

SECRET & CONFIDENTIAL

“— — And, when the stream
Which overflowed the soul was passed away,
A consciousness remained that it had left,
Deposited upon the silent shore
Of memory, images and precious thoughts,
That shall not die, and cannot be destroyed.”

—William Wordsworth

“With flame of freedom in the souls,
And light of knowledge in their eyes.”

—John Addington Symonds

In grateful acknowledgment to one who through four years has so intelligently counseled us as dean, teacher, and friend; and who, by her own manner of gracious living, will continue to be a source of inspiration to us, we, the Class of 1945, dedicate this seventeenth volume of the Ricoleto to Catherine Mary Connor.

Class History

1941-42

We remember the Esplanade and Hayes Street entrances that first day. The guides we soon found in the deans, faculty advisers, and Junior sisters. We remember the declaration of war after which college years became war years. Our activities through Freshman days included: a play with an all-Freshman cast; the election of our only male class president; a banquet with informal faculty participation; an unusual Stunt Night skit, and the winner's place in an R.I.C.E. tradition—the Song Contest.

1942-43

That year saw our men enter the service. We missed their refreshing viewpoint on college life, their enthusiasm, and their humor in and out of class. February brought the Sophomores a gay time on roller skates. In March came the St. Patrick's Day party, the guests of honor being the faculty, our Senior sisters, and naval personnel from Newport. In the same month came the national Sophomore examinations in which our results compared favorably with other educational institutions. Next came the Song Contest in which committee and class joined in appearance (dark skirts, white blouses, and touches of red to carry out class colors) and song again to win first place. April brought the Soph Fiesta in which civilian and service escorts, conga lines, colorfully streamered ceiling, and wall sets picturing the Latin theme all combined to make this our most successful of dances. On Class Day thirty-two white-gowned Sophomores bore the Daisy Chain for the Seniors. We all shared in the excitement of that day as the Senior president bestowed upon us the coveted and traditional Anchor, recognizing us as class leaders although only Sophomores.

1943-44

As Juniors we returned with a formally prepared Freshman week which included mild hazing and receptions of welcome for the new students. In February we held a banquet and farewell party as state training separated the class. From mid-year until June we were reunited by evening class meetings, the Song Contest, and Stunt Night.

1944-45

Until mid-Senior year the class meetings continued to draw the Seniors together. In February, the right hand locker room was again occupied by the fifty-eight members of the Senior Class, a class which has lost forty-two members since 1941. The Stunt Night this year gained us first prize for a skit which depicted melodrama in the gay nineties. Then in March, for the third time in four years, we won first place in the Song Contest, dedicating our Alma Mater and Cheer Song to our advisers of the past four years. Although the end of school days approached, we continued with our activities including the Shakespearean and Senior plays, and May Day. We were also impressed by the Senior ceremonies of Cap and Gown Day, the Cap and Gown Dance, and Class Day. Now as June, '45, and graduation are near, our only wish for the future is not mainly for personal success but for the end of World War II and a new era of peace.

GATEWAYS

Life builded a wondrous mansion
And peopled it with dreams
With melody its mistress
And happiness its key.
Children found the key and entered,
Fared content within the halls,
Tasted there the seeds of knowledge,
But heeded laughter's calls.

Life gave of herself and her wonders
To do with as they would.
Around them a glorious garment she patterned of make-believe,
Besprinkled with sunshine and laughter, the whole of magic weave.

But now the portals open, and the children stand
Without the mansion's gates. Yet mem'ry's silken strand
Will ever bring them back as tedious paths they mount
To where their childhood dreams fresh the soul at beauty's fount.

Songs to Remember

ALMA MATER

WORDS AND MUSIC BY RAE K. O'NEILL

The musical score for 'Alma Mater' is written on five staves. It begins with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp (F#), and a 4/4 time signature. The melody is simple and nostalgic, with lyrics written below the notes. The score includes a chorus section marked 'CHORUS'.

With hearts overflowing our praise we sing to thee, as we cling to each moment from worldly cares so free. As time, which is end-less, so will our love flow on, to guide us, sus-tain us, when from these halls we've gone. R. I. C. e, we pledge to thee our loy-al-ty. We faith-ful shall remain thru years to be. When col-lege days are past and our mem'ries live on, we'll sing a-gain of praise and love for thee.

