

What's NEWS

@ Rhode Island
College

Vol. 7, No. 11 November 10, 1986

M. R. Olsen

Maria Santoro tells:

What she did to go to college

by Laurence J. Sasso, Jr.

A job is to survive. Education is something else, "another value."

This is the opinion of Maria Santoro who has met and surmounted enough hurdles in her quest for learning to give her testimony the credibility afforded a survivor.

A recent transfer to Rhode Island College from the Community College of Rhode Island, Santoro, 48, was the youngest of seven children of a farming family in Tricarico, Italy.

Due to World War Two she was forced to leave school after only three years and work in the family agricultural business.

When she was 19 Maria met an American soldier who was vacationing in Italy. Six months later she married him and they moved to the United States, settling in East Greenwich, Rhode Island.

The union produced three daughters and a son. Ultimately, however, the marriage ended.

MARIA SANTORO

"I always wanted to learn, to study," Santoro confides. "It's been my belief since I was little to learn how to do something, to gain a skill," she adds.

To earn money she went to work in a jewelry factory in Providence, commuting from East Greenwich to get there, but she also began attending school in Apponaug in an attempt to earn a general educational development (G.E.D.) certificate. The certificate is commonly known as a high school equivalency.

She earned her U.S. citizenship around this time.

However, the road to learning and achievement for Santoro has been as irregular as the coastline of Italy.

For a time she lived in Ashaway because there was employment in that area.

Transportation was always a problem for her. At one point she had to take six busses a day to make the trip from home to work to school and back.

After awhile she moved to Providence in order to be close to manufacturing plants where there were always jobs for someone who was willing to do bench work.

At night she continued going to school and studying at Nickerson House. She took a taxi to get there.

"I took my little girl with me," she notes.

Having left school at age nine and that in another country with another language Maria faced a long uphill struggle to earn her G.E.D. It looked to her like it might require 10 years of studying nights to bring her to the point where she would possess the skills necessary to pass the exams.

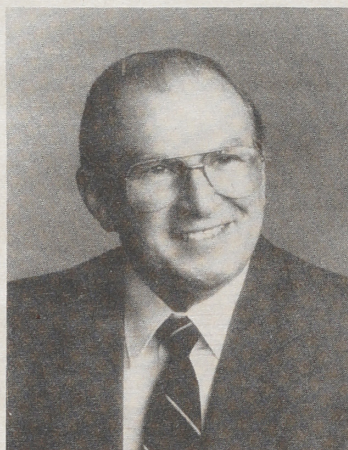

To hasten the process she hit upon the idea of working three days a week and going to school two days a week. So, as an adult with four children of her own, she went and sat in a public school class room two days a week learning basic skills along with the students.

It would be nice to report that such determination immediately paid dividends. However, it was to be awhile before the fruits of Santoro's labors could be harvested.

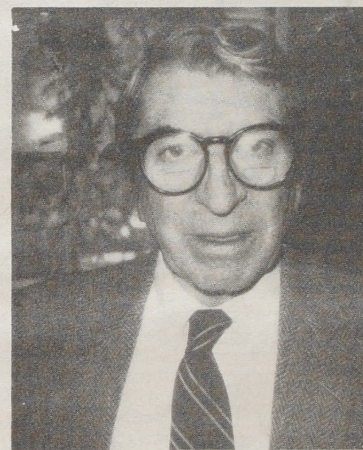

(continued on page 3)

Higher education is topic Nov. 20:

History dept. will offer 22nd annual symposium

KAUFFMAN

ESCHENBACHER

Rhode Island College's history department will offer its 22nd annual symposium on Nov. 20 from 2 to 4 p.m. in Gage Hall auditorium.

A former president of the college, a professor emeritus at Brown University who is an expert on John Dewey and an international scholar on the history of higher education at Columbia will be the speakers at the event.

"Scholarship and Teaching in Higher Education: A Question of Choice?" is the announced topic for the symposium.

