

NEWS

MRS SALLY M WILSON
61 ARLINGTON AVE
PROVIDENCE RI 02906

Vol. 7, No. 10 November 3, 1986

@ Rhode Island College

For 1st time: Report ties tuition to enrollment declines

NEW YORK (CPS)—For the first time ever, lower college enrollments have been linked to ever-increasing tuitions in Northeastern colleges, while colleges in the West, where tuitions are generally lower, are "bursting at the seams," the College Board says in a report released last week.

The notion that students might choose schools by how much the colleges cost is widely viewed as heresy by many educators, who maintain financial aid helps deserving students pay for tuition and lets them go where they want.

But the College Board report says enrollment at public colleges in the West rose a whopping 50 percent since 1980, while the biggest nationwide drop—11 percent—was among private colleges in New England, where tuitions rose the fastest.

Since 1980, when college tuitions started rising by rates far above the general inflation rate, educators have been confident they weren't pricing some students out of

(continued on page 3)

BETTY SPENCE

To discuss 'Fellini and Me'

"Fellini and Me" will be the topic of the next installment in the English department's Food for Thought lunchtime series set for 12:30 p.m. on Nov. 5 in Craig-Lee 265 (Shakespeare Room).

In the informal talk, Dr. Betty Spence, assistant professor of English, will recall her experiences while working with Italian film director Federico Fellini 10 years ago in Rome.

(continued on page 3)

Clarke Memorial Lecture set for Nov. 6 at Gaige Hall

Dr. Chris Argyris, the James Conant Bryant professor of education and organizational behavior at Harvard University, will deliver the seventh annual Walter Clarke Memorial Lecture at Rhode Island College's Gaige Hall auditorium on Nov. 6 at 4 p.m.

"Seeking Truth and Actionable Knowledge: How the Scientific Method Inhibits Both" will be Argyris' topic.

Preceding his address the Rhode Island Psychological Association and the Rhode Island College psychology department will co-sponsor a program of three simultaneous workshops from 2 to 4 p.m.

Dr. Ron Calderone, assistant director of the Rhode Island Department of Children and Their Families, will speak in Horace Mann Hall, room 193 on "The Final Report to the Governor on Children's Mental Health."

At the Faculty Center Dr. Frank Sparades, clinical psychologist and director of rehabilitation at Rhode Island Hospital, will speak on "Rehabilitation—Is It the Place to Be?"

Dr. Beverly Serabian, clinical psychologist at the Rhode Island Medical Center General Hospital, will speak in the Faculty Center reading room on "The Psychologists Roles in Hospital Settings: Issues and Trends."

Argyris, a diplomat in organizational and industrial psychology, has authored more than 200 articles as well as 24 books and monographs.

A graduate of Clarke University, he earned his master of arts degree in economics and psychology from the University of Kansas and his Ph.D. in organizational behavior from Cornell.

Argyris' early research focused on the unintended consequences for individuals of formal organizational structures, executive leadership, control systems and management information systems—and on how individuals adapt to change those consequences.

During the past decade he has also been developing, with Donald Schon, a theory of individual and organizational learning in which human reasoning, not just behavior, becomes the basis for diagnosis and action.

The Walter V. Clarke Memorial Lecture Series is co-sponsored by Walter V. Clarke Associates, Inc. and the University of Rhode Island.

Joining in the sponsorship of the Seventh Annual Walter V. Clarke Lecture are Rhode Island College's department of psychology and the Rhode Island Psychological Association.

Following the lecture by Argyris there will be a reception at the college's Faculty Center.

In addition to Argyris, nationally known psychologists Drs. Neil Miller, Robert Perloff, past president of the American Psychological Association, and Joseph Matarazzo will be present at the reception.

The lecture and the workshops are open to faculty, students and the general public at no charge.

For more information call Rhode Island College's Dr. Joan Rollins at 456-8578.

Chris Argyris, Ph.D.
1951, Cornell University

Industrial/Organizational Psychology
James Bryant Conant Professor of Education and Organization Behavior Harvard Graduate School of Education, 1984.
Former Beach Professor and Chairman, Department of Administrative Services, Yale University.
Honorary degrees from McGill, Leuven, and Stockholm School of Economics. Gold Medal, Cornell University.

