A Fine Course

The future Driver Education course which will be offered at R.I.C.E. the week of August 15 should be of vital interest to us all because we, as teachers, have a moral duty to set a good example whenever we are behind the wheel of an automobile. At the present time there is an important safety drive going on in the state of Rhode Island. This drive should have a two fold meaning to each and every one of us. First, it should warn us that the number of traffic accidents in the state of Rhode Island is increasing at an alarming rate; and secondly, that in order to decrease this rate the youth of this state must be properly instructed in the theory of driving. This is our duty. We can and must instruct our students in the methods of driving a car with safety. Naturally, teachers can only give their students the actual behind the wheel training in a Driver Education course, but on the other hand, if they honestly try they can show them how to drive safely by setting a good example at all Teachers have a tremendous influence upon many of their students. Thus they may be able to teach safety techniques on the highway whenever the opportunity presents itself. By doing this teachers will be doing their part in the continuous war against hazardous driving.

Real Improvement

There is an impression abroad that many great discoveries have turned up quite accidentally. Vulcanized rubber resulted from something spilled on a hot stove-top, you might recall. Filling in the pot-holes and grading our driveway has turned up a discovery, too. Not Spanish doubloons in a rotten hulk on the bottom of the 18th century pond that used to be where our lawn is now, you understand. Something far more practical. And needed. excellent system for parking to be exact.

Before the change, first arrivals parked near the steps; later arrivals formed a solid wall down the sides of the drive; last arrivals (a great many of them) cruised around hemmed in, looked in vain, and were deposited back on the busy highway to compete with the traffic of the town for parking space. First arrivals had to wait for double parking later arrivals to get their cars out of the way. And a practically empty big field was left to be used for sandlot baseball games.

No more. Now cars are parked in even lines with space to maneuver like at the race tracks or markets that have to keep the customers happy. And it works. You can find plenty of room, and you can leave when you want to.

Yes sir, a great discovery has been made. hope that it will be remembered and reapplied in not only here, but at the congested alleys called parking lots at a lot of our schools.

Masters' Course

The introduction of separate Masters' courses in the Extension and Summer School program, is hailed as a worthwhile innovation. It is argued that the distinction facilitates the work of those who desire accreditation towards certification since it is not expected that they should be obliged to follow the more ridgid requirements set up for candidates for Masters' credit. Others, on the other hand, maintain that the separation is nothing but a further complication in limiting students in the choice of

It cannot be denied, however, that the separation caters more immediately to the needs of each level. The needs of each group are met and the graduate school as such takes on a certain prestige that is bound to enhance the value of its Masters' degree. More severe requirements required of mas ters candidates formerly caused division within classes, complicating the work of the instructor, and otherwise caused confusion. Under the new plan the line is clearly drawn, all students in any class have the same requirements, and the quality of work generally is improved.

TV or not TV

Television has created a controversy about the work of students who have television sets at home The main issue seems to be the amount of time spent watching TV and not the selection of programs. The hours presently used by TV shows occur after school hours and carry on until midnight.

Between the hours of 4 P.M to 7:30 P.M. western serials and puppet shows of all types are presentd that some of these contribute to the entertainment and help them develop ed. Granted that socially, there are others that work directly op-posite and went out of style 15-20 years ago. Programs that follow are attended chiefly by the adults and a large number of teen-agers. Members of the much younger generation who may be watch ing at this time are certainly not aiding their school rk in any way. Here in Providence it is rather difficult to have a well-rounded program selection because of the limited number of channels that afford clear reception. If the school systems were to make a survey of programs and suggest programs on the proper level, TV could be used successfully in education. This program list could be published comparable to TV Forecast, now serving Channels 4, 7, and 11 in this area. Such programs as Sunday at the Bronx Zoo, Watch the World, Nature of Things and sports can be used educationally on all levels of learning. The program selections and parent supervision in cooperation with the schools can do much to further education.

The Temper of the People

The results of the latest Anchor poll, while the results indicate varied opinion, do point up one dominant fact, that the American people are in a fighting mood. They do not wish for war, but they are not prepared to take any fooling around. This is a remarkable truth when one remembers that it is only five years since peace, however uneasy it was, returned to this country. To see a people greatly affected by a great war's strain, still un-flagging in their determination to insure the ends for which that war was fought is little short of

Yet there is need for more than a fighting mood today. If all-out war were to come tomorrow, this fighting mood would be more than adequate. But all the signs such a war is not to come immediately. Rather this country seems to be in for a succession of limited crises aimed at alternately raising and deflating our hopes for peace and thus keeping us in a perpetual state of confusion and in-decision. What is need, then, is the calmness and determination that are necessary for a long pull. Certainly a great deal of sacrifice will be called for and, even more important, a great deal of patience these circumstances, the American face a new era in their history. For the first time they face the prospect of a long and nerve-wracking time of limited war. In such a case, the need is not for a fighting mood so much as for calm

Summer School Takes To Radio

Three Broadcasts Given Every Week Through Station WFCI

This year the Rhode Island College of Education is presenting a series of fifteen-minute radio programs to enable the people of the state to become better quainted with the activities of the summer school. These programs are broadcast at 9:45 P.M. over Station WFCI every Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday. Miss Henrietta Brazeau, radio consultant, planned the programs in the form of interviews

Dr. Fred J. Donovan, vice president of the college and director of the Summer School, was the speaker on the first program, July 10. Dr. Donovan told of the variety of courses being offered and listed the opportunities provided for the professional growth of teachers.