Cheer Song

Words and Music by EILEEN BARRY

We'll give three cheers for colors Red and White—
The Class of '45 will win the fight—
And as we march along
We want to sing our song
And always keep alive
The name of R.I.C.E., '45.
We'll cheer, cheer, cheer for college days
And keep our voices ringing in her praise
We'll try to win her honor, heap it upon her,
We are the Class of '45.

Class Will

The setting was the sea and mist, the rolling dunes, and buried almost completely by the sand, a treasure chest. The characters were Alice, just in from Wonderland, kneeling in the sand trying to open the heavy lid of the chest, and the White Rabbit leaning over her shoulder supervising the activity.

"Must be a million years old," said Alice.

"Nonsense," said the White Rabbit blowing dust off the name plate without soiling his white gloves. "It reads, 'R.I.C.E.—Class of '45'."

"Then," replied Alice firmly, "these must be the accumulated possessions and memories of the class, intended to be left to the faculty and remaining students."

"It would seem," rejoined the White Rabbit a bit brusquely as the lid of the chest opened, "that the class of '45 probably wished that no other class will leave memories such as some of these." Alice nodded in agreement as she gently drew from the chest a service map studded with colored pins and a service flag which encased within its folds the memory of students in an assembly hall hearing the president tell of the declaration of war, and the faces of students who came to realize the meaning of that war. Alice carefully replaced those memories as if she did not wish to disturb their sadness.

She withdrew the next of the possessions all addressed to the faculty, and sneezed violently as she did so.

"Probably dust from the assembly hall chairs," said the White Rabbit trying to protect his immaculate white gloves. Included among the various gifts for the faculty were a large supply of visiting celebrities for Miss Cuzner to entertain in her front parlor, i. e., the cozy corner; for Miss Bassett a briefcase with 85 compartments; for Dr. Ross, one person with a cold who goes immediately to the back of the room; to Miss Snell a wall sized bulletin board with a million clippings; to Professor Cavicchia the thanks of the many students who enjoyed the spaghetti suppers; to Mrs. Andrews one courageous person who can keep up with her; to Mr. Waite a new car to replace his present one; for Mr. Jensen space and more space to expand his geography exhibits; for Miss Kahler someone who could find a book; to Mr. Donovan a best seller which does not prove that "the stream of literature has struck a sewer"; to Miss Thompson leather bound copies of Messrs.

Thoreau and Emerson; perfect copies of rectangles and triangles for Miss Weber; to Mrs. Judge art students who keep paint boxes clean; for Miss Carlson a huge set of alphabets to be looked at whenever discouraged; a huge notebook in which Dean Connor may record the story of her travels to all those wonderful places which we may never see; to Miss Lee one student who looks happy on her way to teach at Barnard; for Miss Loughrey one class in which no one speaks French with an Irish brogue, and to Mr. Ethier the latest and biggest in splashy bow ties.

After Alice and the White Rabbit had examined the last of the gifts for the faculty, they pulled from the chest the remaining memories of the class of '45 left to the underclassmen at R.I.C.E. For all students there were the memories of locker room discussions, autumn soccer games, Sigma, forum arguments, notebooks with subjects all scattered about, and lockers filled with food, old gym shoes, jodphurs, year's collection of papers, badminton and ping pong rackets, extra sweaters, and play costumes. To the Freshmen were left the first months of bewilderment, the beginnings of friendships, a staggering number of subjects, maypole dancing, and last seats in assembly. For the Sophomores there were memories of the Soph Hop, the Daisy Chain, and the feeling of being neither a new student nor a Junior haunted by practice. To all Juniors went the breathless state in which one arrives at Barnard, the lovely way the world looks on the day you're not teaching, and the class reunions at evening meetings.

"That seems to be all," said Alice as she replaced that last memory. The next time I visit the College I shall place this chest in care of the students."

"I prefer to remain outside," said the White Rabbit in his own peculiar way of speaking. "Never can tell what could happen to as good looking a fellow as I am with all those women around."

"Now what do you mean by that remark?" said Alice slamming the lid of the chest firmly shut.

But she received no answer for when she glanced up the White Rabbit was almost at the top of the second sand dune and all she could see were his immaculate white gloves shining through the mists and his voice coming back to her muttering, "What will the Queen say? I'm late already."