To hold annual fund phonathon

The Rhode Island College Annual Fund phonathon will be held Monday, Nov. 10, Wednesday, Nov. 13, Thursday, Nov. 14 and Monday through Thursday, Nov. 17—20, it has been announced by James E. Gilcreast, Jr., director of development at the college.

Volunteers will be calling alumni and friends to solicit gifts to the Annual Fund.

Events get underway at 5:30 p.m. with supper for the volunteers provided by the college. Calling will begin each day at 6:30 p.m.

Calling will be done from the College Advancement and Support suite, Roberts Hall 300.

"Anyone wishing to help with this most important activity may call me at 456-8105," says Gilcreast.

SIMON LONO IN ACTION

When Simon says something -- It doesn't pay to argue

by Lisa Marie Cashman

So far, there are only two people I know of that can win an argument hands down...my mother and Simon Lono.

Which one argues with more finesse, I dare not say for fear of losing something precious...my head!

Born and raised in New Foundland, Lono is arguing his way to a very promising future in public speaking.

As a senior in communications at Rhode Island College with a special emphasis in rhetoric, he looks forward to returning to his native land to work on Parliament Hill, the equivalent of the U.S.'s Capitol Hill.

Lono first came in contact with the art of formal discussion during high school. Later, while attending Memorial University in New Foundland, he founded the university's first debate society and served as its president for two years. By that time, the society had placed fourth in the country and on the modest budget of $2,500 per annum. In comparison, Rhode Island College's Debate Council budget approaches $14,000, according to Lono.

Although Lono would participate in several debates, he was unaware then that rhetoric would become a career aspiration for him. Being a computer science major did not afford him ample time to pursue other activities. Consequently, at times debating had to take a back burner.

That is, until he met Rhode Island College's debate coach, Dr. Audrey Olmsted.

"I met Simon at a debate at Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia," relates Olmsted. "I judged him in a round and was quite impressed with his abilities as a debater."

As a result of that meeting, the two talked at length about the possibility of Lono coming here to study.

(continued on page 3)

Focus on the Faculty and Staff

John E. Peterson, associate professor of physical sciences, reviewed the book Energy: A Conceptual Approach (Koeving, Sells: Prentice-Hall, 1986) in the October issue of The Physics Teacher.

Margaret A. Hainsworth, assistant professor of nursing, gave an oral defense of her Ph.D. dissertation at the University of Connecticut Oct. 8. Title of the dissertation is "An Ethnographic Study of Women with Multiple Sclerosis Using a Symbolic Interactionist Approach."

Dr. Francis J. Leazes Jr., assistant professor of political science, convened a panel at the Region I and II American Society for Public Administration Conference in Albany recently. The panel discussed government service-delivery structures of the future. Leazes also delivered a paper which presented a model for evaluating the responsiveness of public authorities to executive and legislative direction.

Dr. Marilyn G. Eanet, professor of education, presented a paper entitled "Conceptions of Learning, Motivation, and Students' Learning Strategies" at the annual conference of the College Reading Assn. in Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 23-25. Eanet was recently elected to a three-year term on the CRA Board of Educators and selected to serve on the editorial board of the journal Reading Research and Instruction

Letters...

Oct. 8, 1986

Dear George,

Thanks for the piece on Tony Antosh in a recent issue of What's News. It was well written - well organized. We appreciate the support and the "P.R."

Sincerely,

James D. Turley, Dean
School of Education and Human Development

What's
News
@
Rhode Island College

Editor

Laurence J. Sasso, Jr.

Associate Editor

George LaTour

Staff

Gordon E. Rowley, Photographer

Ellen W. Hunt, Secretary

Student Staff

Christine Albanese, Calendar

Lisa Marie Cashman, Writer

Johanna Bennett, Writer

Lisa Castro, Paste-Up

What's News at Rhode Island College (USPS 681-650) is published weekly throughout the year except during semester breaks by Rhode Island College News and Information Services, 600 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, Providence, R.I. 02908. Second Class postage paid, Providence, R.I.

Postmaster: Send address changes to, What's News at Rhode Island College, News and Information Services, c/o The Bureau, 600 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, Providence, R.I. 02908.

—DEADLINE—

Deadline for submission of copy and photos is TUESDAY at 4:30 p.m.

