AT RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE

2nd annual job fair here
Oct. 26

The Rhode Island College Office of Career Services will be holding its second annual Job Fair on Wednesday, October 26 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Reflecting the diversity of the College's students and curriculum, approximately 60 employers from a variety of different fields are expected to participate. These include human services agencies, insurance and financial service firms, public school districts, corporations and retail businesses, hospitals and state and federal government agencies.

While many employers will be receiving resumes and some will be distributing applications, the tone of a job fair is mainly informational. Students and alumni are encouraged to spend time talking with employers.

The Rhode Island College Job Fair will afford visitors an opportunity to ask any questions they may have about a specific organization or more general questions about career areas. Thus, this kind of event can be useful for the undecided freshman as well as the senior who is beginning to look for his or her first professional placement.

College to celebrate 30 years on this site

Rhode Island College will mark its 30th year on the Mt. Pleasant campus on October 26 with a full day of activities, ranging from a formal academic convocation to a '50s sock hop.

The mid-day convocation in Gaige Hall includes a guest appearance by former president William C. Gaige, who presided over the formal dedication of the new campus thirty years ago to the day.

The convocation will also feature the awarding of an honorary degree to Eleanor M. McMahon, Commissioner of Higher Education, who is resigning from that post to join the faculty at Brown University as a professor of public policy. McMahon is a former faculty member and Provost of the College.

The ten-member 30th Anniversary Planning Committee encourages all members of the campus community to note the date on their calendars and to anticipate a full schedule of activities marking the occasion. Using the theme "30 Something," the committee is planning events and activities to happen on the half hour several times throughout the day. Among the "happenings" planned for the day are:

- a colloquium (tentatively scheduled for 9:30 a.m.) featuring a panel of faculty members reflecting on campus life "then" (30 years ago) and "now."
- a slide show featuring images from Rhode Island College's past.
- an anniversary party featuring a cake cutting and a performance by the Henry Barnard Singers.
- a student debate on a 1950s topic.
- a sock hop for everyone (faculty, staff, students, alumni, friends of the College), featuring a "video disk jockey" playing music from the '50s to the '80s. Rumors have it that prizes will be awarded for the best '50s costume.

Members of the 30th Anniversary Planning Committee are: Jim Bierden, Rob Bower, Doug Cureton, Mark Estrin, Caro-

Reamer is Thorp Professor

Cited for social work research, scholarship

Frederic G. Reamer, a professor of social work whose research on social issues has had an impact on state government as well as the classroom, has been named this year's Thorp Professor in the Rhode Island College School of Social Work.

Reamer, who resides in Pawtucket with his wife, Dr. Deborah Siegel, was presented a plaque and cash award in a Sept. 9 school ceremony upon the announcement of his selection by a review committee.

As the Thorp Professor, he will give the annual Thorp Lecture in the Schools of Social Work/Education and Human Development in the spring.

The Thorp Professorship honors a faculty member who has distinguished him or herself and the College with research and scholarship. The professorship honors the contributions of Mary Tucker Thorp whose illustrious career at the College spanned the time period 1926-67.

He was "certainly an obvious choice" for the 1988-89 Thorp Professorship for research and scholarship, says Dr. George D. Metrey, dean of the school, who cited some of Reamer's publications over the past three years which came as the result of his scholarly research.

Among his published writings are a book on Rehabilitating Juvenile Justice and numerous articles in professional journals such as "The Crisis of Affordable Housing: Implications for Social Work," "AIDS and Ethics: The Agenda for Social Workers" and "Social Workers and Unions: Ethical Dilemmas."

In addition to his writing, Reamer has played a key role in forming state policy on the issue of affordable housing. Governor DiPrete had named him chair of the Governor's Human Services Advisory Council in 1985 which carried the task of undertaking a comprehensive study of housing problems in Rhode Island.