"Since the symposium title is broadly worded, there will be many possibilities for discussion, including the issues of scholarship and academic freedom, institutional responsibilities to support research and development, and the relationship of research to teaching in professional development," reports Dr. Norman Pyle, associate professor of history at the college, one of the planners of the symposium.

The three speakers at the affair will include Dr. Joseph F. Kauffman, professor of educational administration at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, president of Rhode Island College from 1968 to 1973.

Kauffman, an expert on presidential leadership of higher education will speak on the changing social role of colleges and universities in the light of the 40th anniversary of the Truman report.

In addition to Kauffman, Professor Herman F. Eschenbacher, professor emeritus of education at Brown University will review in his presentation some of the problems involved in the evolution of "old time" colleges into modern research universities.

Eschenbacher, who has written on the history of land-grant education and the social philosophy of John Dewey, asks the question, "have institutions in their attempt to respond to the perceived needs of an increasingly pluralistic, technological urban society become undifferentiated from the society they hope to serve with the result that they have lost their independence?"

The third speaker at the symposium will be Professor Walter Metzger, professor of history at Columbia University, an international scholar on the history of higher education.

Metzger will provide an historical perspective to the changing goals of colleges and universities.

Dr. Ridgway F. Shinn, Jr. professor of history at Rhode Island College, formerly vice president for academic affairs, will moderate the symposium.

A reception for the speakers will be held immediately following the conclusion of the event. It will take place at the college's Faculty Center.

For further information call 456-8039.

College students are:

Marketing the possibilities

By Lisa Marie Cashman

Two students in Dr. Steven Ramocki's marketing class had a chance to take their project straight to the board — of the Rhode Island Chiropractors Association.

Debbie DeCrescenzo of Riverside and Diane Thomas of Harrisville, both seniors in marketing, presented the backbone of their findings to the association on October 9th at the Marriott Hotel after the board's general meeting.

The project, researching the East Bay area to find out the percentage of people interested in Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage for chiropractic services was "extremely successful," say DeCrescenzo and Thomas beaming with accomplishment.

Attesting to their success is Dr. Martin Roussel, chiropractor for the East Bay Chiropractic Health Center, for whom the survey was conducted.

Roussel, an active member of the association, needed to find out how many people were interested in Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage for the purpose of supporting a legislative bill which would include full mandatory coverage under Blue Cross/Blue Shield for chiropractic services.

"The bill has already gone through the House and the Senate, but was vetoed at the governor's desk," said Roussel.

"We needed more statistical evidence, warranting another look at the bill for the Governor's approval," he explains.

When DeCrescenzo and Thomas presented their findings from the survey which they conducted over a two month period to Roussel, he was impressed.

"There was so much information

(continued on page 3)

Cocaine conference planned here

The health promotions office at Rhode Island College will hold a cocaine conference on Tuesday, Nov. 18 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Scheduled for the Board of Governors Room in Roberts Hall, the conference will include 25 to 30 staff members at the college. The participants will represent offices across the college community.

Guest speakers at the conference will be detectives Tim Patterson and John Murray of the Providence Police Department and Dr. John Femino, medical director of Good Hope, an inpatient alcohol treatment center in East Greenwich.

Patterson and Murray are with the Providence Police Department's special operations group, the unit which deals with narcotics and prostitution.

Current plans call for students in the college's communications and theatre department to film the conference.

Heath promotions at the college are coordinated by Mary Olenn.

Letters...

Dear Larry:

Thank you so much for the fine coverage you have been giving the arts in What's News and in press releases which emanate therefrom to the other newspapers in Rhode Island.

Not only does your "Center for the Arts" page help to keep our on-campus community informed of Rhode Island College activities in the arts, but I have also been meeting alumni and others around the state who read What's News and who appreciate the fine reporting of what our students and faculty are doing. Thanks to your commitment to improving the image of the college, the word is going forth!

Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

P. William Hutchinson
Professor of theatre

Do you need...

