Symphony of Life

Across responsive strings
Music may sweep,
Chords swell, cadences linger, songs burst into being,
As the symphony of life is made.

We have learned to love its motifs,
Have listened for the theme,
From memory grows the music,
From chords that have touched each soul.

Solemn strains of slow and steady progress,
Mounting oft by semitones alone,
End, for some, in major chords of triumph,
For some, in minor tones of longing unfulfilled,
As one great movement closes with this year.

Throughout four years, enriching harmony,
Have run the bonds of growing fellowship
For classmates who, like us, work toward one goal,
Yet stop sometimes to play and sing gay tunes.

Already the strings begin to sound
The faint arpeggios of movements to come,
For us begins now the slow modulation
Henceforth to resolve into varied themes.

To lead through faith, through effort,
Into crashing chords or simple tunes,
Each different, yet each interwoven
With a counterpoint all here share.

Across the responsive strings of our lives
Great music will sweep;
Music of retrospect, touching each heart
With much of regret and much of joy,
Memory motifs of teachers and classmates,
Of guidance, of fellowship—four fruitful years,
And now this movement draws to an end.

But the strings are tuned for the music to come;
Music of triumph, of achievement. Then,
As the final movement goes on
Into brilliant coda, or plaintive cadence,
The Master Musician will listen
For the opus we each have composed.

ETHEL MAINES.

Song of Seniors

Canto i

Sing to me, Muse, of the untried band of stalwart heroes, strong in heart, who, having prayed to gods, set forth on their journey. Unknown to each other they come, they so soon to be tried by the same Fortune, working and playing together; to keep their armor bright their aim; to whet their weapons against the rock of Knowledge. To fair shores they turn, untried as yet, their brightness undimmed.

Canto ii

Sing to me Muse, of the sturdy band come safely through the storms and dangers of their early journey to gain, through their trials, the strength and wisdom all men must have to reach their appointed shore. The gods have been kind, yea, in their time they have sent but fleeting troubles, small trials to test the strength of these who aspire to greatness. Nor did their courage waver, but like the poplar, when blown by the wind, did they spring lightly back to their accustomed place, made strong by the knowledge of their ability, sure in the fervor of their calling. O, these are a happy band, glad are their hearts, their voyage half done.

Canto iii

But Fortune favors not too easily to reach their goal. Much trouble she must send, woe be their lot—separated and cast adrift, each must fend for himself. Woe, woe, be the unhappy band; separated from beloved comrades, cast up on foreign shores by the angry sea, alone—new, strange worlds to be conquered, new ways to be tried, strength is in this way determined. O, Zeus, let not the unhappy ones waver, let them not cry out, or sink under their burdens, lacking the comradeship of their fellows. Leash up your thunderbolts, O mighty one, make smooth their path; that thine altars may be wreathed with garlands, may song and incense ascend to thee. Leave not thy children to be drowned, alone and unfriended in the hostile sea. At the supreme test let them not falter, but let the light of Minerva descend to them, O father, that all triumph and glory shall be thine and theirs.

Canto iv

Sing to me, Muse, of the happy band joined once again on the farther shore. Many are the tales of victory to be told whilst around the festal fires they gather. Their lips are glad, a song comes easily to them, as though all were favorite sons of Apollo. Changed are the faces of the valiant band, no contour of childhood lingers. As the fire doth purge away the dross so only the purest silver remains, thus are the faces of these happy warriors returned from their conquests, rich with spoils. Many days and many nights were they thus gathered, happy in their comradeship, proud in their armor, uplifted, yea to the very heavens, O Thundercloud, by the trials they had borne and victories they had won. As the soldier doth doff his armor at the nearness of his love, so do these their armor doff in the presence of their comrades. The memories and the strength they cannot leave off nor desire to.

O happy and desired shore, O miserable and unwelcome sight, the goal is reached, but the comradeship is ended. The band is dispersed each to his own field, with sad hearts but new hope they go—ever to hold most dear, friendship and memories and love and laughter.

The Anchor

We of Rhode Island College of Education hold as our highest tradition the Anchor, representing what we feel to be the noblest elements of our college—loyalty, scholarship, and distinctive achievement. The class of 1939 is proud to have been guardian of that time-honored symbol. We pass it on to our successor with the certainty that the spirit of the Anchor will ever live.

