Rhode Island College of Education

PURPOSE

Rhode Island College of Education is maintained for the purpose of providing efficient teachers for the schools of the State.

The Need for Trained Teachers

For many years this State has been training teachers in large numbers, and has been getting others from other states. It has learned the value of having efficient teachers in all its schools, and the folly of wasting the time and the birthright of the children through unskilled teaching. Now the country as a whole has been aroused to the fact that less than half of all the children are under the instruction of adequately trained teachers. The sudden demand from every section has meant increased salaries, in every state, inability to draw from other states, and an increased loss of excellent teachers from Rhode Island to all parts of the country. It will be many years before the need is adequately met.

To a well-trained teacher the field is open. Opportunity is offered for a life of greatest usefulness and for recognition in any part of the country as a professional educator.

The Practical Nature of an Education for Teaching

An education designed for the training of teachers is of necessity practical.

1. It is based on mastery of the fundamentals,—a mass of educative material usually accepted as the visible mark of an educated person, but too often neglected in the haste to enter new fields of learning.

2. It begins with an analysis of the process of learning. The student of the art of teaching becomes proficient also in the art of learning.

3. It is more than a study about something. It carries with it at all times the practical application of the study. Students must learn to do and to be as well as to think and to know.

4. Its subject matter has to do with the ideas and ideals of everyday life.

5. It develops initiative, resourcefulness, and leadership.

6. It gives an art that is essential in all professions. Whatever one wishes to accomplish with or through others, he is successful in securing the desired results in proportion as he knows how to teach.

7. It carries with it an assurance of success, not merely in the realm of study, but in making one's way in the world.

8. It gives a preparation for most significant usefulness in training the rising generation for citizenship, a profession that challenges the finest qualities of character and culture. No other calling offers greater opportunity for service to one's own generation and to the generations of the future.

Clinics and Laboratories

In order that the training may be as practical and thorough as possible, the College of Education maintains its educational clinics and laboratories, which are believed to be as important for its purposes as are the clinics and laboratories of the other professions.

The Henry Barnard School in the College Building, is used as a model school for purposes of observation and demonstration, and for the preliminary training of the student-teachers. In this school, from the beginning of their course to the end, students observe good teaching, and come into immediate contact with the children and with the details of their education. That this school is appreciated is shown by the fact that it has been visited by more than a thousand teachers and school officers each year for the past two years.

In all the cities of the State, and in most of the larger towns, training centers are maintained in which each student-teacher is given a regular school of full size, with an experienced critic teacher in charge of each group of two such rooms. Here the student remains to carry the pupils through the work of a full half-year.

Through no other part of the course does the student make such rapid strides as during the half-year of actual teaching in these schools. The system in use in Rhode Island differs to some extent from that in use in most of the other States. It is the result of progressive development through many years, and has been given high commendation by educational leaders throughout the country.

The Cost of an Education for Teaching

To residents of this State who give promise of becoming efficient teachers, Rhode Island offers, at a cost to itself of more than $250 per student per year, free tuition, free textbooks and supplies, and a generous share of the cost of transportation to those living at a distance of more than five miles from the College of Education, in return for an agreement to teach for at least two years in the schools of the State. That this agreement has been fully met is evidenced by the fact that the graduates of the past have taught an average of much more than ten years each, a condition that could have been met only by a body of truly successful and contented teachers.

Specialization in Different Fields

Students at the College of Education may receive special preparation for positions in kindergartens and primary grades, in the elementary grades, in the upper grammar grades, as teachers of selected subjects in the high schools, as librarians, or as principals, supervisors, or superintendents.

The Courses of Study

Junior Course of Study—The Junior or general course of two and one-half years has been revised to establish even more definitely than in the past emphasis upon professional training for teaching. The distribution of instruction and study on a period or lecture basis is as follows:

I.	Educational Psychology.....	60	periods
	History of Education.....	40	"
	Principles of Education.....	40	"
	Elementary Education.....	40	"
	School or Class Management.....	40	"

	History, two courses.....	40	"
	Library Economy.....	20	"
	Science, two courses.....	80	" —260 periods
VII.	Training, one-half school year.

The Kindergarten-Primary Course.—Those who wish to teach only in the kindergarten or in the primary grades are given 500 periods in special preparation and kindergarten training in place of an equal amount of work in the regular course.