1983 Subaru GL, automatic, blue 4-door sedan, air, AM/FM cassette, 50,000 miles. Mint condition! $4,700 or best offer. Call 949-4199 or 232-1255.

Notice

What's News at Rhode Island College may not be as substantial as usual for the next two or three issues. The staff will be working together with other members of the college's Advancement and Support Division to produce a special publication commemorating the inauguration of Dr. Carol J. Guardo as seventh president of Rhode Island College. The publication will reflect the special tone of celebration and commitment to the future of the college and its people which the inauguration created.

What's
News
@
Rhode Island
College

Editor

Laurence J. Sasso, Jr.

Associate Editor

George LaTour

Staff

Gordon E. Rowley, Photographer

Ellen W. Hunt, Secretary

Student Staff

Christine Albanese, Calendar

Lisa Marie Cashman, Writer

Johanna Bennett, Writer

Lisa Castro, Paste-Up

What's News at Rhode Island College (USPS 681-650) is published weekly throughout the year except during semester breaks by Rhode Island College News and Information Services, 600 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, Providence, R.I. 02908. Second Class postage paid, Providence, R.I.

Postmaster: Send address changes to, What's News at Rhode Island College, News and Information Services, c/o The Bureau, 600 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, Providence, R.I. 02908.

—DEADLINE—

Deadline for submission of copy and photos is TUESDAY at 4:30 p.m.

Tel. 456-8132

Production by
BEACON PRESS

Focus on the Faculty and Staff

New England Historical Assn.'s fall meeting at Boston College was attended by a dozen Rhode Island College faculty members, nine students and one graduate student, "the largest contingent from any institution," reports Dr. Ridgway F. Shinn Jr., professor of history.

Ellen Weaver Paquette, coordinator of Cooperative Education and president of the New England Assn. for Cooperative Education and Field Placement, served as moderator for two panel discussions, "NEACEFE in the Next Ten Years" and "Career Positions after Co-op for Practitioners," both at the 11th annual NEACEFE conference on Nov. 5-6 in Westboro, Mass.

Dr. David L. Greene, dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, had a paper appear in a recent issue of Inorganic Chemistry. Co-authored with colleagues from the University of Colorado and the University of Louisville, it was titled "Counterligand Dependence of Charge Distribution in Copper-Quinone Complexes. Structural and Magnetic Properties of (3,5-Di-tertbutylcatecholate) (bipyridine) copper (II)."

Physical science faculty visits our schools

During the past academic year members of the Rhode Island College physical science department visited in area schools to give 30 to 40 minute talks to students on topics of current scientific interest.

Seven members of the department visited a total of some 16 schools and a number of civic organizations and delivered talks, answered questions about science and talked about the college.

Prof. Kenneth Borst visited Bishop Hendriken High School and North Attleboro High School.

Prof. Miner Brotherton spoke at North Attleboro High School as well. He also spoke to several civic organizations.

Dr. Barry Gilbert gave talks at Lincoln High School and The Wheeler School.

Dr. Peter Glanz appeared at Toll Gate High School, East Providence High School, Moses Brown School, Bishop Keough High School and North Attleboro Junior High School.

Dr. Arthur Laferriere gave talks at Toll Gate High School, also, and at North Kingstown High School.

Dr. Charles Marzocco visited Middletown High School, The Lincoln School and Classical High School to speak.

Prof. John Peterson spoke at Lincoln Junior High School, Seekonk High School and Coventry High School.

350: 'outstanding citizens'

Seven people with Rhode Island College ties have been named among Providence's 350 outstanding citizens by Providence/350.

"We are pleased to honor the 350 outstanding citizens whose contributions have made Providence a better place to live," wrote John D. Sawhill, vice president and general manager of WJAR-TV, Channel 10, in a brochure issued for the Providence/350 WJAR-10 Grand Jubilee Ball on Oct. 18.