Senior Class Will

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1939

KNOW ALL MEN (or such men as we would like to know) BY THESE PRESENTS (for by their presents we shall know them) that we the members of the Class of 1939, in Ricoled assembled, having reached our scholastic majority and at long last delivered from our bondage, being of sound and disposing mind (?) for the time being at least, and of many pleasant memories, do hereby make (up) publish and declare this extraordinary document as our last parting words of advice, guidance and warning to those who may come after us but who cannot now talk back at us; hereby revoking any and all authority to which we have been subjected at the college during the past four years together with any former will or wills by us at any time made except "the will" to succeed as teachers in our profession which was first solemnly made and declared by us as Freshmen on September—1935. This will, we hereby re-affirm, and we hereby give, devise and bequeath the fond heritage of the past four years to those who succeed us, in manner following, that is to say.

I, Helen Adler, hereby bequeath to some incoming Freshman the opportunity to demonstrate her ability first, yet be the last to know what it is all about.

I, Lois Almy, hereby bequeath to anyone who may come from Little Compton the thrill of knowing that by the time she is a senior someone will know where Little Compton is.

I, Hope Allen Arnold, hereby bequeath, to save the stockings of future students, a piece of sandpaper to the janitors.

I, Helen Louise Baggott, hereby bequeath to some in-coming Freshman my short walks to and from school.

I, Ruth W. Bailey, hereby bequeath my old fur coat to some poor soul who is always freezing on the third floor.

I, Michael J. Beauchemin, hereby bequeath to each and every underclassman my inveterate propensity for contention.

I, Candide Belanger, do leave Eleanor McAuliffe my special prescription for making curls.

We, Myrtle Bennett and Joan Coffey, do bequeath our double lunch hour each day to a deserving and preferably thin Junior.

I, Roberta E. Benoit, hereby bequeath to the next secretary of the Student Council the job of trying to be heard by the Freshmen on Thursday at Forum.

I, Rita Black, hereby bequeath to anyone who parks on the campus, the iron post on which I have left many a scar and vice versa.

I, Madeline Bloom, hereby bequeath to Selma Krasnow the great honor and privilege of acquiring my orchestra seat in chapel.

I, Emily Borges, hereby bequeath to any deserving undergraduate my ability to run to the locker room between periods, snatch a bite of lunch and get to class on time.

I, Bill Boyle, hereby bequeath my interest in the problems and orientation of Freshman males to Jim Warren, Metro Kwasnicki, and Frank Milligan.

I, Henrietta Brassell, hereby bequeath to anyone with a car the right to use my unmolested space in the State House grounds.

I, Helen Brayton, hereby bequeath the mirror from my locker to Maxine Maxwell so she won't have to wait in vain to get a peek in the locker room mirror.

I, Margaret Burns, hereby bequeath to the next president of the Glee Club all the fun, excitement, and elevator rides while preparing for the Candle Lighting Service.

I, Mary F. Burns, will my "do" to anyone who can acquire "dough" by it.

I, Frank Campagna, hereby bequeath to Joseph "Pip" Securo the art of playing checkers so that he will be able to win a few games in the future.

I, Betty Carney, hereby bequeath to all "Elizabths" the trouble of looking up the correct spelling of that name when a formal signature is necessary.

I, Emmajanis Closson, hereby bequeath to Helen Kiernan one-half interest in the school ticket office to divide among other purchasers using her name.

I, Frances Collins, do bequeath to Barbara Henries an animated account of our mutual experiences to be read twice daily, going to and from school.

I, Corinne Comstock, hereby bequeath to Bernice L. Edwards my ability to look supremely innocent at all times.

I, Andrew H. Comstock will or bequeath to Bob Byron the arduous duties of the manager of the tennis team.

I, George L. Connor, bequeath to Bob Byron many more nights like the Gorham game without all the bother of the "training table."

I, Rita H. Connor, do bequeath to Helen Minahan my numerous black and blue marks from unsuccessful weekends on skis.

I, Gertrude Conway, hereby bequeath to Catherine Conway the privilege of being the only passenger for the 7:53 train at Lonsdale.

I, Barbara L. Coogan, hereby bequeath to any out-of-towner the detailed arrangement concerning sleeping quarters, transportation, and the like which accompany attendance at any school activities, dances, etc.