Tel. 456-8132

Production by
BEACON PRESS

Geographers to discuss changes

taking place in our cities

"Dynamics of Urban Revitalization" will be the theme of the 61st annual meeting of the New England-St. Lawrence Valley Geographical Society on Nov. 7 and 8 at the renamed Omni Biltmore hotel in Providence.

Hosted by the Rhode Island College Anthropology/Geography Department, the meeting will draw geographers from throughout New England and southern Canada to discuss changes taking place in cities.

Topics will range from Chinatown in Philadelphia to revitalization in Boston; from low-income housing strategies to sculpture as an element in city revitalization, according to Chester E. Smolski, professor of geography at Rhode Island College and program chairman.

David Macaulay, noted author and urbanist from Providence, will be the featured speaker on Friday evening. His illustrated talk will consider "The Changing City."

In addition to the regularly scheduled events and presentation of papers, there will be two workshops for secondary school teachers from throughout New England on Saturday.

Designed to up-date and introduce teachers to new concepts in the field, the workshops will also serve to organize the teachers into a new group to promote the aims of teaching geography in the secondary schools, says Smolski.

The National Geographic Society will provide support for this teacher organization, he adds.

For further information contact Professor Smolski at 456-8005.

To speak on women and AIDS

"What a Woman Needs to Know about AIDS" is the topic of Mary Olenn, Rhode Island College health education consultant, when she addresses members of the college Women's Center on Wednesday, Nov. 5, from 1 to 2 p.m. in Horace Mann Hall, room 192. All members of the college community are invited.

Russian, Chinese offered again

Courses in elementary Russian and Chinese are being offered again next spring at Rhode Island College. Classes will meet four hours a week for each of the four-credit courses: Russian -- Mondays and Wednesdays; Chinese -- Tuesdays and Thursdays, both during the hours of 4-6 p.m.

Courses, which are open to the general public, may be used for elective credits. For more information call the department of modern languages at 456-8029.

Correction

In the Oct. 20 and 27 issues What's News at Rhode Island College referred to the second annual drive to raise funds for the State Employees Combined Charitable Campaign at Rhode Island College. It is in fact the third annual such drive.

Notice

What's News at Rhode Island College may not be as substantial as usual for the next two or three issues. The staff will be working together with other members of the college's Advancement and Support Division to produce a special publication commemorating the inauguration of Dr. Carol J. Guardo as seventh president of Rhode Island College. The publication will reflect the special tone of celebration and commitment to the future of the college and its people which the inauguration created.

Bureau of Grants and Sponsored Projects: Request for proposals

(The Bureau of Grants and Sponsored Projects will be providing information about requests for proposals (RFPs) on a regular basis in this column. Anyone interested in obtaining further information or applications and guidelines need only circle the number of the RFP on the coupon below and send it to the Bureau in Roberts 312.)

1. National Center for Nursing Research: Nursing National Research Service Awards (Individual and Institutional): Individual and institutional pre-and-post-doctoral fellowships for registered nurses support research training in specified areas of nursing and in biomedical and behavioral fields important to nursing (including education, community health, mental health, psychology, nutrition, and biology). Proposed study must provide an opportunity to carry out supervised research, to broaden the trainee's science background, and to expand potential for research in health-related areas. DEADLINE: Jan. 10.

2. National Assn. of Foreign Student Affairs: Cooperative Grants Programs: Funded through a grant from USIA, the program offers grants for the development of campus-based and community projects to enhance the experience of foreign students at U.S. colleges and universities and U.S. students planning to study abroad. There is a special interest in model programs that may be adopted by other institutions. Maximum award is $5,000. The deadline cited is for required preliminary proposals. Full proposals will be invited after a review. DEADLINE: Jan. 12.

3. German Academic Exchange Service: Study Visits to Germany: Provides one-to-three months' support to scholars in all academic and scientific disciplines to pursue research at universities, libraries, archives or research institutes in the Federal Republic of Germany. Applicants must have at least two years of teaching and/or research experience and hold the Ph.D. or its equivalent. A monthly stipend and allowance for travel within Germany is provided. DEADLINE: Jan. 15.

4. National Endowment for the Humanities: Travel to Collections Program: Support for American scholars to travel to research collections or libraries, archives, museums and other repositories in North America or Western Europe. Awards of $750 defray travel costs, substance, duplication, and other research expenses. Research cannot be toward a degree, and grants do not support travel to professional meetings or conferences. DEADLINE: Jan. 15.