Listed in alphabetical order were: John Custer, designer and arts administrator; Carol J. Guardo, president, Rhode Island College; Renato Leonelli, Neighborhood Honoree; Eleanor McMahon, commissioner of higher education; Mary Nocera, Neighborhood Honoree; Chester Smolski, urban geographer, and Laurence Sykes, photographer, professor of art, Rhode Island College.

To speak on American village

Dr. John R. Stilgoe of Harvard University's department of visual and environmental studies will give a lecture at Rhode Island College's Gaige Hall, room 209E on Nov. 13 at 9:30 a.m.

Stilgoe's topic will be "The American Village — Never Finished." The talk is sponsored by the committee on college lectures and films and the department of anthropology and geography. It is free and open to the public.

DON BOUSQUET, author and cartoonist, autographs a copy of his book at the recent Henry Barnard School Book Bazaar. (What's News Photo by Gordon E. Rowley)

You're asked to fast and give 'saved' lunch money to Oxfam

Members of the Rhode Island College community are being asked by the chaplains' office to fast for a day on Nov. 20 and donate the money that would normally be spent on food to Oxfam America or some local program which feeds the hungry; i.e. Amos House.

Oxfam, headquartered in Boston, nationally sponsors a "Fast for a World Harvest" on that day. Funds received through donations, says Oxfam, will be used to assist people in more than 30 developing countries to alleviate hunger and poverty.

Frankly Speaking

by Phil Frank

★ MARKETING

(continued from page 1)

DIANE THOMAS & DEBBIE DECRESCENZO

which reiterated all the things we tried to state in the bill," says Roussel.

Roussel then asked the two budding researchers to give the presentation before the Chiropractors Association. He observes, "It was nice to hear from an unbiased point of view."

Both Debbie and Diane feel this opportunity has helped them take a step forward into the real business world and are confident it will guide them in their search for employment upon graduation.

★ SANTORO

(continued from page 1)

Frustrated by the slow pace of her progress she decided to move to West Germany where a nephew of hers operates an Italian restaurant.

"I was so desperate to work, to feel independent," she says, explaining the attempt to re-establish herself in yet a third cultural context.

Ironically, the foray to West Germany served only to frustrate her drive toward independence further. As an American citizen she could not obtain permission to work there.

So, she returned to Rhode Island. "The words I said were 'Maria, you're an American citizen—join the club,'" she recalls.

She obtained some assistance, went to school every day she could while her daughter was in school, and to conserve money she bought only the things which were absolutely essential.

Somehow she heard of the Urban Educational Center and enrolled in classes there to complete preparations for the G.E.D. With the support and encouragement of counselors and faculty she began to experience some success. After three years she obtained the hard-earned prize, she got her G.E.D.

With her high school equivalency in hand Santoro applied to the Community College of Rhode Island and was accepted.

Last June she finished her associate degree program at CCRI and transferred to Rhode Island College.

At the college she is planning to major in communications and public relations and minor in management. She works part time in the college's personnel office.

Her ambition is to someday have a position with a multi-national company which can utilize her bi-cultural background and which will allow her to travel.

Has it been worth all it has taken to get this far, a reporter asks Maria.

The reply is an emphatic YES followed by an observation.

"A job is to survive. Education is never a waste of time. I will continue it as long as I am able," she says with quiet conviction.

The Anchor

Rhode Island College's newspaper
by and for students
CALL: 456-8280

Keeping Score

with Dave Kemmy

Wrestlers hit the mat

The Anchormen wrestling squad open their season November 14 at the Ithaca College Tournament in Ithaca, New York.

The squad is coming off the finest season in school history, which saw the grapplers place third in the New England Championships and crown two champions. Both champions, 118-pounder Scott Martin and 167-pounder Carmine DiPietro return this year and both should lead the squad once again.

Martin captured the New England varsity title as well as the New England sub-varsity title in a rare situation where he upset the Anchormen's top wrestler in a wrestle-off and promptly went on to beat an All-American in the New England's, capturing the title as a freshman.

DiPietro has had a fine career and really put it all together last year, posting a 9-3-1 record. He will serve as a co-captain this season.