I, Fred Csizmesia, do bequeath to Jack Goodwin the hope that my list of hitch-hiker picker-uppers will enlarge his already growing list of patrons.

I, Olga Czorny, hereby bequeath to Rosemary Burns my daily apple to be eaten at 3:00 P. M.

I, Bernice Cunningham, bequeath to any wondering Junior my happy realization that practice and training days are over.

I, Mary M. Curran, hereby bequeath to Dorothy Dolan the honor of rushing to save chairs (that do not rip stockings) at lunch.

I, Mary Davidow, hereby bequeath to one who is willing to accept the bequest my happy college "daze."

I, Mildred DeSimone, hereby bequeath to two sleepy people the honor and privilege of falling asleep in class.

I, Eleanor Devanney, hereby bequeath to any successful pusher the front row at any mirror in the locker rooms.

I, Lucy DiSarro, hereby bequeath to those willing to take chances Locker Number 135. (N. B. Open to the public at all times.)

I, Margaret Doherty, hereby bequeath to any "street-car Misser" in the Junior Class that annoying habit of arriving here one minute too late for chapel.

I, Barbara Farrell, hereby bequeath my ability as water carrier for full lunch tables to Blanche Graichen.

I, Kathryn Farrell, bequeath to Ginny Palmer a personal name ink stamp to use on reserve book slips—to save wear and tear on her pencils.

I, Muriel Feldman, do bequeath to any undergraduate the distinct privilege of using a leaky fountain pen to take class notes.

I, Ruth Fitzpatrick, hereby bequeath my honored and respected place in the locker room mirror every morning at 8:30 to Lucille Daigle, who has so often coveted it. P. S. This doesn't begin until September, Lucille.

I, Rita Ford, hereby bequeath to any interested Junior my daily trips to Dr. Weston's office and library for Elementary Science books.

I, Henrietta Gallagher, hereby bequeath to any Junior from Providence the pleasure I had figuring out all the details for applying for a position in the "Big City."

I, Eleanor Gavitt, hereby bequeath the honor at having training before Practice to some unsuspecting Sophomore.

I, Pessy I. Goldstein, do hereby bequeath to any undergraduate the distinctive honor of signing his or her exams, artistic achievements, etc., P. I. G. or with some other such honorable initials.

I, Dorothy Greco, hereby bequeath to Helen Freeborn all the good times I've had while participating in athletic activities.

I, Norman Green, hereby bequeath to "Baron" Kwasnicki the obligation of upholding the prestige of our mutual friend, Pinckney Wortle.

I, Mayola Hanczaryk, hereby bequeath to my sister, Jennie Hanczaryk, the right to enjoy any improvements which may be made in the college after my departure.

I, Mary Hardiman, hereby bequeath to Doris Bettez of the Class of '42 a notebook of such size that the necessity of carrying many small ones will be eliminated.

I, Eleanor Heffernan, hereby bequeath my good habit of never cleaning my saddle shoes to the hundreds of other girls in the college who have saddle shoes.

I, Jean Hinman, hereby bequeath my independent spirit to one of the undergraduates most in need of it.

I, Gertrude Houle, hereby bequeath to any future social committee member the scars acquired from pushing in thumb tacks, cutting crepe paper, moving pianos, and sitting on tables with unattached legs.

I, Mary E. Hynes, hereby bequeath the privilege of falling during the May Day dance performance to Ethelind Wunsch—whose natural grace forestalls any chance of her using it.

I, Frances Jones, hereby bequeath my youth to Claire Olivier because, by some means, she would get him, anyway.

I, Dorothy Judge, hereby bequeath my champion record of high jumps performed when the 2:00 bell rings.

I, Helen Kasek, hereby bequeath to Ruth Pearson the distinction of training with an out-of-town student.

I, Regina Kaveny, do bequeath to some underclassman the privilege of writing the daily menu for the cafeteria for four years.

I, Betty Kearney, hereby bequeath my collection of chunky jewelry to any underclassman who likes to jingle.

I, Rita Keeley, hereby bequeath my plastic masterpiece, "Silver," to R. I. C. E. to take its place beside other unfinished masterpieces of the world.