5. Smithsonian Institution: Smithsonian Fellowships: Pre-doctoral, post-doctoral and senior fellowships support research in the following areas: American history; history of art; history of design and folk arts; history of science and technology; anthropology; archaeology; linguistics; biological, earth and planetary sciences; and conservation and museum studies. Fellows work in residence with professional museum staff for six to 24 months. Stipends range from $11,000 to $25,000. DEADLINE: Jan. 15.

6. American Antiquarian Society: Fellowships in American History: Long-and-short-term residential fellowships support study in early American history using the society's collections. The society offers fellowships in five categories with stipends ranging from $600 to $25,000 for one-to-twelve months of study. Pre-and-post-doctoral research is supported. Non-stipend research associate appointments are also available. DEADLINE: Jan. 31.

7. National Science Foundation: Research Opportunities in Japanese Laboratories: American scientists and engineers interested in a research stay in Japanese laboratory: Many laboratories express willingness to provide travel, housing, or other subsidies to visiting foreign researchers. If further financial support is needed following acceptance by a Japanese laboratory, an applicant may contact NSF's U.S.-Japan Program. Each applicant must apply directly to the laboratory of his/her choice. A listing of Japanese companies is available in the Bureau of Grants and Sponsored Projects. DEADLINE: None specified.

Bureau of Grants/Sponsored Projects

Please send me information on the following programs: (Circle programs of interest to you.)

1.	2.	3.	4.
5.	6.	7.	8.

Name: _____

Campus Address: _____

11/3/86

Frankly Speaking

by Phil Frank

Feeling like a small fish in a big pond is not an unusual experience for an undergrad, John..

It doesn't pay to argue

(continued from page 1)

Applications were sent and before long Lono was debating on behalf of Rhode Island College.

The first tournament in which he participated in the United States was at Fordham University. His partner, Richard Farley of Rhode Island College, was quite pleased with him.

"Simon brings a lot of experience to the debate team," Farley says reassuringly. "He provides substance and is solidly consistent."

Both Olmsted and Farley feel that Lono is an asset to the team for one other important reason. Because Lono has had extensive experience in Canadian parliamentary debate, he knows much about the political system.

"This helps the team tremendously when preparing for the Canadian judges," says Farley.

Lono's international perspective not only enhances the chances of success for the debate council, but for himself as well.

This past summer Lono had a chance to perform a major role in the proceedings of the National Youth Parliament (NYP) in Ottawa.

"The youth parliament doesn't operate on a party system," explains Lono. According to him, there is a prime minister, a leader of opposition, a government leader and deputies, eight ministerial "portfolios" and eight opposition "critics." Oh, and let's not forget the "Government Whip." You know -- the person who keeps the "caucus" in shape."

"I was the opposition leader which is a chief cheerleader of sorts," says Lono chuckling to himself as he pulls a Benson & Hedges from his coat pocket.

In Parliament, the leader of the opposition leads the "front benchers" of the "shadow cabinet" and tries to persuade the "backbenchers" to vote his way on parliamentary bills introduced by delegates, Lono explains.

Lono did his best to rally against things and encourage others to do the same. Flipping through the numerous articles on last summer's session of the National Youth Parliament, Lono smiles.

"Only four out of the eight pieces of legislation passed," which, Lono indicates, is a job well done on his part.

The NYP, held once a year for a week, is an organization consisting of eight provincial parliaments. It is funded by private, corporate and government donations.

NYP accepts 104 delegates from the province and surrounding territories. Half of them represent youth parliaments and others apply independently, says Lono.

At the end of the sessions, the youth parliament submits its findings and proposals of recommendation to the appropriate federal government departments responsible for the issues discussed.

With the experience this has given him as opposition leader, along with a degree in rhetoric, it looks like Simon Lono will have a strong case in favor of employment on Parliament Hill after his graduation.

Keeping Score

with Dave Kemmy

Booters are blacked out

The men's soccer squad has suffered through a very trying season. In its final game of the year, the icing was placed on the cake.

The Anchormen travelled to UMass-Boston Oct. 27 on an overcast day. The Beacons took a 1-0 lead 13 minutes into the contest, but the Anchormen bounced right back on a 40-foot blast by Henry Sherman.