The Library Course.—Library students substitute 860 periods of library courses, as shown in the detailed outline, in place of an equivalent amount of work in the regular course.

The Co-operative Course.—Students may spend two years at the College of Education and two years at the State College, receiving at the end the degree Ed. B. from either institution. The two years at the College of Education will include all the regular courses in education and the half-year of practice teaching.

Course for College Graduates.—A one-year course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Education.

The Senior Course of Study.—Persons who have completed the junior course of study, including former graduates of Rhode Island Normal School, are eligible to entrance upon the new advanced or senior course of study leading on completion to graduation with the degree of Bachelor of Education. The combined junior and senior courses are planned for four years of regular attendance, although teachers having credit for summer school and extension courses may receive advanced standing, provided the credits are germane to requirements. Those who have completed the junior course, or who are graduates of normal schools elsewhere, should plan for a total of 320 hours for each semester needed to complete the four years required. Approximately one-half of the senior course consists of required work, distributed on an hour basis as follows:

Advanced educational psychology	80	hours
English literature	80	"
Economics	60	"
Sociology	60	"
Political science	60	"
Ethics	20	"
History of civilization	40	"
Health education	40	" —440 hours

The remainder of the senior course consists of elective studies, selection to be made after consultation with and subject to the approval of the President. The elective plan will permit either specialization with emphasis upon particular subjects, or a wider selection aiming at broader preparation for general teaching. The field of elective study is indicated in the following tentative list, readjustment and changes to be made as experience develops:

Theory and practice in the education of children from 3 to 7 years of age	80 hours
Genetic psychology	60 "
Mental diagnosis	60 "
History of American education	40 "

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Candidates must be at least seventeen years old, or must reach the age of seventeen before the end of the term in which they enter.

Each must present a written testimonial of moral character, a physician's statement certifying to good health and freedom from serious physical defects, a declaration of intention to complete a course of professional education, and certificate of graduation from an approved course in an approved high school, or satisfactory evidence of an equivalent education.

For the past two years, owing to reduced numbers and to the great need for teachers, entrance examinations have been omitted. For the year 1921-22 the number of students entering the College has been double that of previous years. From the resultant crowded condition, together with the fact that no added facilities can be provided in time to care for students who enter in September of 1922, the Trustees have been led to authorize a limitation of numbers through the resumption of the entrance examination.

This examination will consist of a two-hour test, to be given at 10 o'clock on Monday, June 26. The test will be modern and scientific, covering the practical fundamentals of an education, and calling for the quickness and accuracy of mental response necessary for successful teaching. The test should eliminate from the beginning those who would later prove unable to keep up with the regular class work and would drop out or require extra time for the completion of the course.

As a result of this examination it is expected that the entire quota of students to be admitted in September will be accepted at this time, and no further examination will be given until January, 1923, when students will be given an opportunity to enter with the February group. Those who wish to enter in September must take the June examination.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSE OF STUDY RECOMMENDED

The high school course to be chosen should, in general, be such as would be accepted for admission to the New England colleges, and should include the following:

An equivalent of the college requirements in English.

Successful study of one foreign language for at least two years.

Laboratory courses in physics and chemistry sufficient for the college entrance requirements.

At least two years of work in history.

The usual course in high school mathematics.

A review of arithmetic, grammar, physiology, history of the United States and of Rhode Island, and geography.

Some elementary training in music.

An equivalent of at least two periods a week for two years in drawing. In this subject there should be a reasonable degree of proficiency along the following lines:

Appearance drawing of common objects, either from the object or from memory.

Nature drawing in pencil, ink or color.

Scales of color in values and intensities.

Design as applied to book covers and other simple constructions.

Lettering and working drawing, both free-hand and mechanical.

History of ancient and modern art.

Students who have not had the physics and chemistry must take courses in these subjects at the College of Education.

Those who have not had the specified work in drawing in the high schools must take this as extra work at the College of Education.

Those who cannot read music easily must take a special course in music during the first semester.

REGULATIONS FOR FREE TUITION

No one can be admitted who does not agree to teach for at least two years in this State.

Residents of Rhode Island may participate in the distribution of the special fund for mileage if living at a distance of five miles or more from the College, —and may under stated conditions receive traveling expenses while in the training schools.