I, Ruth Kerr, bequeath to Madeline Neiderer my propensity toward using the loud pedal and also my intensive employment of the Key of C.

I, Sylvia Kniznik, as editor of the Ricoled, do hereby bequeath to future editors my leisure time.

I, Connie Krasowska, hereby bequeath to Jane Suita the honor of being greeted "Hello, Honey"—even in the midst of a strange on-looking audience—each time she boards the Providence-Worcester train.

I, Albert Krueger, hereby bequeath to Matteo Salemi, my assistant, a key to the elevator to be used only on errands for the Science Department.

I, Isabel Lanard, bequeath to any so inclined member of the college the part in Stunt Nite of Dr. Carter of Liver Pill fame, and the task of carrying a bottle as big as herself.

I, Euclid Lague, hereby bequeath my boisterous spirits to Frank Milligan.

I, Mary Larice, hereby bequeath to all those tiny girls of the underclassmen a private mirror for the girls' locker room for their exclusive use, and I mean "private", all you tall girls.

I, Lillian Lewis, hereby bequeath to Elizabeth Rawdon my promptness to classes—especially to Sociology.

I, Theodore Liard, hereby bequeath to Joseph Securo my keen sense of hearing in the hope that with advancing age and increasing wisdom he may come to the realization that Guy Lombardo's band is as "corny" as Farmer Brown's silo.

I, Marjorie Lowe, hereby bequeath my referee's whistle, slightly worn from use in Freshman basketball practice, to Laura Darcy, lest she forget its melodious sound.

I, Frances MacBain, hereby bequeath to Louise Ogilvie the honor of being chief pancake-flopper on the next Youth Hostel trip.

I, Doris Maguire, hereby bequeath to Peg Kenny the pleasure of saving a dozen seats downstairs at each basketball game.

I, Rita Mailloux, hereby bequeath to my brother, Lenny, the joy of missing the 4:40 after it has been waiting in Providence all day.

I, Ethel Maines, hereby bequeath my place beside the driver on the Westerly bus to Thelma Kenyon, who has long coveted it.

I, Amalia Martucci, hereby bequeath my ability to make coffee to any future member of the Italian Club Social Committee.

I, Eileen McCabe, hereby bequeath the dimple in my chin to Helen Mullen, Junior, to be used with due reverence for my lamented passing from these hallowed halls.

I, Francis McCabe, hereby bequeath to anyone my concern over red fingernails, brown ink, blue Mondays, green Freshmen, black scowls, golden hair, silver moons, and white ties.

We, Anna F. McCrohan and Ruth M. Leve, hereby bequeath to any lax underclassmen our stern sense of duty.

I, Irene McDonnell, hereby bequeath my superior ability in Math to Catherine Fuller, Freshman.

I, Rose McDonnell, hereby bequeath to Italia D'Attore the immense pleasure of finding on days of scheduled games a Senior second team.

I, Florence McGauley, bequeath to Marion Sword my liking for variety in coiffures.

I, Mary McGovern, hereby bequeath to some music lover the privilege of being a private audience at Monticone-Murphy jam sessions.

I, Irene McKenna, will to the next president of the Art Club the consoling thought that meetings are so meagerly attended due to the fact that "artistic" people, being temperamental, deplore crowds.

We, Marguerite McLaughlin and Anne Mathews, do hereby bequeath to Nancy Gardner and Florence Giblin our many pleasant afternoons spent in the Providence Public Library.

I, Mabel Menders, hereby bequeath to Rita Williams, whom I have been training, my unique position of "Adjourner of Meetings." May she equal my record of 422 adjournments during my four years at R. I. C. E.

I, "Jerry" Monticone, leave to anyone who has the physical endurance to stand it, the piano in the gym, in hope that he or she will have better luck in getting pedals for it than I did.

I, Margaret Morgan, bequeath the tunes "Nagasaki" and "Me and the Moon" to Peg Kenny to be played only for dancing during the lunch period.

I, Winifred M. Morris, do hereby will and bequeath to any Junior who has the three cents, my affection for daily hard rolls, with two pieces of butter on rare occasions.

We, Helen M. Murphy and Dorothy M. McElroy, do hereby will and bequeath to Virginia Palmer and Kate Morgan our enjoyment of dancing together during the noon hour (or any time).

