The traveller,
Caught in a crescendo of footsteps,
Has little time to reflect.
Yet the spirit
Of roads once travelled
And the joys once known
Pervade the mind
When these roads are re-opened
To exploration.

dedication

This issue of the Janus we dedicate to that human quality whose development is one of the primary goals of good education: individuality. No aspect of the human character is quite so important as the sense of personal worth and resulting integrity. By individuality we do not mean those actions or attitudes which separate the individual from society, but rather those attributes of self-discovery and self-knowledge which enable the individual to function uniquely within the society. It is important that the educated man know and respect himself and it is equally important that other members of society know and respect him for what he is, not for what they might make of him. No society such as ours can function efficiently, or indeed even adequately, where respect for the individual and his right to be an individual is lacking. For that reason, we, the editors of Janus 1965, dedicate this book to the individual in society. May the spirit which motivates him continue to inspire us all, and may each of us strive unceasingly to develop in ourselves those responsible qualities of individuality without which no man is complete.

*How shall Time take us from these days,
By the hand, gently,
Or in violence torn from our roots?
Our roots are here and we breathe.*

What is tomorrow?

*Here is the womb of our inception
And ahead: the commitment to birth.*

Where is tomorrow?

*A four-year play has ended.
The tragedy, the comedy, the history—
—Done—
And tomorrow waits in the wings.*

Once again, congratulations must be extended to Rhode Island College's fine basketball team. The Anchormen improved upon last year's season compiling an impressive 22-5 record. After two initial losses, the RIC five jelled together most effectively. Dick Rouleau merged into the back court and joined with the fine forecourt of Wheeler, McCaughey and Van Leesten, the Anchormen began a winning streak not to be broken for twenty straight games.

The Anchormen captured their third straight Southern division title and their second consecutive conference title. Coach Tom Sheehan commented on his team's success at the end of the year. He noted the fine leadership of Captain Mike Van Leesten, the outstanding play of McCaughey who won honorable mention for small college All America, and the fine backcourt performances by Rouleau, Traverse and Paparella. Another important cog in the machine this year, was the sound rebounding and shooting job done by 6'4" Ron Clement.

To the team and coaches, the college says "Well Done!" The year was a success and in compiling another record the Anchormen have only illustrated future heights to which they will climb. Congratulations again and good luck next year.

Stretching for a new record.

The past track season was the best in Rhode Island College History. For several years, Coach Ed Bogda's teams have been steadily increasing their conference record. Last year, led by capable people in each event, R.I.C. won a second place in the N.E.S.C.A.C. track championships held in Providence and captured first place in the Southern New England Coastal Conference.

Stalwarts in the various events were:

Running: Howie Boyaj, W. Browning, Rick Mancuso, D. Vanasse.

Weights: W. Hayman, Arthur Schultz, John Signore.

Hurdles: Ed Squire.

Broad jump: Gene Wills.

Bob Sutcliffe blasts out of a sand trap.

Bill Nicynski waits to tee off at Louisquisset.

Jim Healy hurls from the mound.

Coch Don Puretz's baseball team played a strenuous schedule last spring, winning 50% of their games. There were several highlights during the season, such as exceptional play by Jim Healy, Mike Pitocchi, Ron Razzo, and captain Tony Nardi. Healy was supplied enormous strength from the mound. Razzo and Pitocchi were the leading hitters, with Tony Nardi also doing a fine job.

Ron Razzo belts out a base hit.

Mr. Robert L. Brown, University of Springfield

Mr. Bogda has been with Ric since 1958. During this time he has coached both soccer and track. Mr. Bogda stated that the soccer team's calibre of play and its won-lost record will be improved upon in future years. Two things led Mr. Bogda to this statement, the use of dorms for out of state men and the installation of an interscholastic soccer league in Rhode Island High Schools. With these two improvements lying in the near future, Mr. Bogda foresees increasing ability and strength of his teams. A major problem, with which he has to deal every year, is to teach inexperienced men the rules and skills of soccer in a short period of time. In the future, more experienced personnel will be obtainable from within the state. The track team also has shown considerable improvement and this year hopes to be equally bright. There is a growing interest on campuses in track, and more underclassmen participation.