Form of Students Agreement

In consideration of my admission as a student to the Rhode College of Education and of the professional training afforded me therein, I hereby agree to teach in the public schools of Rhode Island for at least two years after having attended said school, unless excused therefrom by the Board of Trustees of said college. I declare in good faith that I fully expect to complete one of the prescribed courses of study in said school and to follow teaching as a regular occupation.

MILEAGE AND CAR FARES

The special fund for mileage is distributed as indicated above among the residents of the State who are entitled to free tuition. The amount each receives, up to a maximum of $80 a semester, is proportionate to the number of days attendance and to the distance the student must travel in coming from his home to the college. Students who reside less than five miles from the college are not entitled to mileage, unless this is ordered by the Committee on mileage for special reasons. One half of the annual appropriation for mileage is distributed at the end of each semester. Students boarding in Providence receive the same mileage as if they lived at home.

Student teachers assigned to training schools in places in which they reside receive no mileage, but may receive reimbursement for payment of car fares between their homes and Providence, or elsewhere, when such travel is required by the college.

Student teachers not residing in Providence and assigned to training schools in that city are entitled to mileage as when attending the college, but do not receive payment for car fares. Student teachers residing in Providence or the non-mileage zone and assigned to training schools in other towns are entitled to receive full remuneration for the payment of car fares between their homes and their training schools. Students whose assignments require them to come through Providence receive mileage as when attending the college and, in addition, are entitled to full remuneration for car fares from Providence to their training schools. It is expected that in other cases the student teachers will receive mileage or car fares not to exceed the cost of travel required by the college. No assignment can be made which will incur an expense of more than two dollars a week for car fares, exclusive of mileage, except by vote of the Trustees.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The college maintains no dormitory, but those who wish to board in the city will be aided in securing accommodations. Board usually costs from $5.00 to $8.00 per week. The president especially recommends the St. Maria Home on Governor Street and the Young Women's Christian Association on Washington Street. Students should consult the President before engaging board elsewhere, as they will be permitted to board only in places approved by him.

A school lunch room is maintained, subject to the general control of the President at which wholesome lunches may be obtained every school day. As part of the expense of the lunch room is borne by the college, the prices are kept at the lowest point consistent with good materials and efficient service.

Text-books and ordinary supplies are furnished to all students free.

EMPLOYMENT OF GRADUATES

The demand for professionally trained teachers is increasing, and, both for the good of the schools and for their own advantage, all who intend to teach in the public schools of Rhode Island are urged to prepare themselves in the Rhode Island College of Education. Graduates of this school easily find employment. The demand has always been greater than the supply.

School superintendents and members of school committees are cordially invited to visit the school and to consult with the President when in need of teachers for their schools.

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

A limited amount of aid may be given to students in the upper classes through the students loan fund. This fund, amounting to about $1200, has been given by graduating classes and alumni during the past few years. The fund is deposited with the State Treasurer.

The library facilities of Providence are unusually extensive. In addition to the large and carefully selected college library, there are at the service of the student the Providence Public Library, the Providence Athenaeum, the Library of the Rhode Island Historical Society, and the State Library.

The Providence Public Library offers to all students of the college, upon the same conditions as to the residents of the city, the use of its large and carefully chosen collection. Departments especially valuable to the college students are the Harris Collection on Slavery and the Civil War, the Educational Study-room, the "Standard Library" of best literature, the Reference Department, and the Children's Room. The library staff co-operates heartily in making known to the students the resources of the library, both by lectures to classes and by special assistance to individuals.

ADMISSION TO ADVANCED STANDING IN COLLEGE

Graduates from all courses in the Rhode Island College of Education may now secure admission to advanced standing in many colleges and universities, where they will receive due credit leading to degrees in education.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

Courses numbered from 1 to 30 are, unless otherwise stated, required of all students in the Junior Courses.

Numbers from 31 to 50 indicate required courses in the Senior Course.

Numbers above 50 are given to electives, a few of which may be taken either in the Junior or in the Senior Course.

Periods are 55 minutes in length.

The Biological Laboratory

LIBRARY SCIENCE

Students in the Library Training Course will take the following library courses together with selected parts of the regular Junior Course.

1. A brief outline of the more common books of reference found in school libraries. Special instruction in the use of the card catalog and in the arrangement of a library. For the use of the student while in college and in her future teaching. First semester; one hour. Elective in the regular course.