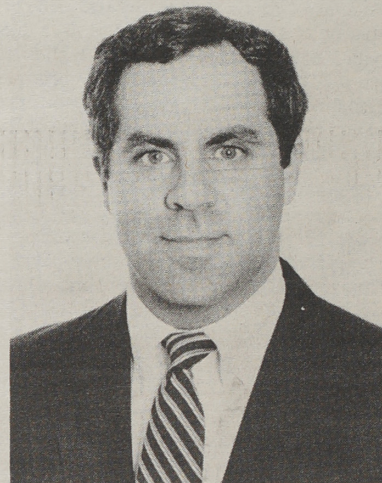

He served as chair until 1987 and is now a member of the council.

Reamer also serves as a senior policy advisor in the Office of the Governor and commissioner of the Rhode Island Housing and Mortgage Finance Corporation (RIHMF), both under 1987 appointments.

Metrey notes that Reamer's "excellence in research and scholarship has enhanced his teaching" in the classroom as well.

A 1974 graduate of the Institute of Criminal Justice and Criminology of the University of Maryland at College Park, Reamer received a master's degree from the Division of Social Sciences at the University of Chicago and a Ph.D. from Chicago's School of Social Service Administration.

Prior to joining the Rhode Island College faculty as an associate professor in 1983, he served as an assistant professor at the University of Missouri at Columbia for two years and at the University of Chicago for several years, part of that time as a research associate and teaching fellow.

The list of his related professional activities, both prior to his coming to Rhode Island and since then, is extensive as is the list of his published works which includes two books, book reviews, research monographs and scholarly articles.

He has given numerous conference presentations and keynote speeches.

He is member of the editorial boards of Health and Social Work, a publication of the National Association of Social Workers, and the Journal of Independent Social Work, as well as a consulting editor of the Journal of Social Work Education, and holds membership in numerous professional societies.

Enrollment up 5% here

Rhode Island College reports a measurable increase in the number of students enrolled this fall, according to figures just released.

The overall headcount this year is 8,433 students, up five percent over last year.

College officials reported that using comparable enrollment figures from previous years, this fall's enrollment is the highest in total count since 1980.

They attribute the increase this year over last year to an increase in the number of graduate students enrolled (16.8 percent), an increase in the number of undergraduate continuing education students (6.2 percent) and somewhat smaller increases in other categories.

The increase in the number of graduate students is largely attributable to the renewed interest in teacher education and a modest growth in the Master of Social Work program.

"The 1988 (enrollment) result positions Rhode Island College to confront continuing demographic challenges of the next four to five years," said Dr. Carol J. Guardo, president.

Projections of the number of Rhode Island high school graduates, who annually enter the pool of prospective college students, show that declines can be expected into the 1990s.

"We must continue serious retention (of students) efforts and competitive admissions strategies," Guardo advised.

She also noted that the swing upwards in enrollment this year places added stress on the College's ability to house all students who wish to reside on the campus, once again causing a temporary doubling-up situation in the residence halls, and puts renewed pressure on the College to add to its resident capacity.

Dr. Carol J. Guardo, president, was elected to a three-year term on the Board of Directors of the Greater Providence Chamber of Commerce at its September meeting.

Robert M. Boberg, professor of music, recently had his arrangements for piano, "Christmas Favorites for 1 Piano and 2, 4, or 6 Hands," published by the Boston Music Company. The work, which includes popular carols, is intended as teaching material for younger children, providing experiences in ensemble playing on one piano. Each carol may be played by just one person, or as a duet with a bass part, as a duet with a treble part, or as a trio with all three parts. The final selection is "Christmas Quodlibet," following the age-old practice of combining many different melodies at the same time.

Donald C. Smith, professor of art, will be represented in an "Invitational Landscape" show at the Duxbury Art Complex in Duxbury, Mass. He is one of seven painters from the Southern New England area whose works will be on display. About eight of Smith's works, done last spring in Italy and the Jamestown area, are included. The show opened Sept. 14 and will run for four weeks.

Dr. R.N. Keogh, director of research and grants administration, has been named to the 10-member Region I/II Program Committee of the National Council of University Research Administrators (NCURA). The committee will establish the agenda and program for April's regional meeting of NCURA in New York City. NCURA is the largest and reportedly the most influential organization representing the research interests of most American universities, colleges and hospitals. Keogh had been nominated to the post by Dr. Steven Erickson, head of sponsored research at Harvard University.