With 10 minutes left in the half, frosh Mario Vicente booted home his first career goal and the Anchormen had the lead. A few minutes later the Beacons scored a disputed goal when their forward Roy Beutler broke behind the defense and received a pass for a breakaway, scoring easily on goalie Royal Jones.

As far as the Anchormen were concerned, Beutler was clearly offside, but the referee didn't agree and allowed the goal.

Another controversial call came with about two minutes left in the half. Anchorman Dave Jenkins booted home what appeared to be the go-ahead goal, but the same official disallowed it, saying Jenkins used his hand, and the score was tied at the half.

The game went back and forth the entire second half with both teams pressing each other. Neither team was able to score. The final 10 minutes was played in almost total darkness. Neither team was able to see the other's side of the field.

Here comes the fun part! The regulation game ended with a 2-2 tie which, in normal circumstances, would mean two 10-minute overtimes. Due to the darkness factor (UMass-Boston has no lights on its field), the referees decided to play two five-minute overtimes instead.

"You couldn't see a thing. It was crazy out there," is the way Anchorman fullback Luis Oliveira described the situation.

"Regardless, the referees allowed the game to be played and, of course, the Beacons rose to the occasion on their home turf and scored a goal in each overtime session, goals Jones did not and could not see.

Just when you thought the Anchormen were starting to get the breaks, the bad luck that has plagued them all season returned for one last hurrah in their final game of the year.

The 4-2 loss gave the squad a final slate of 1-13-1 for the season.

★ DECLINES

(continued from page 1)

higher education.

In the wake of the College Board report, some officials seem ready to concede higher tuition may at least force some students to choose to go to cheaper schools.

"Raising tuition may have been a factor (in the westward swing of the student population)," says Paul Albright of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education. "Higher tuition could be keeping people closer to home to attend a public institution."

"There could be a linkage between tuition and enrollment," Albright adds. "The western schools have tended to raise tuition and put more of the cost of attending school on the students and parents. But the increases are not as significant in percentage as other parts of the country."

Julianne Thrift of the National Institute of Independent Colleges and Universities also thinks students may have college prices more in mind when choosing where to go.

"Students may be looking at the sticker price rather than applying and going to talk to the financial aid office," Thrift says.

Even at the public University of Iowa, which had a minor enrollment drop for the first time in seven years this fall, money may be influencing enrollment, says admissions director Dr. T. Anne Cleary.

"It definitely plays a greater part than it ought to," she says. "Young people frequently exclude schools that cost more even when financial aid, such as it is, is there for them."

But the educators think other matters beside tuition also may have provoked the swing the College Board documented.

Albright points to marketing efforts in Western states to help keep homegrown students—who might otherwise have migrated east—in state colleges.

He also notes the broader national population shift from the Northeast. "As the population shifts to the West and South—both of which are experiencing a higher rate of growth than the East—demographics move."

Officials at the more expensive private colleges in New England, moreover, simply don't believe they're losing students. Dartmouth, for example, still turns away "thousands" of applicants for all regions, including the West says Michael Varley of Dartmouth's admissions office.

The College Board, however, is not ready to resolve the debate whether tuition influences where students choose to go to school.

"No one here at the College Board is prepared to interpret the data," says spokeswoman Janice Gams. "We feel as though the data speak for themselves."

TO THE VICTORS: Richard Farley holds the trophy he and Paul Yates (not pictured) captured for their first performance of the season on Oct. 6 and 7 when the Rhode Island College Debate Council competed in the Fordham University Debate Tournament, the oldest parliamentary debate tourney in the U.S. Looking on are council coach Audrey Olmsted (left) and college President Carol J. Guardo.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges

Nominations to WHO'S WHO are now being received by the Selection Committee which has established the following criteria:

1) Scholarship: Undergraduates: minimum cumulative index 2.5 and 60 earned credits completed as of Sept. 15, 1986. Graduates: minimum cumulative index of 3.25 and 15 earned credits completed.

2) Participation and leadership in academics and extra-curricular activities and service to the college.

Service to the community at large.

Please complete the form below and return no later than Friday, Oct. 31, to the Office of Student Activities, 314 Student Union.

