hayes.

The four-act drama focuses on how the past determines the fate of these characters. In "A Touch of the Poet," O'Neill dramatizes the contact between a family of impetuous Irishmen with a more staid New England Yankee family.

Barbara Matheson is costume and make-up designer and John Custer designer of lights and set. Director Perry was the recipient of the New England Theatre Conference's Moss Hart Award in 1980 for the staging of "To Kill a Mockingbird."

R.I. Federation of Teachers:

Praise RIC

By George LaTour

Rhode Island College's ear must have been buzzing on Oct. 16! People were talking about us and talking in a favorable vein. People who should know. People like the members of the Rhode Island Federation of Teachers.

The day was Saturday. The event was the annual convention of the Rhode Island Federation of Teachers. The site was the Biltmore Plaza in Providence.

Dr. Frank Newman, president of the University of Rhode Island, had the floor and was speaking about the very important role all education must play in the development of high technology-oriented professionals. His comments were not limited to the upgrading of educational programs for high technology professionals, but other careers as well, nurses and teachers among them, the goal being "well rounded" educationally-sound professionals who are "capable of independent thought."

After his talk, which was well-received, the floor was opened to questions.

It was at this point that a Rhode Island educator (not from RIC) stood up to point out that Rhode Island College has a very fine general education program and, further, went on to ask if URI had anything comparable.

Later on in the questioning—at which point the cooperative effort between educators and the "to-be-trained technologist" was being discussed—the name of Rhode Island College again came up.

At least one teacher cited RIC as the forerunner in developing an early enrollment program which allows interested high school students "to cut their teeth on entry-level college course work." The tone of the remarks was highly complimentary.

Faculty members from RIC-AFT on hand for the convention were impressed that their fellow educators in the federation were obviously impressed with RIC.

"There is no question that RIC enjoys a good reputation as a result of our involvement in the early enrollment program and the introduction of the general education program," attested Joseph P. DiMaria, acting director of RIC's Records Office who was attending the convention.

In fact, Joe pointed out, several informal conversations during the course of the convention concerned themselves with other offerings of the college which invariably drew praise. One such was the perception that elementary and secondary school teachers enjoy and are attracted to the in-service experiences that the college offers.

The unsolicited votes of confidence in RIC (as a result of several programs that interact with teachers) prompted DiMaria to write President David E. Sweet, relating the above to him "so that the positive impressions about Rhode Island College can be shared with those persons who have been instrumental in the development and continuance" of these programs.

Calendar of Events

November 1-November 8

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1

11 a.m. to Noon Career Services. Resume Workshop. Craig Lee, Room 054.

Noon Mass. Student Union, Room 304.

Noon to 1 p.m. Behavioral Weight Control. Judy Gaines. Craig Lee, Room 130.

2 to 4 p.m. Career Services. Interviewing workshop. Craig Lee, Room 054.

MONDAY to THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1-4

Noon Mass. Student Union, Room 304

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2

Election Day. No classes

2:30 p.m. Men's Soccer. RIC vs. Clark University. Away.

7 p.m. Women's Volleyball. RIC vs. Eastern Connecticut and Barrington Colleges. Away.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3

Noon History Department Lunchtime Colloquium. "New Forces in European Politics." Prof. Herbert Winter. Gaige, Room 207.

3 to 4 p.m. Career Services. Career Decision-Making workshop. Craig Lee, Room 054.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4

10 to 11 a.m. Career Services. Resume workshop. Craig Lee, Room 054.

10 a.m. to Noon Performance Based Admissions Information Session Program. For adults who want to earn a college degree. Roberts Hall, Alumni Lounge.

2 to 4 p.m. Responsible Assertiveness for Men and Women. Dr. Tom Lavin. Last of a six-part series. Craig Lee, Room 130.

6 p.m. Women's Volleyball. RIC vs. Holy Cross and Framingham State. Home.

6 p.m. Special Dinner for Recent Retirees. Campus community is invited. Tickets are $5. Faculty Center.

7 p.m. Protestant Service. Student Union, Room 304.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5

10 to 11 a.m. Career Services. Job Search. Craig Lee, Room 054.

11 a.m. to Noon Career Services. Resume workshop for Cooperative Education students. Craig Lee, Room 054.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6

TBA Women's Cross Country. EAIWA Championships.

TBA Men's Cross Country. New England at Boston.

TBA Women's Volleyball. RIAIAW Championships at Providence College.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7

10 a.m. Sunday Mass. Student Union, Ballroom.

7 p.m. Sunday Evening Mass. Browne Hall's Upper Lounge.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 8

9 to 10 a.m. Career Services. Career Decision-Making workshop. Craig Lee, Room 054.

Noon to 1 p.m. Behavioral Weight Control. Judy Gaines. Craig Lee, Room 130.

Noon Mass. Student Union, Room 304.