Iranian journalist to address Amnesty International group

Reja Jelali, an Iranian journalist and former political prisoner who credits Amnesty International (AI) for his release, will address members of local chapters of AI at Brown University's Barus Holly Building 168 on Monday, Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

His talk is open to the public. For further information call 456-8168.

Marriage preparation classes

Chaplain's Office will offer Preparation for Marriage classes at Rhode Island College on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 5 and 6 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Student Union.

Engaged couples should plan to be at both sessions, advises the Rev. Robert A. Marcantonio, chaplain, who suggests that the classes be completed at least six months before the wedding.

While these classes fulfill requirements for marriage within the Catholic Church, he suggests that engaged couples view the weekend as an opportunity to spend time together, away from the pressures of wedding details, to talk about their future marriage.

"Some couples may feel as if they have discussed many topics already," says Father Marcantonio, but the time spent communicating with each other during the classes is a "valuable way of expressing one's love and clarifying perceptions and assumptions."

The theme of the weekend is "communication."

"Spouses' love for one another must be communicated regularly if a marriage is to succeed. Various events will occur in the course of the marriage over which one has little control.

"Communication skills are essential to meeting the demands of those situations. A wedding ceremony by itself cannot produce 'happy ever after'," says the chaplain, who will coordinate the weekend activities along with several married couples from the community.

Applications are available from the Chaplains' Office in the Student Union, Room 300. Registration should be completed as soon as possible to ensure a place as the classes are limited to 20 couples.

Preference will be given to Rhode Island College students and graduates. The next set of classes will be in the spring.

Research and Grants Administration:

Request for proposals

The Office of Research and Grants Administration will be providing information about requests for proposals (RFPs) on a regular basis in this column. Anyone interested in obtaining further information or applications and guidelines need only circle the number of the RFP on the coupon below and send it to the office in Roberts 312.

1. American Council of Learned Societies: Grants-in-Aid in the Humanities. Grants are awarded to advance specific significant humanistic research in progress by contributing to the scholar's essential personal expenses such as travel, research or clerical assistance, and reproduction or purchase of materials. The maximum award is $3,000. DEADLINE: Dec. 15.

2. American Political Science Association: Congressional Fellowship Program. Between 40 and 50 fellowships will be awarded for nine-month internship assignments in Congressional offices beginning in November of each year. Political scientists near completion or within 15 years of the doctorate are eligible; mid-career faculty on sabbatical leave are encouraged to apply. Stipends of $20,000 may be supplemented with university support. DEADLINE: Dec. 1.

3. Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution: Constitution Bicentennial Educational Grant Program. Supports grants from $5,000 to $75,000 for the development of instructional materials, conferences and institutes that strengthen the ability of elementary and secondary school teachers to teach the principles and history of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. In FY 89 projects should emphasize the development of the executive and judiciary branches, relationships between two or more branches, and the doctrine of separation of powers. DEADLINE: Nov. 14.

4. Corporation for Public Broadcasting: Annenberg Grants. Two project categories are funded: Materials Development Projects support the development of course materials to assist students unable to attend classes on a full-time basis in obtaining a liberal arts or science baccalaureate degree; and Telecommunications Demonstration Projects support new approaches to the uses of telecommunications technologies in teaching and learning. Proposals that focus on difficult subjects to teach (i.e., science, math, and cultural understanding) are particularly welcome. Deadline cited is for preliminary proposal. DEADLINE: Dec. 27.

5. Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation: Harry S. Truman Scholarships. Provides scholarships of up to $6,800 per year to college juniors preparing for careers in public service. Up to three candidates may be nominated by any college or university. Deadline cited is for receipt of all documentation in support of nominations. DEADLINE: Dec. 1.