I nominate: NAME: _____

ADDRESS: _____

CITY: _____

NOMINATOR: _____

Indicate whether person is an undergraduate or graduate

The deadline for applications from the nominee is Wednesday, Nov. 12. (Must be received by 4:30 p.m. on that date.)

★ FELLINI

(continued from page 1)

"I had finished my coursework for the Ph.D. and taken my oral exam," recalls Spence, a newcomer to the Rhode Island College faculty, when "suddenly, like a woman possessed, I sold everything I owned, bought a one-way ticket to Rome and showed up at Fellini's studio. What choice did the man have? He had to take in the American waif."

She completed the Ph.D. at the University of Massachusetts by writing her dissertation on the directorial methods of Fellini. She holds a master of arts from Northwestern University.

After her return from Rome, Spence moved to the West coast where her film background includes work in camera, editing, story development, research for films and writing. She returned to the East coast last year to teach writing at St. Lawrence University and joined the faculty here this fall.

All are welcome to attend the talk which is free and open.

Sharpen your WRITING SKILLS

visit the WRITING CENTER

in
Craig-Lee 225

College Theatre

OH, ROMEO! Dina Piccoli and Paul Pacheco, both members of the Rhode Island College Theater Co., rehearse Shakespeare's 'Romeo and Juliet' which will be staged at the college's Roberts Hall auditorium Nov. 13-16.

(What's News Photo by Gordon E. Rowley)

Nov. 13-16:

'Romeo and Juliet' on stage here

"This play is one of the most pleasing of our author's performances," said Samuel Johnson of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

Hindsight makes it clear the good doctor clearly had something there. One of the bard's earliest plays, Romeo and Juliet was first performed about 1593.

It's popularity has been continuous for nearly 400 years.

From Nov. 13-16 Rhode Island College's Theatre Company will offer a production of the venerable play in the auditorium of Roberts Hall under the direction of David Burr, associate professor of theatre.

Called by some critics the "greatest love story of all time," Romeo and Juliet is a vivid depiction of consuming passion set against a background of street riots, lethal duels and the long-standing hatred of two families for one another.

Tender love and violence mingle and lead to tragedy in this apparently timeless piece of theatre set in the terror-ridden Italian town of Verona.

At Rhode Island College the play opens Thursday, Nov. 13 and continues through Sunday, Nov. 16. Curtain time is 8 p.m. for the first three days of the run. The performance on Sunday, Nov. 16 is a 2 p.m. matinee.

General admission is $5. Rhode Island

College faculty and staff, senior citizens and non-Rhode Island College students will pay $4. Cost to Rhode Island College students will be $2.50.

Paul Pacheco of Pawtucket will have the role of Romeo in the classic. Dina Piccoli of Greenville is Juliet.

Also appearing in the play are John A. Ring and Anthony Thomas Cinelli of Greenville and William Cain Forbes of Mapleville.

In addition, Arthur J. Finocchiaro, Christopher S. Manning and J. S. Blakemore of Warwick will be in the cast.

Also in the production are: Christopher Kelley, Amy M. Hitchcock and Susan E. Iacobellis, all of Providence.

Dylan Costa, Ellen Lisa Mojkowski, John Joseph O'Rourke, Jeff W. Mello and Jonathan D. Galli, all Cranston residents, will be in the play.

Others in the cast include Sean P. Reilly of Riverside; Christopher John Fratiello of Peace Dale; Viola Davis of Central Falls; Donna Theresa Dufresne of Woonsocket and Michael Hoyt Cofield of Middletown.

The large cast also includes: Kim Smith of Rutland, Vt.; Jeremy L. Baker of Seekonk, Mass.; Lars Martin of Abington, Conn. and Stacey Ann Ledoux of Swansea, Mass.

For more information on the production call 456-8270.

RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE Rhode Island's Center for THE PERFORMING ARTS

Monday, Nov. 3

Noon—Mass. Student Union, room 304.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. Student Union, room 305.

1:30 to 3:30 P.M.—Disability Support Group to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127. Open to all students. For further information call 456-8061.

5:15 to 6:45 p.m.—Rhode Island College Dance Company. Open company class with Jane Comfort. Cost is $5. Walsh Center, room 106. For further information call 456-9791.

Monday-Friday, Nov. 3-7

10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.—Appointments for Senior Portraits. Sign up in the yearbook office, Student Union, room 205. For further information call 456-8285.