2. Cataloging and Subject Heading. Instruction in the making of a dictionary card catalog in alphabeting and in the ordering and using Library of Congress printed cards. Third semester; one hour of class work and two hours of practice work a week.

3. A continuation of Library Science 2. Fourth Semester; one hour of class work and two hours of practice work a week.

4. Classification. The Dewey Decimal Classification is studied as a basis for the arrangement of books on the shelves of both a public and a school library. Instruction is also given in accessioning, the assignment of book numbers, in shelf-listing, in the taking of inventory, and discarding. Third semester; one hour of class work and two hours of practical work a week.

5. A continuation of Library Science 4. Fourth semester; one hour of class work and two hours of practical work a week.

6. Reference. A study of standard works of reference, general and special dictionaries and encyclopedias, periodical indexes, handbooks, and manuals, with practical problems. Third semester; one hour.

7. Reference. Material relating to special subjects is examined with a view to its reference use by different types of readers. A continuation of Library Science 6. Fourth semester; one hour.

8. Book selection and book buying. The course aims to cultivate judgment in the appraisal of books, to give practice in the using and writing of book notes and reviews, and to call attention to various methods of practical book buying. Third and fourth semester; one hour a week.

9. Library Administration. Various topics relating to the management of libraries of several types are considered, such as buildings and equipment, rules and regulations, labor saving devices, publicity, etc. Fifth semester; four hours a week, including library visits.

10. Government Documents. A brief survey of federal, state and municipal publications, and document indexes. Emphasis is laid upon their selection, and their use and care as reference material. Fifth semester; two hours a week.

11. Special problems relating to the administration of school libraries, with visits. Fifth semester; averaging two hours a week.

12. Practical work under supervision, in assigned libraries. Includes the whole semester.

These courses may be open to those holding library positions or under appointment, and to teachers.

MANUAL ARTS

1. Penmanship. Practical work and methods of teaching. 1 hour, first semester.

2. Blackboard writing and elementary hand work. 1 hour, second semester.

3. Hand Work. Various problems of the handicrafts, according to the need of the students. 1 hour, third semester.

MATHEMATICS

1. History and Philosophy of Number. Rapid reviews of essentials. Discussion of the problems of the classroom. 4 hours, second semester.

51. Fundamentals of Arithmetic. History of arithmetic and of the teaching of arithmetic. An advanced course for teachers of upper grammar grades. 2 hours.

52. General Mathematics. A brief survey of the fundamentals of college mathematics. 4 hours a week.

53. Arithmetic of Commerce. Business methods, banking, exchange, finance, insurance. 2 hours a week.

MUSIC

6, 7, 8. Public School Music. A study of theory and its applications. Observation and practice. An elementary course in music appreciation. Methods of teaching music. 1 hour a week, first three semesters.

9. Chorus. One half hour a week throughout the course.

51. Music Appreciation, including history of music. 2 hours a week.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

1. Law and Government. A study of the relations of the citizen to the state and to his fellow citizens. Official public organization for government and administration of public affairs. 2 hours, third semester.

31. Political Science. A critical study of the origin and fundamental principles of government, with applications to and illustrations from ancient and modern governmental agencies. Effect of the theory of the state and political and social philosophy upon political thought and the development of the state. Analysis of modern tendencies and present day political problems with a comparative study of modern governments. 3 hours a week.

51. Practical Law. A short course in the principles of common law. The law that everyone should know. 1 hour a week.

SCIENCE

7, 8, and 6. Botany, biology, and nature study. 2 hours a week for the first three semesters. These courses include much laboratory and field work, and secure a familiarity with the wealth of natural material available.

53. Physics. An elementary course in the principles of the science, with applications according to the needs of the student. 4 hours including laboratory work. First or second semester. Required of students who have not had a course in physics in the high school.

54. Chemistry. An elementary course similar in its nature to the course in physics. Required of students who have not had chemistry in the high school, and who have not had Science 53 in the College of Education.

52. Nature Leadership. This course is designed for those who have a special interest in nature leadership. It aims to familiarize students with the fundamental principles of nature games and recreation; to provide practice in planning and carrying out constructive recreation; to fit capable leaders who, as nature teachers, scout leaders, and nature councillors in summer camps, may carry out these aims in their respective fields. The course will be organized to meet the needs of the students taking the course. It is advisable to have two afternoons and Saturday free for practice work. Only those students who have completed all the work previously listed on their equivalent will be admitted to this course. 2 to 6 hours per week.