6. U.S. Department of Education: Fulbright Seminars Abroad. Provides opportunities for faculty teaching undergraduate humanities or social sciences courses to participate in short-term summer seminars focused on the history and/or culture of specified countries. Participants are expected to share their broadened knowledge of the host country with their students, colleagues and communities upon their return. Awards usually cover travel, tuition and living costs. In FY 89, around $1 million is available for awards. DEADLINE: Dec. 5.

7. W. K. Kellogg Foundation: National Fellowship Program. Up to 50 three-year awards are made annually to support individuals of exceptional merit who are at the early stages of their professional careers. Fellows carry out non-degree, interdisciplinary, self-directed activities (e.g., workshops, short courses, consultations, independent investigations and appropriate travel) to expand their personal horizons beyond their chosen professions. Awards will not be made for research within an applicant's discipline or profession. DEADLINE: Dec. 19.

8. National Science Foundation: Informal Science Education Program. Supports projects that focus on personal interactive learning of science, mathematics, and technology outside the formal educational system. A variety of media are supported including broadcasting, museums, clubs and other sources of direct science experience. Projects that are both cost effective and mutually reinforcing and that serve the needs of a wide spectrum of age groups and interests are encouraged. DEADLINE: Dec. 1.

9. National Science Foundation: Undergraduate Faculty Enhancement. Supports regional or national seminars, short courses, workshops, or similar activities for groups of faculty members outside the grantee institution to learn about new techniques and developments in the fields of science, engineering and mathematics in an effort to improve their undergraduate teaching abilities. Proposals for projects to begin during the summer of 1989 should be submitted by 10/14/88. Proposals for projects to begin after the summer of 1989 should be submitted by 3/3/89. DEADLINE: Oct. 14.

10. Research Corporation: Cottrell College Science Grants. Supports original research in non-Ph.D. granting department of chemistry, physics, astronomy and related areas in the life sciences that will lead to significant contributions to the body of scientific knowledge and enhance undergraduate participation in research-oriented teaching programs. The emphasis is on initiatory funding. If necessary, equipment, supplies, summer stipends and travel will be supported. Proposals should be received four to six months prior to the March and October advisory committee meetings. DEADLINE: Dec. 1.

11. National Research Council: Ford Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities. Provides opportunities for continued education and experience in research for native American Indians, Black Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanos, native Pacific Islanders, and Puerto Ricans. Fellows are selected from among scientists, engineers, and scholars in the humanities who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education. DEADLINE: Jan. 13, 1989.

Fall Teams Off to a Good Start

A couple of the fall sports teams have jumped out to fine starts as Rhode Island College athletes began competition all over New England.

The women's tennis team began their season in North Easton, Mass. with a 5-4 decision over Stonehill College. The Anchorwomen have also defeated Bridgewater State College 8-1 and Westfield State College 5½-3½.

Number one player Deb Donahue, number three player Kathy Gray and freshman Patricia Valkoun are all unbeaten in singles play. Donahue, Kathy Burns and Valkoun are all undefeated in doubles action.

The Anchorwomen placed fifth in the recent RIAIAW Championships at the University of Rhode Island. Kathy Burns had a splendid meet, capturing top honors in the first singles flight. Kristen Schwartz placed fourth in the second singles flight and the doubles team of Donahue and Gray tied for third place in the first doubles flight.

The netwomen are home Saturday, Oct. 8, in a tri-meet with Southern Connecticut State University and Fairfield University beginning at 10 a.m.

The women's volleyball team is off to a 4-4 start even though they have yet to play a home contest.

They finished in second place in the Roger Williams College Invitational Tournament with a 3-2 record. Sophomores Debbie Allen and Andrea Nelson were named to the All-Tournament team in their first tournament appearances for the College.

Two of the team's losses have come against two perennial New England powers, Division II New Haven and Division III Eastern Connecticut.

Juniors Maureen McKay and Lisa Sweet have played well for the Anchorwomen as have Allen and Nelson.

The team's first home game is Thursday, Oct. 6, against the United States Coast Guard Academy at 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, they host the Rhode Island College Invitational meet beginning at 10 a.m. in Walsh Gym.

The men's soccer team has a deceiving 0-5 record to date. The young Anchormen have played a difficult early season schedule with no seniors on the team and a bunch of freshmen and sophomores.