Tuesday, Nov. 4

Election Day. No classes.

10 to 11:30 a.m.—Rhode Island College Dance Company. Open company class with Jane Comfort. Cost is $5. Walsh Center, room 106. For further information call 456-9791.

Wednesday, Nov. 5

Butler Hospital to recruit. Positions available for nurses. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

John Hancock Financial Services to recruit. Position available for a marketing representative. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Weight Loss Guidance Program. Kit Gallagher, a registered dietician, will run the program. Faculty Center. Free. Open to the Rhode Island College community. For more information call 456-8061.

Noon to 2 p.m.—Disability Support Group to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127.

12:30 p.m.—AIESEC weekly meeting. AIESEC is the International Association of students in Economics and Business Management. Alger, room 216A.

12:30 p.m.—Career Decision Making Workshop to be offered by the Office of Career Services. Craig-Lee, room 054. Open to Rhode Island College students and alumni. Participation is limited, so it is necessary to sign up in advance. For more information call 456-8031.

12:30 p.m.—Dr. Betty Spence to speak in the English department's "Food For Thought" lunchtime series. Craig-Lee, room 265.

12:30 p.m.—Human Resource Management Club to meet. Craig-Lee, room 105.

12:30 to 1:30 p.m.—Al-anon and Adult Children of Alcoholics to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127. Sponsored by the Office of Health Promotion.

1 to 2 p.m.—Anchor Christian Fellowship. Weekly meeting. Student Union, room 322.

1 to 2 p.m.—Mary Olenn to speak on "What a Woman Needs to Know About AIDS." Olenn is a health education consultant at Rhode Island College. Horace Mann, room 192. Free and open to all. Sponsored by the college's Women's Center.

2 p.m.—Chamber Music Series. Jean Rife, horn soloist and principal horn player with the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra, to give a lecture-demonstration on early horn literature. Robert Boberg, professor of music at Rhode Island College, will accompany her on piano. Roberts recital hall, room 138. Free and open to all.

Wednesday-Thursday, Nov. 5-6

Noon—Mass. Student Union, room 304.

5:15 to 6:45 p.m.—Rhode Island College Dance Company. Open company class with Jane Comfort. Cost is $5 per class. Walsh Center, room 106. For further information call 456-9791.

Thursday, Nov. 6

Eckerd Foundation to recruit. Positions available for counselors and teachers. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

9 a.m.—Job Search/Resume Writing Workshop to be offered by the Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054. Open to Rhode Island College students and alumni. Participation is limited, so it is necessary to sign up in advance. For more information call 456-8031.

4 p.m.—Walter V. Clarke Memorial Lecture. Dr. Chris Argyris to speak on "Seeking Truth and Actionable Knowledge: How the Scientific Method Inhibits Both." Gaije Hall auditorium.

9 p.m.—Rock bands. Guadal Canal Diary and Fetchin Bones to perform. Admission $4 general, $3 Rhode Island College students. Students Union ballroom.

Friday, Nov. 7

10 a.m.—Interviewing Skills Workshop to be offered by the Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054. Open to Rhode Island College students and alumni. Participation is limited, so it is necessary to sign up in advance. For more information call 456-8031.

Saturday, Nov. 8

Bike trip in Jamestown. Cost is $8 and covers transportation. Sponsored by the Recreation Department. For further information call 456-8136.

9 a.m. to 4 p.m.—Program for nurses, "Promoting and Marketing a Positive Nursing Image," to be led by Drs. Philip and Beatrice Kalisch of the University of Michigan School of Nursing. Gaije Hall.

11 a.m.—Men's Cross Country. Rhode Island College at the New England Division III championships. Franklin Park, Boston, Mass.

Sunday, Nov. 9

10 a.m.—Sunday Mass. Student Union, room 304.

7 p.m.—Sunday Evening Mass. Browne Hall, upper lounge.

Monday, Nov. 10

R.I. Medical Center to recruit. Positions available for nurses. Office of Career Services, Craig-Lee, room 054.

10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.—Appointments for Senior Portraits. Sign up in the yearbook office, Student Union, room 205. For further information call 456-8285.

Noon—Mass. Student Union, room 304.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. Student Union, room 305.

1:30 to 3:30 p.m.—Disability Support Group to meet. Craig-Lee, room 127.