Five other starters also return, including three All-New England performers. Senior co-captain Bob Lepre finished third in the New England's at 150 pounds, Wayne Griffin placed third at 190 pounds and Bob San sophomore Stoney Godet and freshman Paul Hackney grappling for the spot. The consensus is that both will probably see action there.

With such a powerful line-up there are bound to be tough wrestlers waiting in the wings. Included in this group are Al "Junior" Baker, a former New England Champ at URI who could see action at 167 or 177 and Joey Amato and excellent freestyle wrestler who becomes eligible second semester.

Other returning wrestlers who should help include Glenn Conway, Eric Schneiderhan, Joe Signore and Steve Carlson. Several newcomers who will also help include junior Eric Paquet and freshmen John Forcino, Mike Barry, Curtis Carlsten, Joe Leville and Todd Howard.

The squad's schedule is as tough as usual, but Coach Rusty Carlsten and Assistant Coach Tim Clouse are eagerly waiting for their grapplers to take the mat.

The men's cross country squad placed 20th in the New England Championships held November 1 at Franklin Park in

CARMINE DIPIETRO

Juan placed fourth at 118 pounds two seasons ago. Lepre and Griffin will wrestle in the same weight classes this year and San Juan is slated to wrestle at 126 pounds.

Sophomore Kevin Higgins went 11-3 at 126 last year and will wrestle at 134 pounds this campaign. The other returning starter is sophomore Paul Laprocina, who posted a 4-3 record at 177 pounds, but is nursing a shoulder injury and probably won't start the season.

The remaining weight classes are wide open with the staunchest battle coming at 142 pounds. Senior John Palumbo, junior John DiFruscio, sophomore Jeff Roberts and freshman Rich Swanson and Sean Sullivan are all vying for the top spot and all have legitimate shots at earning the spot.

Sophomore Jeff Kirwan seems to have the 158 pound slot locked up, but there is a battle looming at heavyweight with

SCOTT MARTIN

Boston.

Sophomore sensation Jim Bowden continued his fine running, finishing 45th and setting a new Rhode Island College record on the course with a time of 25:57.

Jesus Berrio was the next Anchorman to finish, coming in 78th in 26:32. Lynn Cousineau finished 100th in 26:52, Mark Cousineau placed 156th in 27:19, Lenny Harmon placed 182nd in 28:41, Steve Ryone finished 210th in 30:44 and Joe Contreras finished 217th in 32:51.

Thirty-five teams competed in the meet, Boston University took the team title with 37 points, the Anchormen were the eighth Division III team with 561 points.

The men harriers will be competing in the New England Division III championships on November 8 at Franklin Park and the women harriers will be at the ECAC championships on November 8 at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Other Places

Bad week for mascots

(CPS) University of Iowa officials reported "someone" — adding they wouldn't accuse University of Wisconsin students directly — stole a four-foot high "Herky the Hawk" mascot sculpture from the campus.

Other vandals stole a seven foot tall, 200 lb. stuffed Alaskan Kodiak bear — a campus symbol — from its Cal-Berkeley display case, leaving only an "Animal on Board" sticker in its place.

At Florida Atlantic University students stole a bust of FAU founder Thomas Fleming, resolving in a ransom note to keep it until the school put Royal Crown Cola in campus vending machines, bought a copier that worked, and agreed to use "real cheese on the cafeteria pizza."

Dropping Courses

Amid much faculty and administrative complaint, Louisiana's board of regents recently said budget problems "regretfully" forced it to drop 218 college degree programs — including linguistics, chemical physics and anthropology — from various state campus course offerings.

Dropping Open Admissions

Montana State University and the University of Montana will probably have to drop their open admissions policies, and impose admissions standards to help save money, Carol Krausse, the state's commissioner of higher education suggested.

The schools no longer have money to pay for the remedial courses needed for some students who enroll under open admissions, he said.