I, Helen M. M. Murphy, hereby bequeath to any so-inclined co-ed of the underclasses the questionable privilege of being the only female member of Professor Lunt's Physics class, and do herewith renounce the above-mentioned privilege, together with all its incumbent trials and tribulations.

I, Edith Parks, hereby bequeath the couches in Dr. Ross's room for all those who feel the need of a catnap.

I, Elda Petrucci, hereby bequeath my temptation to answer any and all questions regardless of knowledge to any brave Freshman.

I, Louise R. Polichetti, hereby bequeath the constant jingling of my bracelets to break the stillness in the Reserve Library.

I, Olive Potts, hereby bequeath to Bernice Lambert, Freshman, the pleasure of representing (and defending) the large City of Warwick.

I, Grayce Prince, hereby bequeath to Jane Place of the Sophomore Class my special mattress at the house at Camp Hoffman, and hope that she finds straw in it and not shredded wheat.

I, Emma Quinn, do hereby bequeath to the janitors some shellac and varnish to complete the sandpapering of the chairs.

I, Eileen Reynolds, hereby bequeath to any worthy Junior the "natty" high sneaks which have been as wings to me in all of my Gym electives.

I, Mary Rogers, hereby bequeath to Helen Groff a "tin" locker, guaranteed to be free of any superfluous inhabitants.

I, Ruth C. Rubin, do bequeath to some puzzled Freshmen my wrinkled nose expression when piqued.

I, Joe Salvatore, do will to some undergraduate thespian the genuine pleasure of acting in Christmas plays.

We, Connie Santoro, Lorrie Szlezak, Peggy Sisson, hereby bequeath to any three spirited Freshmen the right to continue our triumvirate.

I, Barbara M. Scott, bequeath to future graduate students the pleasure of practicing with such "regular" regulars.

I, Louise Smith, hereby bequeath my upswept hair-do to Shirley Smith, with a forewarning that she will need plenty of hair pins.

I, Dorothy Stewart, hereby bequeath to anyone with good lungs the privilege of coaxing people to support the athletic teams by attendance at games and such.

We, Anne and Claire Sullivan, do hereby bequeath to Cecile Sullivan the honor of carrying on the Sullivan tradition, which we so earnestly established.

I, Olive Summerscales, do bequeath to some unsuspecting Junior the opportunity of trying on and examining caps and gowns of all sizes and shapes.

We, Jean Teder and Anna Thibeault, hereby bequeath our alphabetical inseparability to Isabel Barr and Betty Breadon.

I, Rosamund Trainor, hereby bequeath to some worthy student of this profession my deep respect for Dr. Ross's mannequin with the hope that she may some day discover the reason for his expression of deep disillusion.

We, Helen Walker and Betty Holliday of the Senior Class do bequeath to Julienne Gibson and Isabella Barr of the Junior Class our ability to entertain the passengers on the local with the singing of "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

I, Luessa Wilder, do bequeath to Winifred Carmody, Freshman, my ability to accompany the melodies in chapel by whistling an obligato.

I, Peggy Wood, do hereby bequeath to any underclassman the privilege of sharing one locker with three pals.

I, Rachel Young, do bequeath to some incoming member of the Freshman Class the privilege of being the last on the list, the last to get report cards, and the last seat in every class.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF We the members of the Class of 1939 have to this our last will and testament set our hands and have hereunto set our seal this 17th day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Thirty-Nine.

CLASS OF 1939

Signed, sealed, executed, published, pronounced and declared by the members of the Class of 1939 as and for their last will and testament at Providence, Rhode Island, this 17th day of June A. D. 1939 in the presence of us, the undersigned, who have at their request, in their presence and in the presence of each other hereunto below subscribed our names as ATTESTING WITNESSES.

Songs We Sang

PROF. ELMER S. HOSMER

No senior yearbook would be complete for us as a record of four years' living among the rest of our college contemporaries without some mention of Song Contest. And, who can look backward without conjuring a vision of thrilling choral singing, joyous cooperation and rivalry, colorful and novel musical arrangements and settings—and, on the stage, a man holding the prize. Professor Hosmer resigned from active teaching at R.I.C.E. in 1937; but the Seniors who perhaps knew him better than any other class in the college today, have dedicated this page of songs to him. To him go our thanks for his inspiring example.