SCOUTING

41. Girl Scout Leadership. This course deals with the program for Girl Scout Captains. First aid, wigwagging, drill, etc., are taken up in turn. Students are expected to qualify in this course for leadership in Girl Scout organizations. Elective, 1 hour a week.

THE HENRY BARNARD SCHOOL

The Henry Barnard School, on the first floor of the college building, comprises a kindergarten (Children's School), and eight grades, with one room for each. Most of the children come from the city district adjoining the building. Others from outside the district may be admitted on the payment of a moderate tuition, if there is room for them.

The functions served by the Henry Barnard School are as follows:

1. It furnishes opportunity for the students of the College of Education to see good teaching. It supplies illustrative material for class discussion on methods. Lesson plans may here be tested and criticised from experience, instead of on a theoretical or imaginary basis. It is to the college what the clinic is to the school of medicine. It helps to keep the work of the college on the right basis by constantly magnifying the practical instead of the theoretical. It gives a worthy ideal to the prospective teacher.

2. It furnishes under the most helpful and encouraging conditions an opportunity for the young teacher to begin her practice teaching. For one hour of the day the school may be used for this work. The rest of the day the children spend under the regular grade teachers. By having this preliminary practice so closely connected with the study of methods, something more is added to the discussions than could be gotten from observation alone. At the same time the student has an opportunity to do his first teaching in a most stimulating environment, and with little responsibility for the general discipline of the room. His first effort may thus be given to a masterly presentation of his subject unhampered by needlessly disturbing conditions. He gains confidence in his own ability, learns to be critical of himself and to accept criticism from others, and in a measure gets the professional point of view, which is, essentially, that by continued endeavor and the wise use of aids of various sorts, it is possible to continually improve in skill and in general teaching ability. He is brought to a recognition of the fact that good teaching is fundamental to discipline. It follows that the young teacher is here to emphasize the essential matters, and he is well fitted for the next step in his preparation, the training school.

3. It is a meeting place for theory and practice in the school itself, offering to teachers in the different department facilities for testing themselves and their own methods in the light of experience with the children for whom the work is intended.

4. It should illustrate for those teaching elsewhere the methods and courses recommended by the College of Education. The Henry Barnard School, as a school of observation, should be the model school through which the State may present, as far as possible, its ideal of a satisfactory public school. It should not attempt to carry on its work expensively or to include courses which may not to advantage be included in other public schools. Its aim should be to show how a course of study that is truly efficient in its results may at the same time be conducted with economy.

5. It provides opportunity for the study and evaluation of new ideas which seem to give special promise of educational worth.

EXPERIMENTAL WORK

CHILDREN'S SCHOOL

The Kindergarten or Children's School is the result of several years of first-hand educational experimentation with children from three to six years of age. It is, moreover, an educational experiment in process. No estimable contribution from any worthy educational source or system is excluded. The school purposes real education from the sincere study of young children. It is coming to be recognized more and more that children under the usual school age have intellectual needs that are greatly and generally overlooked.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

The spirit of the Children's School has propelled itself into the grades beyond. It is intended that there shall be no realizable break in the education of the children as they pass from the kindergarten to the first grade or from one grade to another. The equipment and methods of instruction of the Elementary School are of the type that allows the process of education to proceed naturally and directly in a socialized environment. The Henry Barnard School is really a laboratory where it is possible to observe pedagogy in the making. Experimentation with the reading process in particular is revealing on the part of the pupils possibilities which are remarkable. Owing to the peculiar nature of the training received, the children, besides learning to read and write, have become independent workers, able to master many difficulties for themselves. They have therefore been given much freedom in the selection of their reading, and of other individual and group work as well. There is little class drill except such as is self imposed, but much individuality and spontaneity.

It has been a task of no small difficulty to find books of a suitable nature for the children of these grades; as they read eagerly and with surprising discrimination, and soon tire of books that are too easy for them.