The team has played much better of late, however. In their fifth game of the year the squad dropped a 2-1 decision to Westfield State College, who was ranked 19th in the country in Division III at the time. The Anchormen played a superb game, perhaps the finest the team has played in the past five seasons! They have also lost to Eastern Connecticut 5-2 and to Bryant College by a 4-2 score in double overtime.

Junior Peter Connell is the team's top scorer with two goals and two assists. Junior James Olsen is next with a goal and an assist, Bob Izzo and Joe Potermri have a goal apiece and sophomores Thom Cafaro and Scott Sutherland each have an assist.

PETER CONNELL

Freshman goalkeeper Frank Kowalik has played well the last two games. He is alternating in net with junior Tony Furtado who is also coming along nicely. Fullbacks John Foley, Jim Peters and Rick Peters have also put things together well on the backline and the team should continue to improve each and every game.

The Anchormen play Salve Regina College at home Tuesday, Oct. 4, at 3:30 p.m.

The women's cross country squad defeated Stonehill College in their only dual meet so far. The women harriers also placed 12th in the Southeastern Mass. Invitational.

Sophomore Carolyn Walsh was the first place finisher in the Stonehill dual. Leslie Cabral finished third, Lisa D'Antuono was fourth, Mary Beth Cousineau was fifth and Heidi Perrin finished sixth.

The team hosts the Tri-State Conference Championships Saturday, Oct. 8, at Roger Williams Park beginning at 11 a.m.

The men's cross country squad placed 15th in the Bryant Invitational, but failed to register a team score in the Southeastern Mass. meet.

Freshman Keven O'Neil has been impressive in the early going. He finished fourth in the Bryant meet and third at SMU. Other runners to look for include Jim Dandeneau, David Menard, James Onoyan and freshman Brian O'Malley.

The men harriers will be hosting the Tri-State Conference Championships at Roger Williams Park on Saturday, Oct. 8, beginning at 11 a.m.

The baseball team is in the midst of their fall schedule and have played very well so far.

The team has a couple of one-run losses to Division I Providence College. They host the Community College of Rhode Island on Wednesday, Oct. 5, at 3:15 p.m. and the annual Blue/White alumni game will be played Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 3:15 p.m.

DIANA LASKIN SIEGAL and PAULA BROWN DORESS

Ourselves, Growing Older authors to lecture here in women's series

"Women Aging with Knowledge and Power" will be the topic of Diana Siegal and Paula Doress, authors of Ourselves, Growing Older, in the next entry in the lecture series "Women's Bodies, Women's Minds" on Wednesday, Oct. 19, from 7 to 8 p.m. in the Rhode Island College Faculty Center, south dining room.

Siegal and Doress, who recently founded a company in Brighton, Mass., called Partnership for Health, wrote Ourselves, Growing Older as the complete health and living handbook for midlife and older women.

Following in the ground-breaking tradition of Our Bodies, Ourselves, the authors address the special needs of the growing number of women over age 35.

"Ourselves, Growing Older invites women to understand and assume responsibility for their own bodies," addressing such concerns as contraception and childbearing at midlife, sexuality in the middle and later years and menopause, says Dr. Maureen T. Reddy, coordinator of the Women's Studies Program.

Reddy notes that the lecture should be of interest to many women in the Greater Providence community for two reasons: (1) issues in older women's health care are currently much discussed and debated and (2) Doress and Siegal's book received excellent reviews and has become quite popular.

Siegal's professional work has been in health planning and administration, especially in public health and cancer control programs. Always a consumer advocate and program developer, she started the Cancer Information Service in Massachusetts.

She has resided in Boston and Kansas; was a wife and mother in the 1950s, a widow in the 1960s, and a single working parent in the 1970s. In the 1980s, she is a working woman and the only child of aging parents.

Doress' professional work has been centered in the women's movement.

She was a founding member of the Boston Women's Health Collective and also co-author of Ourselves and Our Children.