The Juniors

Class History

—in which we discover that we do not sink completely in spite of practice and training.

The Juniors, a class with much talent, are unsurpassed in showmanship.

ACTIVITIES:

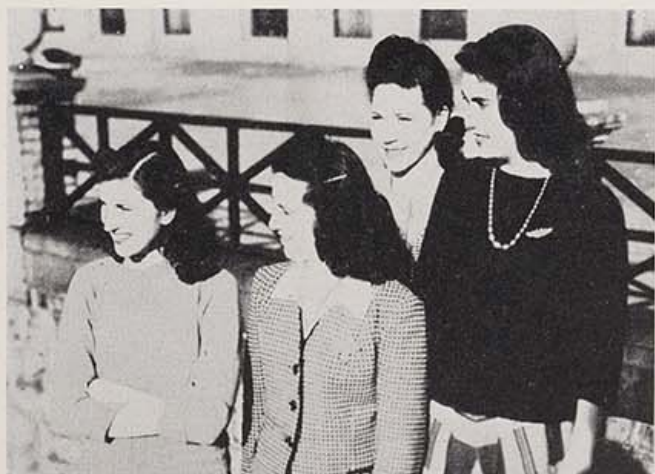

Freshman Week brought much good-humored hazing as the Juniors acquainted their sisters with the rest of the College. Climax of the Week was the hot-dog roast held in Room 102. The Junior Prom under the chairmanship of Doris McGinty was held at Agawam Hunt and attended by members of all classes. For their excellent presentation on Stunt Night the Juniors received second place. The skit parodied the fairy tale of Cinderella. The heroine was a poor girl with all the problems of the average Ricean, a fairy godmother with a magic box of Duz, and two wicked stepsisters representing members of the faculty. Helen Aspinwall was chairman of the committee. The February Junior banquet was also a farewell party as one-half of the class left for a semester of training. All the class was reunited again in the March song contest as the Juniors presented an Alma Mater and Cheer Song composed by Gabrielle Paquin, Anne Siniak, Rose Donetelli, and Patricia Donovan. The song leader was Ann Siniak. Although half of their classmates are away the remaining Juniors continue extra-curricular activities; and until all training is over the Sunday afternoon class meetings will find the class together.

ACTIVITIES:

The Sophomore Stunt Night was The Missing Clink—from prison to teachers' college in one short year with reconversion not quite complete. From this unusual stunt came one of the dances of the year—a sight in black-and-white—The Jailbird Shuffle. Backstage excitement was caused by the disappearance of Chairman Claire Auger and several of the cast just before the performance. At the Kiddie Christmas Party Mary Holton collaborated with Santa Claus to provide fun, the Sophomores attending in best party frocks and hair in pigtails. At the Song Contest in March the Sophomores captured the coveted second place. The songs were led by Maureen Maloney while the Alma Mater and the words to the Cheer Song were composed by Mary Jo Traynor. Soph costumes were the most colorful of all for the eighty girls wore soft pink, blue, and yellow skirts with ruffled white blouses. In April the Soph Hop with a nautical setting was held at the College, and in the same month, the Seniors were honored guests of the Sophomores at a Melocian Party. Although they have not been at R.I.C.E. two years, the Sophomores have participated in many extra-curricular activities. Their work in sports has been noteworthy since they hold the record for best attendance in soccer and have ably supported other athletic activities.

The Freshmen

Class History

—we plunge in—to sink or swim.

The Freshmen, a class which has the gift of being unusual and the ability to always surge ahead.

ACTIVITIES:

These ninety-two Freshmen started their four years at R.I.C.E. with a week of initiation which included dolls and dog collars, an I. R. C. and Faculty Tea, and a Junior-Freshman Party. They evidently must have heard of the Anchor award for they began early to show interest in sports and dance and play attendance. The Freshman Stunt Night skit with Beth Dowling as committee chairman ably expressed the plight of everyone with the manpower shortage as the subject. December also saw a spaghetti supper for the Italian students with Professor Cavicchia as host. The Christmas Party brought a great deal of entertainment and satisfaction to everyone especially since the gifts were presented to Russian War Relief. For the Song Contest the Alma Mater and Cheer Song were written by Catherine Conway, Joan Doyle, Helen Holmberg, Concetta Millemaggi, and Dorothy Rossi. In March Barbara McNally was elected to the new Assembly Committee. Although this is their first year, the Freshmen have demonstrated to everyone a lesson in participation in extra-curricular activities.