MUSIC

The reorganization of the course in music inaugurated in the experimental classes of last year, has been constantly progressive throughout the present year. Education in music begins in the children's school. The ordinary meagre type of musical training usually accorded to young children is replaced by an enriched and happy opportunity for spontaneous music interpretation, expression, and appreciation. The pupils of the Henry Barnard School are encouraged to sing almost as freely as they talk. Both individual and chorus singing have proper place in the schedule. Abundant opportunity is given for free expression in response to rhythm. Interest in orchestral instruments is fostered by the use of a playing orchestra with a child conductor. Music appreciation through active listening is an important phase of the enriched course.

VISITING DAY AT THE HENRY BARNARD SCHOOL

Visitors to the Henry Barnard School are welcome at all times. It is found, however, that visiting teachers desire to propose many questions as to the methods and materials in use in the Children's School and in the various grades. It is obviously impossible to give time every day to the conferences which these necessary demands involve. Since it is the desire of the Rhode Island College of Education that observers should receive all the attention and help which they seek, the program for Fridays has been arranged so as to meet this need. Friday, then, will be recognized as the most satisfactory visiting day.

THE TRAINING SCHOOLS

The training schools are established by contract with the local authorities. The schools used for training purposes are indicated by the list of critic teachers given in this catalog. Critic teachers are nominated by the Trustees of the College and elected by the School Committees in the towns in which they serve. Each critic in the regular grades is given charge of two rooms, with the usual number of children and a student teacher is assigned to each room.

The buildings in which the training schools are located range all the way from two to thirty rooms in size.

The Rhode Island system of training schools embodies to a remarkable extent the recommendations of the "Report of the Committee of Fifteen on the Training of Teachers." After the first preliminary teaching in the Observation School student teachers are trained, not by making them assistants or substitutes, or by giving them small groups of children, but by placing them in charge of regular schools under such conditions as they will meet after graduation. Here during the five months of training they are thrown on their own resources to a large extent. They learn to master the work of one grade and to teach with due regard for the development of the children; and they gain that close contact with child life, so essential to a good teacher, which can be gained only by one who is in charge of his own school.

SUMMER SESSION, JULY 10 TO AUGUST 18, 1922, AND LIBRARY INSTITUTE, AUGUST 7 TO 19

Courses in the Summer Session are open only to teachers and to students who are preparing to teach in Rhode Island.

The Library Institute is for those holding library positions or under appointment for library positions, and for teachers.

The Henry Barnard School will be in session for the first four weeks.

Credits for work done may be used for securing teachers' certificates or may be applied toward securing the diploma of the Junior Course of the College of Education. Credit for advanced work may be applied towards securing the degree given by the College of Education.

No course will be given for less than a reasonable minimum number of students, and in most of the courses the number of students admitted will not be expected to exceed 35. In case the number of applicants is too large, preference will be given to those taking the subject for credit and to those who register in advance.

Applicants are reminded that regular attendance is expected. If the number of absences is excessive, no credit can be given except by permission of the Faculty of Government.

Students now in the College of Education may register only through their advisers. Candidates for teacher's certificates are expected to take assigned subjects each year. Class work begins at 9:20 the first morning. Registration should be completed before that time.

DAILY SCHEDULE

At 9:20. Management, Law, Education of Children, Elementary Italian, French Conversation.

At 10:20. History of Education, Adv. Psychology, Law and Government, Observation, Italian Conversation, Adv. French, Public Speaking 2nd.

Pierce, John C. Citizens, political communication, and interest groups: environmental organizations in Canada and the United States, by John C. Pierce et al. Praeger, 1992. 225p bibl index afp ISBN 0-275-93579-5, $47.95

This volume, written by political scientists, addresses the problem of how individuals in postindustrial democratic societies can become informed participants in policy debates on complex scientific and technical questions. They contend that interest groups perform an important function by disseminating "policy relevant" information that helps citizens understand the intricacies of the technical issues they must consider. The authors support their position by enlisting data from surveys of citizens and environmental groups in Ontario and Michigan on the problem of acid rain. Their findings suggest that the information made available by organizations provides an important incentive for people to join interest groups. Results of their surveys also indicate that groups have enhanced their capacity to transmit "policy relevant" information to members. The authors conclude by discussing how the communication efforts of organizations are affected by cultural and institutional settings. This carefully documented and insightful work makes an important contribution to our understanding of the functions of interest groups. Highly recommended. Advanced undergraduate; graduate; faculty.—G. L. Malecha, University of Portland