She is credited with being a pioneer in the development of women's studies courses at the college level. Doress holds a master's degree in women's studies and is working toward a Ph.D. in psychology with research focus on women's issues.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

The lecture series is being presented by the College Lectures Committee and the Women's Studies Program and sponsored by the departments of English, psychology, counseling and educational psychology, and the Gerontology Program.

The next entry in the series is "Women and Depression: Current Treatment and Controversies" on Nov. 18.

New traffic and parking enforcement procedures

New procedures for the collection of traffic violation fines have been instituted by the state Administration Adjudication Division (AAD), reports Dr. John Nazarian, vice president for administration and finance.

This represents a departure from the current process of paying fines at the College Security and Safety Office.

Further, there are new sanctions which may result in the suspension of one's driver's license if traffic and parking tickets are not attended to promptly and appropriately.

The new procedures are as follows:

1) Effective Date: Effective Oct. 1, all violations issued on the Rhode Island College campus will be processed through the AAD which is located at 345 Harris Ave. in Providence. All records relating to traffic and parking violations will be turned over to the AAD for processing. Payment for violations issued after the above date may be paid by mail.

2) License Suspension: A violator who does not pay his/her fine and who has not requested a "not guilty" hearing will have his/her license, or the license of the owner of the vehicle, suspended. This will pertain to all vehicles, whether registered in Rhode Island or any other state.

If any member of the College community has a question about this new procedure, please do not hesitate to contact Richard Comerford, director of Security and Safety, at Ext. 8201.

CARS PARKED ILLEGALLY on campus are subject to the above fate, according to Richard Comerford, director of security and safety. He notes that parking spaces should become more readily available as the semester wears on. (What's News Photo by Gordon E. Rowley)

MUCH ACCLAIMED 'B-Boy Portraits' by Coreen Simpson are at Bannister Gallery.

Photographic exhibit marks Bannister's 10th anniversary

"A Small Voice" will be the theme of a photographic exhibit/program celebrating the tenth anniversary of Rhode Island College's Bannister Gallery, October 6 to 27. Six photographers will show 12 print essays and discuss their projects in three visiting-artist sessions, to be held on successive Thursdays at 2 p.m.

On October 6, Roland Freeman of Washington, D.C. will discuss his Nigerian portfolio and Coreen Simpson will present aspects of her much acclaimed "B-Boy Portraits."

On October 13, Dr. Philip Lieberman of Brown University will outline the dynamics of his Nepal series and Angelo Marinosci of Warren will discuss an essay shot in the Guatemalan highlands.

On October 20, Professor Byron Shurtleff of the University of Delaware will explain the role of photography in his Coast Watch Project and Professor Daniel Williams of Ohio University will discuss the evolution of his "Emancipation Celebrations" portfolio.

The visiting artists will be in attendance at special evening receptions in Bannister Gallery on the days of their exhibit/programs.

Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday 6 to 9 p.m.

Eastern Brass Quintet here in chamber music recital Oct. 19

Eastern Brass Quintet, which "ranks with the top brass ensembles in this country today," according to the New York Times, will perform in the Oct. 19 entry of the Rhode Island College Chamber Music Series.

Time of the recital is 1 p.m. in Roberts Hall 138. All students, faculty and staff are invited as are members of the community at large. The recital is free of charge.

Their performance will include works by Bach, Scott Joplin, Michael Praetorius and Thom Ritter George.

The quintet, with members coming from New York City and New Haven, Conn., formed 18 years ago and "immediately brought the best in brass music and performance to American audiences," says their promotional literature.

"After a thousand concerts and three widely acclaimed recordings, the quintet is still dazzling audiences with the same sound and showmanship that has earned it popularity since 1970.

"The depth of the ensemble's appeal derives from its sensitivity to diverse styles, for they deliver works of Bach with intelligence and spirituality, while offering the works of Joplin with buoyancy and grace," it says.

Ensemble members are Richard Green and Jeffrey Curnow on trumpet; Theodore Toupin, trombone; Peter Reit, horn, and Marcus Rojas, tuba.

For more information call John Pellegrino, associate professor of music and series coordinator, at 456-9504.