FRESHMAN YEAR

Words and Music, Florence Rosen

Thou haven of immortal hope
We'll offer honor unto thee,
We'll sing thy praise so glorious
All hail to thee, R.I.C.E.
All hail to thee as we depart
To struggle hard to bring thee fame,
Oh, Alma Mater, mother dear,
We shall strive in life's great game,
May God be near as we aspire
To honor thy beloved name.

SOPHOMORE AND JUNIOR YEAR

Dedicated to Prof. Elmer S. Hosmer
Words, Louise Smith; Music, Jean Hinman;
Arrangement, Theodore Liard

Alma Mater, we unite our voices to sing thy praise.
R.I.C.E. loyal voices raise
In thy hope, in thy truth, our endeavoring youth
Knows thy guidance sure and strong.
Days go by, labors wait, but thy precepts straight
We'll remember long.
R.I.C.E., home of truth resplendent we praise thy name.
Alma Mater, loyal hearts acclaim.

SENIOR YEAR

Dedicated to Prof. Eugene Tuttle
Words, Helen Murphy, Eileen McCabe; Music,
Yale Whifflepoof Song; Arrangement,
Theodore Liard

Through the years, O Alma Mater,
Within thy hallowed halls,
Thou hast guided us and sheltered us always,
And now that we must leave thee,
Thy sacred name enthralles,
And loyal voices sing thy well-earned praise.
Yes, the praises of our college,
Of the school we love so well,
We shall ne'er forget thee in life's trying test.
We shall praise thee, Alma Mater,
While life and voice shall last.
Then we'll pass and be forgotten with the rest.

CHORUS

O, Mother of truth, throughout the years ever
Will we
Rejoice in thy fame, our college dear, R.I.C.E.
Hearts brimming over with loyalty,
Pledging fidelity unto thee,
Deep in our hearts you will ever be, R.I.C.E.

JUNIOR JAM

I.

"Opening Dirge"

(The rising curtain reveals a backdrop showing the campus as of October 1938. The Dirge is sung by a chorus of Juniors in Antigone costumes.)

This is the campus post-heave-al. The shattered elms and the tree stumps,
Surrounded by holes, and in naked state, a blot in the daylight,
Stand like emblems of fate, with postures queer and inebriate,
Stand like ancient profs caught in the webs of their lectures.
Loud from its cobbled street, the rattled-voiced neighboring trolley
Speaks, and in accents metallic answers the wail of the co-eds.

This is the campus post-heave-al; but where are the hearts that amid it
Leaped like the stude's, when he hears in the classroom the end of the period?
Where are the kibitzers, the gossipers, and what-nots,— —
Juniors whose lives romped on like a swing tune that jazzes the atmosphere,
Darkened by shadows of tubas, but reflecting an attitude carefree?
Gone are those pleasant chatterings, and the chatterers for long departed!
Scattered among the critics, when the mighty blasts of training
Seize them, and whirl them away, and sprinkle them far o'er the old state,
Naught but one half remains of the lively class of the Juniors.
(Tremolo effects from the strings and woodwinds. The scene darkens. Fade out.)

II.

"All This, and Practice Too"

(The campus again, but this time the Barnard is almost offensively prominent. The Juniors are wearing proper clothes, but their expression— —! Well, not quite normal. Once more the Chorus gives voice to heartfelt emotion.)

The hours become more hectic,
The Juniors apoplectic;
Events in Europe can't compare
With crises in the Rican air.
The Junior stumbles here and there;
Particularly
Extra-curricularly
Everything's got in his hair,
And as he totters on the stair
He hums a ditty sad and blue:
"All this, and practice too."

History

There may be a May Day,
There may be a play,
A Prom may need planning,
A skit some de-hamming;
The Junior staggers overwrought,
And yet he knows
There will be rows
Of cherubs waiting to be taught
Of something he himself knows naught,
And so he crams some knowledge new:
All this, and practice too.

Oh, books pedagogical
With lesson plans logical
Juniors peruse
Trying hard not to snooze.
The Junior's life runs on pell-mell:
Glee club and basketball,
I.R.C. teas and all,
Suppers, and banquets, and dances as well,
More really happens than there's space to tell,
Here's just a little sparrow's-eye view— —
All this, and PRACTICE too.
(Black out)

BARBARA: The man I now present to you
Did once play fiddle for the Tsar,
And that's a feather in his hat;
But to see its tip, look high and far.
(Solo by Sysky Cohenovitz meets with vociferous applause.)