In the second broadcast Miss Marie Gearan, co-ordinator of the Elementary Education program, talked about the activities of the Workshop in Elementary Education for liberal arts graduates. Humanities Class Fined For Interest In Museum

When Dr. Daggett's Humanities class went on a field trip to the Rhode Island School of Design Museum, interest was so great that no one thought of the time slipping by, and at the conclusion of the tour the class emerged on Benefit Street to find that the cars used for transportation to the Museum had been tagged for parking over one hour. An appeal was made to the Police Department, but to no avail and the fines had to be paid.

It has been suggested that the Providence Police Department take Dr. Daggett's course next summer so that they too can appreciate some of the finer arts, which includes visiting the Museum. Perhaps, then, they will be more lenient toward teachers who are trying to further their education

Rhode Island has long striven for the reputation of the safest state in the union. In addition to school safety programs and radio broadcasts high school students are now taught the safe and sure ways of driver preparation.

From a text "Sportsmanlike Driving" this course will prepare instructors to teach students the fundamentals of automobile operation, driving technique, and accident prevention—the rules of the road. Mr. Leonelli has mentioned that, in addition to classwork, the course will consist of much practical work on the state's highways with driver demonstration cars being used.

> Mrs. Becker is also the art instructor for the Elementary Workshop. Her work with this group consists of teaching two demonstration lessons at Henry Barnard for the entire group to observe. The observations are followed by discussions periods in the after-noon of the same day. The introduction to the Fine Arts as a part of Dr. Daggett's Humanities course was also part of Mrs. Becker's schedule for the summer ses-

Folk Dancers Frolic

The American Folk Dance class does a favorite routine—"The Portland Fancy" under the direction of Miss Anne A. Cameron, Couples in the back are doing a "Ladies Chain", Couples in the foreground are starting a "Right and Left Thru."

Aches - Where Aren't Thou??

One and Two and Three and Four—Bend your trunks and touch the floor. Stretch your arms and backs held straight—What we'll do to lose some weight! Stretch and twist and bend that knee—Beauty in motion for all to see. Grunts and groans—we bend and bow—Denmark is here to show us how!

Hold that ball and throw it right, Look at us; aren't we a sight? Playing at games that should be fun, Some of us can't even run! Chests catch balls instead of hands, Feet seem planted or held by bands. Where is rhythm and speed and joy— LOST—for books or forgotten with toys?

Then we go to dance and sing— All join hands and form a ring!! Listen, Miss Cammeron will give the call— Swing your lady and promenade the hall!! Hurry up there and don't be slowThat's the way we do-si-do!! Watch us bow and skip and twirl, Balance your partners and swing that girl!!

Laughter and friendship are there to behold, Swing and sway—you're never too old!!

Books can't give you that "Play-Pole" test—
Let yourself go—you'll enjoy the best.

Take these courses and learn to play,
Brighten your lives—enjoy each day.

LAUGHTER—is good for body and mind—
LINAMENT—is good for muscles that bind!!

IF you say it's time you'd waste,
BROTHER (or Sister), you'd better make haste!
Books or lessons cannot be taught
Unless to classrooms some fun is brought.
Don't be afraid to let yourself go—
Look and see those faces all aglow!!
That "Play-Pole" idea won't let you sink—
ENJOY YOURSELF—it's later than you may think!!

Learning Is Pleasure

Enjoying the process of learning. Basic game skills are taught in this class by Miss Anne A. Cameron. Children, teacher, and Elementary Teacher novices and the regular gym class enjoyed this demonstration of a Relay Catch Game. Over 100 students and teachers in service were in the gym. There was no self-consciousness in the children during the playing of these games. Pupil-teacher participation makes for more effective learning—that's the theory of the class in games and rhythmical activities for the Elementary child.

TWINS ATTEND SESSION

Among the students attending R. I. C. E. this summer are the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fergus McOsker.

Peggy, left above, and Marie McOsker graduated from Elmhurst in 1946, and attended Georgetown Visitation Junior College. This June they graduated from Marymount College, Tarrytown, New York. They are attending R. I. C. E. this summer working for their teacher's certificate.

Feline at R. I. C. E.

Miss Catherine Cogan's pet cat, Peter, rides with her every day from Pawcatuck to Providence where Miss Cogan is attending classes at R. I. C. E. Peter, who attended Grade 6 in the Pawcatuck schools every day for the past school year, spends his mornings in Miss Cogan's automobile in the college parking lot. He is always in evidence at the noon hour sitting at the window of the car waiting for Miss Cogan to serve him his lunch.

CLOSING DAY

(Continued from Page 1) under the direction of Miss Anne A. Cameron will present a series of folk dances prepared by the group during the summer session. The band will offer selections featuring the brass section. Wilfred Roberts will conduct. The choir, directed by Gertrude E. Mc-Gunigle, will provide the vocal part of the program. Student conductors for the choir will be Barbara Hitchcock and Ollie Ander-

Dr. Donovan has announced that plans are under way to engage talented performers from the student body. Community singing, conducted by Mr. Withington, will be another feature of the afternoon.

Following the assembly, which will be held in the auditorium, refreshments will be served in the reception room (room 102).