College alumna will perform:

Joanne Mouradjian to appear in chamber series Nov. 19

JOANNE MOURADJIAN

Lyric soprano Joanne Mouradjian, an alumna of Rhode Island College, will perform in the college's chamber music series on Nov. 19.

Mouradjian will appear at 2 p.m. in room 138 of Roberts Hall. She will be accompanied by pianist Diana Smirnov.

Mouradjian's program will include selections from G. F. Handel, J.S. Bach, Carlos Pedrell, Gomidas, P. Ganatchian, K. Alemshah and W.A. Mozart.

This past summer Mouradjian studied at Tanglewood with Phyllis Curtin.

She holds the master of vocal performance degree from Boston University and was elected to membership in the national musical honor society, Pi Kappa Lambda.

In March 1985 she was presented by the Armenian Prelacy at Carnegie Recital Hall in a program of works by Armenian composers.

Mouradjian has appeared as an oratorio soloist with the Rhode Island Civic Chorale, the Providence Singers, Swanhurst Chorus, Sippican Chamber Orchestra, Rhode Island College Chorus and the Greater New Bedford Chorale Society.

She has also offered numerous recitals and chamber music concerts in the New England area.

Mouradjian has taught voice at Southeastern Massachusetts University, Rhode Island College and in her private studio.

At Rhode Island College she was presented the Cantor Jacob Hohenemser Award as the outstanding graduating senior in music.

Mouradjian is a soloist at the Mathewson Street United Methodist Church and Temple Beth-El, both in Providence.

Performances in the chamber series are free and open to the public. For more information call 456-8244.

In Bannister Gallery:

Award-winning graphic art goes on view Nov. 13

An exhibition of award-winning graphic art from the 1986 competition held by the Art Directors Club of Boston opens with a reception in Rhode Island College's Bannister Gallery on Thursday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. The show will remain on display through Nov. 26.

To be considered for an award any New England-based organization having to do with the coordination, creation or production of visual communication design could enter works produced and/or created between Jan. 1, 1985 and Dec. 31, 1985.

Entries were judged for their effectiveness as communication vehicles as well as for design and aesthetic qualities.

This show marks the 45th anniversary of the founding of the Art Directors Club of Boston.

Judges for the contest were James Cross, principal owner of a design firm, Cross Associates; Katherine McCoy, co-chairman of the department of design at Cranbrook Academy of Art; Paula Scher, a founding partner of Koppel & Scher; Ron Sullivan, co-founder of Sullivan and Perkins, a creative services firm; Henry Wolf, owner of his own design and photography studio and magazine designer, and Tom Wolsey, vice president and art supervisor at Ally and Gargano.

All entries which were accepted into the Design Show received at least a merit award. In addition, awards of distinctive merit, silver, and gold could be granted in any category. Categories included such areas as visual identity, collateral/sales promotion, advertising, editorial, cover design, illustration, photography, etc.

Seven-hundred and sixty-four entries were accepted for the show.

John DeMelim, professor of art at Rhode Island College, coordinated and sponsored the show's exhibition at the college.

RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE Rhode Island's Center for the PERFORMING ARTS

ALUMNI ACHIEVER. At recent reception for alumni featured in exhibit for inauguration of President Carol J. Guardo, San Francisco Opera apprentice Diane Alexander catches up on news of the college with Vice President John S. Foley. Alexander will perform here with the American Band on Jan. 11.

Calendar of Events

Nov. 10 - Nov. 17

Monday, Nov. 10

R.I. Medical Center to recruit. Positions available for nurses. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

Noon, Mass. Student Union, room 304.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. Student Union, room 305.

1:30 to 3:30 p.m.—Disability Support Group to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127. Open to all students. For further information call 456-8061.

Tuesday, Nov. 11

Veterans Day. The college will be closed.

Wednesday, Nov. 12

1 to 2 p.m.—"Date Rape" to be the topic of a talk by Nina Perales of the R.I. Rape Crisis Center. Horace Mann, room 192. Sponsored by the Rhode Island College Women's Center.