Student Council

Student Council was especially active this year under the efficient direction of Eileen Barry, who served as President for two consecutive terms. Other officers in the executive body of the Student Cooperative Association were Vice-President, Elizabeth Lennon; Secretary, Mary Black; and Treasurer, Anne Siniak. Delegates from each of the classes completed the membership of the organization.

One of the most important groups in the college, participation in which is a coveted honor, student council serves to coordinate the affairs of the students and the faculty. To accomplish this, committees are organized in behalf of the students.

This year, as in other years, members were sent by the council not only to the regular conferences, but also to other colleges to discuss questions of mutual interest. Investigation and consequent cooperation with both faculty and students also resulted in improvements such as a new curriculum and a more representative cut system. Working with the deans, delegates as usual elected candidates to Who's Who. Advisers to the council were Dr. Loughrey, Professor Read, and Professor Andrews.

I. R. C.

Realizing the importance of the past year of national interfusion of new social concepts, economic problems, and political creeds as interpreted for the world in such articles of faith as the Dumbarton Oaks Agreement, and the Bretton Woods and Yalta Conferences, the International Relations Club has found much important material for intensive study and discussion.

Highlights of the year were the New Britain Conference at Teachers College and the Interfaith Conference held at Brown University in which members of the club both led and participated in discussion groups on the problems of the rights of the individual, and the methods of combatting race prejudice.

The capable leaders included the following: President, Josephine Kerr; Vice-President, Mary Louise Fillo; Secretary, Marion Pendleton; Treasurer, Barbara Dill; Chairman of the Social Committee, Mary Black; Chairman of the Program Committee, Gabrielle Beausoleil.

Anchor

The eighteenth year of the Anchor's existence finds the press actively giving voice to the opinions of the student body, the task of any college publication. With the overwhelming support of the students and the ever-ready aid of the faculty adviser, Miss Amy Thompson, the paper has become an even more integral part of college life.

Through the Letterbox and Christmas News Letter, the Anchor has continued its policy of keeping in touch with the men in the armed services, receiving a most gratifying response in reply from the servicemen.

The Editorial Board included the following: Editor-in-Chief, Rae K. O'Neill; Associate Editor, Marion Pendleton; News Editor, Barbara Dill; Feature Editors, Yolande Magner and Viola Cartwright; Exchange Editor, Rose DiCola; Make-up Editor, Elizabeth Schofield; Business Manager, Molly Moses; Circulation Manager, Helen Major.

The literary issue, the Helicon, was published in April under the editorship of Beth Cashman of the Junior Class.

Dramatics

The Dramatic League has completed another year in its tradition of successful entertainment for all occasions, leaving behind it a reflective sigh from those Seniors who have taken the last curtain-call, and an anticipatory chuckle from the underclassmen awaiting their chance.

Providing a varied program of productions, the league offered first three one-act plays, always popular with audiences, and followed them with Thornton Wilder's Happy Journey, a human comedy presented in conjunction with the Alumni Association's offering, Sardines, for the sale of War Bonds and Stamps.

The annual Shakespearian play, Much Ado About Nothing, and the Senior play, Brief Music, climaxed an eventful season of dramatic effort by the league. In addition to other events, the league sponsored the Poetry Reading Contest and a series of debates on various subjects.

Officers include the following: President, Geraldine Carley; First Vice-President, Camille Blain; Second Vice-President, Josephine Kerr; Secretary, Petrina Mannarelli; Treasurer, Gabrielle Beausoleil.

Glee Club

Under the direction of Miss Gertrude E. Gunigle, the college Glee Club has presented a year's program of sacred and secular music to suit all occasions. As early as October, the club offered a tribute to departed teachers during Teachers' Institute.

The Christmas Concert, a formal evening presentation open to parents, friends, and students, was well worth the preparation, as was evidenced through an invitation to appear at the Officers' Club in the Biltmore.