MILLY: My pencil's sharp, my pad page clean;
I've come to observe, not to be seen,
So hurry! I have other classes
To stare at through these horn-rimmed glasses.

CHORUS: Alas, alas, the hours fly,
The moon rides swift across the sky,
We Juniors now meet in the night
For duty calls in hours of light.
Yet to be a Junior is such fun
In spite of trials and tribulations;

History

So come, we'll do a Junior swing,
While Helen sees that we get our rations.

(Distribution of coffee and pastry meets with general acclaim. Piano and gossip intermingle, and as the curtain falls we leave the Juniors to their well deserved privacy.)

III.

"La Soiree des Juniors"

(Curtain rises on 102. Refreshments in the background.)

CHORUS: Into the room the Juniors stream;
A party select, as you can see.
Barbara leads, pseudo-dignity,
While Milly decked out in gay finery,
The belle of the old mill stream.

MILLY: Welcome to our rummage preview,
With what, my dears, can we now gyp you?
Note my stylish outfit, chic,
Buy it now and pay by the week.

BARBARA: We will have order in the class,
And not ten thousand miles away,
Burleigh Grimes a message brings,
Calf-love's call he does relay.

BURLEIGH: L'amour alights we know not where,
The classroom's no exception;
This note, which I have intercepted
Bares love's young soul of all deception.

CHORUS: How cruel to intercept a note,
A sentimental souvenir;
However, now that it is yours
Please don't delay, but let us hear.

(Copyright on epistle prevents reprinting in this publication. The curious are referred to Professor Grimes.)

CHORUS: How edifying, yet how sad
To hear this cynic youth.
To think that adolescence sweet
Should know the bitter truth!

ALBERT COHN

Log of the Soph

That good, seaworthy ship, The Soph, has just come into port.
The storms were fierce, the gales that blew were of the wildest sort.
Our Captain, Daniel Kitchen, has steered a noble course,
Though shouting at the crew on deck has made his strong voice hoarse.
The First-Mate, Titian Beth, has won her shipmates love and praise.
Her helping hand is always there on fair or stormy days.
Our good Mates, Ann and Met, have shown ability and worth.
They've made the two-year voyage ring with jollity and mirth.
With such a ship and such a crew, we'll soon set forth again
To sail once more for fun and fame in work and play and then
We'll rest in port and spin some yarns about the prizes won
And talk of sailing days at R. I. C. E. before the trip was done.

Just when we started on our cruise for Wisdom's hidden hoard,
We met a sister ship, The Frosh, and asked them all aboard.
With song and dance and merry laugh on deck and down below,
We entertained and fed them all before they had to go.
The hornpipes of the Morgan Girls were cheered up to the sky,
To loud applause, our Mary went a'swinging through the rye.
The playing of Villatico will some day bring us fame
And so will that of Haggerty—young Charles is his name.
With mirthful jest, infectious grin, and pleasing voice and air,
Our shipmate, Curly Murray, introduced the actors there,
Though voyages be long or short, we'll not forget the day
The Freshmen came aboard The Soph and Comus long held sway!

For days, the sea was calm, and we enjoyed the peaceful sail,
But soon the skies were clouded by the rising of a gale.
The question much debated on the deck and down below,
Was where to buy the rings that all our worthy sailors show.
We gazed at big and little ones, with stones of every hue—
Of red and green and yellow, of purple, black, and blue,
But no agreement could be reached and so the Captain cried—
"We'll put the question to a vote and that will soon decide."
The rings were numbered carefully, conspicuously displayed.
We all gazed long upon them and then decision made.
With heavens clear and oceans calm, with peace among the crew,
The good ship, Sophomore, sailed on—the biggest prize in view.

The cruise was full of glad events—of parties and of games,
With every one in work and fun—I can't give all the names.
The Christmas party welcomed in the Yule-tide, bright and gay
In starting projects and ideas, the Soph'mores led the way.
With spirits high, we met and overcame the dread Exams,
Then feasted at our luncheon on the tastiest of jams.
Our banquet satisfied us all—the food was extra fine.
Then clad in our best uniforms, we swung on down the line.
The hall was decorated with the finest taste and care.
The best of times was had by all the lads and ladies fair.
The voyage o'er, we rest in Port, until with shipmates true,
Our gallant ship puts forth to sea for more adventures new.