Roger Williams General Hospital to recruit. Positions available for nurses. Office of Career Services, Craig Lee, room 054.

Noon to 1 p.m.—History Department Luncheon Colloquium. Christopher Lyden of WGBH in Boston to speak on "Censorship and the American Media." Gaige Hall, room 207.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Weight Loss Guidance Program. Kit Gallagher, a registered dietician, will run the program. Faculty Center. Free. Open to the Rhode Island College campus community. For more information call 456-8061.

Noon to 2 p.m.—Disability Support Group to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127.

12:30 p.m.—AIESEC weekly meeting. AIESEC is the International Association of Students in Economics and Business Management. Alger, room 216A.

12:30 p.m.—American Marketing Association general meeting. Alger Hall, room 215.

12:30 p.m.—Interviewing Skills Workshop to be offered by the Office of Career Services. Craig-Lee, room 054. Open to Rhode Island College students and alumni. Participation is limited, so it is necessary to sign up in advance. For more information call 456-8031.

12:30 to 1:30 p.m.—Al-anon and Adult Children of Alcoholics to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127. Sponsored by the Office of Health Promotion.

1 to 2 p.m.—Anchor Christian Fellowship. Weekly meeting. Student Union, room 322.

1 to 2 p.m.—General Information Session for students interested in the Cooperative Education Program. Alumni House, second floor. For more information call 456-8134.

5 p.m.—Volleyball Game. English Club members vs. English department faculty. Whipple Gym. Students who would like to participate can call 456-8027 for further information.

Wednesday-Thursday, Nov. 12-13
Noon—Mass. Student Union, room 304.

Thursday, Nov. 13

Rhode Island Hospital to recruit. Position available for nurses. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

Sansiveri, Ryan, Sullivan and Co. to recruit. Staff accountant position available. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

Noon to 4 p.m.—Feature films to be presented by the Philosophy Club. Suggested donation: $1 general, 50¢ students. Philosophy Lounge, Fogarty Life Science, room 120. Open to all.

7 to 9 p.m.—The Design Show to open. The exhibit will feature works by the Gold and Silver Award winners of the Art Directors Club's graphic design competition. Bannister Gallery, Art Center. Gallery hours: Monday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday evenings 6 to 9 p.m. Exhibit on display through November 26.

9 p.m.—Rock band the Blind Dates to perform. Admission: $4 general, $2 Rhode Island College students. Student Union ballroom.

Thursday-Saturday, Nov. 13-15
Rhode Island College Theatre to present William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet. Roberts Hall auditorium. Admission: $5 general; $4 faculty/staff, non-Rhode Island College students, senior citizens; $2.50 Rhode Island College students. Tickets may be purchased at the Box Office in Roberts Hall. There will also be a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m. on November 16. For more information call 456-8144.

Friday, Nov. 14

Kolburne School to recruit. Position available for special education teachers. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

Friday-Saturday, Nov. 14-15

2 p.m.—Wrestling. Rhode Island College at the Ithaca College Tournament. Ithaca, N.Y.

Saturday, Nov. 15

11 a.m.—Women's Fencing. Rhode Island College vs. Hunter College and Wellesley College. Home.

11 a.m. to 5 p.m.—College Satellite Retreat to be conducted by Anthony DeMello, S.J., an internationally known author and retreat director. McVinney Auditorium, Providence. For further information call the Chaplains' Office at 456-8168.

Sunday, Nov. 16

10 a.m.—Sunday Mass. Student Union, room 304.

7 p.m.—Sunday Evening Mass. Browne Hall, upper lounge.

Monday, Nov. 17

10 a.m.—Career Decision Making Workshop to be offered by the Office of Career Services. Craig-Lee, room 054. Open to Rhode Island College students and alumni. Participation is limited, so it is necessary to sign up in advance. For more information call 456-8031.

Noon—Mass. Student Union, room 304.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. Student Union, room 305.

1:30 to 3:30 p.m.—Disability Support Group to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127.