While in the stages of rehearsal for the second major offering of the year, the Spring Concert, the Glee Club was busily engaged in rendering South American music at the Pan-American Day celebration in April, and songs of many nations at the New England Geography Conference. As a culminating effort, the club participated in traditional Vespers and Commencement ceremonies.

Officers include the following: Maureen Maloney, President; Audrey Livesey, Vice-President; Marcia Gifford, Secretary-Treasurer; Marion Lund and Elizabeth Armington, Librarians.

A program, varying from a hot-dog roast on the campus followed by square-dancing in the recreation room, to an apparatus party held in the gymnasium, and lastly a May Breakfast served in the gray dawn, was enjoyed by all during the association's social season.

Soccer and basketball were the sports highlighted. Of these, first place was won by the Seniors and second place by the Juniors in soccer, while in basketball, the Sophomores triumphed over the Freshmen and the Seniors over the Juniors.

Leaders of the organization were Dorothy Horne, President; Marion Lund, Vice-President; Luigina Cianfarani, Secretary-Treasurer; Elizabeth Schofield, Social Committee Chairman.

Ricoled

The RICOLED staff has oft heard the saying, "There's a war on". This maxim, however, has not caused the slightest delay in the production of the book. On the contrary, during the weeks spent cloistered in the large stuffy closet bruited about as the RICOLED office, we found little or no difficulty in selecting suitable cover material, accumulating pictures, and in meeting advanced deadlines.

Although the work of most of the staffs was not observed beyond the office pale, the two Photography Editors, burdened with impediments, were a familiar and awesome sight as they trudged through the halls in search of unwitting subjects.

The aim of the RICOLED has been to survey the year's progress, and to present the Seniors with a tangible remembrance of four years at R. I. C. E. And now after a year of pleasant effort the staff submits to the reader for his perusal and perhaps enjoyment, this latest edition of the yearbook.

Acknowledgments

If there be any merit to this volume of the RICOLED, if what is pictured and printed herein gives, in any way, pleasure to the reader, let it be understood that the credit is due to the editorial board, members of the staff, faculty advisers, and representatives of outside firms.

Without the invaluable assistance of Associate Editor Barbara I. Dill, whose specific knowledge of engravers' terms, materials, and curious methods of scaling pictures to size, enlightened and consequently aided the Editor over difficult weeks, the book could not have been a success.

Without the thorough efficiency with which Business Manager Rae K. O'Neill competently took into her own hands the filling of nine pages of ads, the appointing of a staff, and the performance of the sundry duties which fell to her lot, the book could not have been a financial success.

Without the unflagging zeal with which Literary Editor Yolande Magner plied her task, as is oft quoted, "through sickness and in health", writing, writing, and re-writing the voluminous works printed within these covers, it is evident that the book could not have been a literary success.

Without the astonishing vigor with which Photography Editors Viola Bousquet and Stephanie Siczewicz scoured the building, everlastingly taking and re-taking snapshots, developing and printing the same, the book could not have been a photographic success.

Without the constant devotion to things artistic to which Art Editors Marguerite Cianfarani and Kathleen Emin have so willingly given their time during past months, toiling over pages of snaps, pasting and snipping incessantly, producing reams of sketches, and designing covers as off-handedly as though these were not the products of hours of labor, the book could not have been an artistic success.

Without the aid of various charitably-minded students, Agnes Keenan, Dorothy Horne, Irene Dufort, Viola Cartwright, and Alice King, who offered help when it was most needed, the book could not have been a united success.

Without the assistance of Professor Charles W. Underhill, Financial Adviser, Professor Mary Loughrey, Literary Adviser, Mrs. Jean Judge, Art Adviser, and Professor John G. Read, Photography Adviser, the book could not have proceeded so steadily.

Without the sincere aid of Mr. Edward J. Flanagan of the Oxford Press, Mr. R. B. Jones and Mrs. Carl Dill of Parks-Mowbray Co., Engravers, and Mr. Philip H. Cohen, and Mr. J. Goss of Loring Studios, the results of whose sincere and competent adjustments of problems and answers to questions along with self-evident excellence of work are here represented, RICOLED 1945 could not have been a professional success.

ELEANOR C. LABRIE, Editor

To the Editor,

We wish to extend sincere appreciation to Eleanor C. Labrie, Editor, whose good-natured and intelligent direction gained the cooperation and love of all those who assisted her.