MARION E. LITCHFIELD.

Around the Calendar with the Freshmen

- April 14, 1938. Prospective Freshmen take entrance exams. Three hundred anxious, hoping students.
- April 16, 1938. More exams. Still three hundred anxious, hoping students. (Or is it two hundred ninety-nine?)
- May, 1938. Dr. Ross gives physical examinations. Feet, two. Ears, two. Eyes, two. Noses, uh, nose? Yes!
- June, 1938. Hold your breath! Acceptance!
- September 12. We walk the corridors of R. I. C. E. and feel we "belong".
- September 21. The wind blew and blew and blew!
- October 8. Freshmen find little black microphones on the bulletin board inviting them to Station S. O. P. H.
- October 10. Sophomores entertain Freshmen and present us to the Faculty.
- October 29. Freshmen seen on campus pocketing worms! Alibi: Biology class.
- November 3. Bill McKenna is elected "Big Chief Freshman".
- November 10. Freshmen elect Harry (he is a) Prince Chairman of the Social Committee.
- November 15. Elizabeth Quinn is elected Secretary and Marion (gimme) Sword, Treasurer. (She's really a capitalist at heart.)
- November 18. More elections. Such politics!
- November 24. And all that was left of the bird was the bones!
- December 2. Subject of a College Mascot comes up.
- December 8. Subject of a College Mascot gets "hot".
- December 15. Subject of a College Mascot gets lost.
- December 20. Freshman Class holds its first party to exchange season's greetings.
- January 7, 1939. Dr. Bird tells us that the correct way to spell "Sighcollogy" is to put in as many letters as possible.
- January 10. Dr. Bird: "Napoleon was a little man, but—oh, my!"
- February 10. Dorothy Foley makes a motion we go on record as "a clean, healthful class by seeing that healthful conditions are assured in the girls' locker rooms, etc."
- Blue and silver chosen as class colors.
- February 24. "Dots and dashes and lots of flashes!" The Anchor announces that "Miss Greta Morris of the Freshman Class will sing the title role in Countess Maritza."
- March 1. Freshmen set date for Sophomore "Trial" (or sumpin').
- March 6. Bill McCambridge appointed "Presiding Honorable Judge of Supreme Court of the Rhode Island College of Education"
- March 10. Freshmen issue invitations to Sophomores and Faculty.
Dorothy Foley: "The Freshmen are a bunch of children!"... Note: D. F. is a Frosh.
- March 15. Freshman trial—a howling (!) success. "Big Chief McKenna" runs around scalping scalps; Eileen Cavanaugh toots her tooter, (Oh so smooth); six young men.....uh, I mean maids, of the gay nineties and others who have been guilty of misdemeanors are summoned before the Judge of Hooser Falls (population 511).
- March 17. Freshmen turn out "wearing of the green."
- March 19. Roars of laughter from the gym where Freshmen prepare stunts for the Freshman Frolic.
- March 24. Miss Foley suggests that the Freshman Class give a rising vote of thanks to the committee that arranged the Freshman Party for the Sophomores.
Mr. Brady suggests that the Freshman Class give a rising vote of thanks to Miss Foley for saying something worthwhile!

Acknowledgments

RICOLED '39, being the chronicle of the College year and having to do particularly with the likenesses and experiences of the Senior class, has finally gone to press. We have tried to incorporate into it the best of ideas culled from other books, from active imaginations, and from conscientious experiment. Our aim was to leave to the College an eleventh edition of the College Annual that would include both representative literary material and the most expert photography to form a colorful portrayal of student life.

The Editor takes this opportunity to thank in general those who co-operated to this end either directly or indirectly, and in particular Miss Thorpe, Professor Tuttle, Mr. McEntee, Mr. Severino, and a willing board.

Thanks also are due for their co-operation in the making of this book to Miss Lally and Mr. Harrington of Bachrach Studio, to Mr. Arthur Tomlinson and the Bickford Engraving Co. staff, and to Mr. John F. O'Hara of Oxford Press.