Mr. Edward S. Bogda
Arnold College, Rutgers University

Mr. John E. Kelley, Tufts University

Mr. Brown, Director of Athletics, has been at Rhode Island College for nineteen years. In this time, he has seen the College grow from a sport institution to one which participates in seven intercollegiate sports. RIC has enhanced its position in conference competition and this year proved in most instances that Ric is and will continue to be a leader in all endeavors. Mr. Brown feels that the immense improvement being made to the athletic facilities on campus will help RIC teams grow in ability and competence. Speaking about the tennis team, of which he is coach, Mr. Brown stated that many newcomers will add strength and ability to his roster of experienced players.

Mr. Kelley has been at RIC for three years, during which time he has coached the wrestling teams since its inception as a varsity sport by Gene Maeroff. Mr. Kelley has molded a strong base for future success in the last few years. This year's team was indicative of the future success of the team.

reciation

Coach Sheehan has just finished his most successful season as basketball coach at RIC. When Coach Sheehan took over as head basketball mentor six years ago, he faced the problem similar to those being faced by other varsity coaches—inexperience, lack of college enthusiasm and general athletic ability. Since his initial takeover six years ago, Mr. Sheehan has strengthened the RIC five to the point where last year the Anchormen compiled a fine 22-5 record. The team also won its second conference title and its third straight Southern title. The season was again highlighted by the play of Bill McCaughey, Jack Wheeler, Mike Van Leesten, Dick Ranleau, Leon Paparella, Stan Traverse, and Ron Clement. Mr. Sheehan expressed optimistic views concerning next year's team, with many newcomers adding strength to the team.

Dr. Morton Felix, Queens' College, University of Connecticut.

Mr. Puretz, at RIC since 1963 is the baseball coach. He has been in the process of building a strong nine to compete in the stiff competition of conference play. He feels that this year the team will be stronger than last year. With the increased participation of freshmen and sophomores, Mr. Puretz hopes to finish the season with a fine record.

Mr. Thomas Y. Sheehan, Notre Dame University, Ohio State University.

Dr. Felix, while a professor of psychology, is the exuberant coach of the golf team. He has coached the team for four years and has done an exceedingly good job in creating a strong RIC representative on the links. While most new teams lose most of the matches in conference play, Dr. Felix's team has won at least half of their matches. He feels that this year's team will be the best overall team he has ever had. His enthusiastic squad plays annual stalwarts—Worcester, Gorham and Salem in conference competition. As is the case with many sports, enthusiasm from the students has been a contributing factor in gaining members, experiences, and wins.

Mr. Donald H. Puretz, Brooklyn College, New York University.

William Gaige, President

president's address

Your years are barely a score, and yet in those few years, the knowledge you have exceeds that of those threescore and ten in the last century. Your problem is great, for unlike knowledge, wisdom must be newly acquired in each generation. And again, your problem is great, for love, too, must be rekindled in each generation. And the need for wisdom and the need for love is infinitely greater today and in your future, for the problem you must face and the people you must love are more each year—double in each third of a century.

What will you see? The dangers and the complexities? The billions of people of all races and religions and abilities and cultures? Or will you see the opportunities which you have for knowing, for judging, and for loving? Much as we have taught you, we would have taught you more and better. As good as we hope the examples are we have set for you, we wish that they were better. In fact, the truth is that you and we have learned together for a few short years. We are of the same generation. We live in the same world. Our hopes are the same hopes.

The campus and community that are Rhode Island College, you and we, have been growing, searching, experiencing, mistaking, and developing. As you have been growing toward adulthood, so, too, has the college been seeking a new maturity. We have succeeded in much, and in much we have yet to succeed. In all the growth and effort and confusion of the past four years, we have enjoyed you. You have lived and learned vigorously with us; you and we have shared not only in your personal growth, but in the corporate growth of your college into a more intellectual, more aesthetic, more social, more political place. May the goals we have sought and hoped for you be realized, and may your lives be full of high humanity.
